HAPPEN HERE? BUT ONLY IF YOU LET IT HAPPEN

Hitler's Rise Lesson to Americans.

BY LEON STOLZ.

The most tragic figures in the world today are those of the men and women in Germany—members of proscribed races and believers in religious and political liberty—who cooperated in bringing about their own ruin.

There are many of them, Christians and Jews alike. Today they are outcasts in their own country. They have lost all rights as citizens. Their property has been confiscated. Their employment has been taken away. Their trade unions have been disbanded. They have no rights which must be respected. Their children are not permitted to have a decent education and are deprived of an opportunity to achieve lives of usefulness.

These men and women cannot get up in the morning or go to bed at night without cursing themselves for their own folly in not resisting oppression while there was still time to do so.

Let us see what their mistake was. Let us do so, not to heap further humiliation upon them, but only to make certain that we shall not fall into the same calamitous error.

Hitler came to power on Jan. 30, 1933, but he was not the first dictator in post-war Germany. The dictatorship was an established fact several years before Hitler took it over. By 1932 Germans were accustomed to it.

The dictatorship came about in this way: The world-wide depression had hit Germany a stunning blow. Finally President Hindenburg was convinced that an emergency existed. In 1931 he reposed all power in Chancellor Bruening's cabinet. The members of the reichstag were sent home. A dictatorship had come into being.

In time Bruening was succeeded by Von Papen and Von Papen by Von Schleicher. At each succession the German dictatorship took to itself added power.

Many German Jews and many of Germany's liberals and intellectuals of other faiths saw all this happen and made no attempt to stop it. Some of them actually approved the increase in the power of the chancellor. They said it made for greater security of employment, wages, and profits, and prevented internal disorders.

* *

They knew that Hitler was going up and down the country preaching hatred of Jews and contempt for individual liberty, but they refused to believe what their ears and eyes told them.

"It can't happen here," they said. "It can't happen in enlightened Germany. They can't harm us who have lived here in Germany, generation after generation, for nearly a thousand years. They cannot forget our sons who gave their lives to Germany in the war. They can't ignore our immense contributions to German science and industry. Even if Hitler by some mischance should come to power, he wouldn't be allowed to carry out his threats."

Today they curse themselves for their foolish optimism.

Many more of the Jews and liberals in Germany were too much occupied with their own affairs to waste any time thinking about politics.

"Let the politicians worry about politics," they said. "As for us, we shall continue to mind our own business. We are law abiding people. We have nothing to fear from the government."

Today they curse themselves for their fatal indifference.

* *

All of this optimism and indifference was encouraged by the fact that the first three dictators of Germany were gentlemen of some education and refinement. They did not use their power as dictators to persecute any one or any minority, on account of race or religion.

But the power to persecute had been placed in their hands. It was ready for use. President Hindenburg had handed a pistol to Bruening. Bruening gave it to Von Papen, who loaded it. Von Papen gave it to Von Schleicher, who cocked it. Von Schleicher handed it to Hitler, who aimed it at all Jews and all liberal thinkers. And fired it.

Fortunately for our country, this tragic experience was not ours, but

BETTING THE WORKMAN'S SAVINGS.

A modern war costs so much that it invariably brings about inflation. The last war brought about inflation sooner or later in every country that was in it. The cost of another war to us, on top of the debt incurred by the Roosevelt administration, would bring the dollar down close to zero.

If the United States as a result of being attacked is forced into a war, what will happen to the annuities promised the American workman out of the wage tax he is going to pay, starting the first of next year? He may get as many dollars as he is promised, but the dollars won't buy anything.

In the past many workmen have wisely used their savings to buy homes. If inflation comes a man who owns a home will still have a roof over his head. But if inflation comes and a man has only an annuity coming to him, and doesn't own his home, he hasn't any income and isn't certain of having shelter.

Mr. Roosevelt calls the wage tax savings. But the average workman has never been able to save as much as the wage tax will take out of his pay. The average man who is obliged to pay the wage tax will not be able to make payments on a home. Thus the Roosevelt wage tax makes every workman subject to the worst hazards of inflation. It takes away from the American workman the means by which he may, if thrifty, hedge against inflation, just as thrifty Frenchmen and thrifty Germans did. It forces him to gamble all that he might save on a bet that there won't be a war as long as he lives.

Mr. Roosevelt is forcing the American workmen to make such a reckless bet at the same time that the government is making preparations in the belief that war may come. The government is actively building warships. It is spending 760 millions a year for the army and navy. The American expenditures for the instruments of war are the largest in a number of years.

The Roosevelt wage tax compels a workman to bet with his savings that war won't come, while Mr. Roosevelt gives every indication that he believes it may come. The Roosevelt wage tax is vicious. It should be repealed. Alfred M. Landon has sworn that if he is elected he will ask congress to repeal it.

U. S. News on Simpson Case Angers Britain

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Mrs. Wallis Simpson returned to her London residence at 16 Cumberland terrace, Regents park, today from Felixstowe. Her divorce, granted yesterday in the Ipswich assizes, was the exclusive topic of gossip in Mayfair clubs and society circles.

Mrs. Simpson received a decree nisi, which means that after a six months probationary period she will be free to marry king or commoner.

Mention of Mrs. Simpson for the first time in all London newspapers this morning gave a fillip to the gossip about the 40 year old American woman and her friendship with King Edward VIII. of England, a friendship which, on a word from the strong Newspaper Proprietors' association here, most London editors have barred from print.

Articles in Continental Press.

Paris papers reaching London announced that the British people are furious at America because it allegedly has been announced on the radio there that King Edward would marry Mrs. Simpson soon after the coronation next May 12.

Coupled with the fact that American and other foreign newspapers are in rising demand in London is the increasing tendency here among Englishmen to register indignation with American newspapers for giving attention to Mrs. Simpson and her friendship with the king.

"All this is the fault of the American press," is the remark heard in circles of English people discussing Mrs. Simpson.

Some of this official and unofficial fury at the American press seems to be directed at apprehensions lest news dispatches printed in American papers should also get circulated in Canada, Australia and other parts of the empire.

New Interest in Coronation.

Despite the outcry here against the very thought of the king's marrying a commoner and an American, some people are saying that the episode is greatly increasing interest in the coronation, especially in America. The king's friendship with the American woman also is a circumstance which augments American public interest in England at a moment when every effort is being made diplomatically to bring the United States and England closer together. The English people in fact easily assume that American sympathy and help would be forthcoming to Great Britain in case of another general war.

On Friday night King Edward will give the first dinner party in Buckingham palace since he took up residence there. The party will be a small private affair in honor of Dr. Carlos Saavedra Lamas, Argentine foreign minister, now visiting in Brit-

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 28.—Confidence that President Roosevelt will be reëlected pervades the Thirteenth street headquarters of the communist party of America. And based on that confidence is the high optimism of communist leaders that another four years of the New Deal will bring them within striking distance of the overthrow of the American form of government and the substitution therefor of a communist state.

Communist leaders, I find, wholeheartedly approve of President Roosevelt's repudiation of communist support. They realize that to assure the reëlection of the President it is highly important not to frighten conservatives away from him. His disavowal, they appreciate, was intended to allay conservative apprehensions. They recognize the move as "smart politics."

His Ardent Supporters.

As for the radicals, they not only have not been alienated by the President's disavowal but are working for the reëlection of Mr. Roosevelt more ardently than ever. All the utterances of the communist leaders and their campaign literature continue to emphasize that a Roosevelt victory is essential to the speeding of their cause. Radicals of all colors are being adjured to vote for the President and as a result Earl Browder, the communist party, and Norman Thomas, the Socialist party, candidates are expected to poll only a nominal vote.

As the communists view it, the New Deal has already initiated a collectivist economy in the NRA, the TVA, the AAA, the Guffey coal control and the Tugwell resettlement projects and, though three of these have been invalidated by the Supreme court, the President is relied upon to circumvent the court in one way or another and re-create them during his second term.

Look for Radical Measures.

By these and even more radical measures which they think Mr. Roosevelt would find himself impelled to adopt the communists believe he would pave the way most satisfactorily in another four years for the advent of unadulterated communism.

The election of Gov. Landon, however, would be a staggering blow for the communists and other radicals. It would mean that there would be no revival of the NRA, the AAA, and the Guffey coal control; that there would be no packing of its powers to invalidate acts of congress, and that the whole trend toward a collectivist state would be checked. Such a check for four years or more might prove, the communists realize, a permanent setback for their program.

The communists view the President's campaign tactics as playing right into their hands politically. The communists are promoting the formation of Farmer-Labor parties in all states in the belief that by 1940 such a party will be the principal opposition to the conservative Republican party. The conservative Democrats will have been driven permanently into the Republican party and the radical Democrats will have been absorbed by the Farmer-Labor party.

Creates Class Movement.

The President has aided these plans of the communists in numerous ways. He is making the New Deal a class

Find Boy Lost in Mountains for Five Days

Missoula, Mont., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Hungry and near exhaustion, Murray Walkup Miller, 9, snuggled between hospital blankets tonight, rescued after five days of wandering in western Montana's rugged Sapphire mountains.

The youngster was found today by H. J. Daigle and Charles Lear, forest service employés. He was rushed here to a hospital, suffering from exposure to subfreezing temperatures and hunger. Physicians, however, indicated his condition was not serious.

Daigle said the boy was so weak he could scarcely talk when the foresters came upon him lying beside a creek not far from the Bitter Root forest lookout cabin.

Finding Called an Accident.

"I couldn't wade the creek, the boy said. "It was too deep, and I was awfully tired." It was not learned what he found to eat while he was lost.

Murray, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Miller of Stevensville, Mont., had wandered 15 miles from where he left his stepfather last Saturday. The mountain range in which he was lost is considered "the roughest in this part of the west."

"It was only an accident that we found the child," said Daigle.

The lad said he became lost when he went for water at a creek near where his stepfather was cutting wood.

"When I started back I couldn't tell where I was and just kept going," he said.

Separated from His Dog.

"I started to look for them [his stepfather and half-brother] and I hollered, but nobody answered. My dog was with me then. I tried to find where they were working. Pretty soon my dog started to chase some mountain goats and he left me."

He stopped his story to ask if the dog had been found, and smiled as friends told him the dog was safe.

Murray said he heard nothing of the nearly 1,000 volunteers who combed the hills searching for him. He was unaware of the number of days he had been gone.

Earlier today Sherif James Oliva of Stevensville said the search for the boy had been called off, on the theory he was hitch-hiking to an aunt's home near Spokane.

STEAMER FROZEN IN ICE; FEAR FOR 150 PASSENGERS

HARBIN, Manchukuo, Oct. 29.—[Thursday.]—(AP)—Fears were expressed today for the safety of 150 passengers on the Manchukuo steamer Haian, which is frozen in the ice in the upper Amur river in a wild and uninhabited region between Moho and Heiho.

The government dispatched airplanes to search for the stranded vessel, which is without communication and is understood to lack sufficient food and winter clothing for passengers and crew.

Twenty-four passengers were feared lost after they abandoned the steamer on Oct. 24 to seek refuge by land. They have not been heard from since they left.

Hijackers Take 500 Suits; One Wears a Santa Beard

Two gunmen, one wearing a Santa Claus beard, jumped on the running board of a truck at Van Buren and Peoria streets, and forced the driver, Ralph Maloney, 50 years old, 4052 North Francisco avenue, to drive to 36th street and Western avenue. There Maloney was put out of the truck, which the hijackers drove away, followed by three companions in an automobile. The truck, owned by the William Heim Cartage company, 4300 North Damen avenue, contained 500 men's suits, which Maloney was taking to the postoffice. The suits were the property of two Chicago tailoring concerns.

Tourists Run Into Weighty New Deal Boy

As a member of the Lake county Democratic committee, Einar Sorenson, a Channel lake summer resort owner, carries a lot of weight in local party circles. He also carries considerable weight personally—some 250 pounds.

Mr. Sorenson is a deputy state game warden and inspector of highway trafic. Naturally he is an enthusiastic booster for President Roosevelt. Yesterday he demonstrated this enthusiasm.

Along Comes Landon Party.

Bruce V. Crandall, former editor of the Railway Review, was on his way yesterday from his home at Three Lakes, Wis., to Florida to spend the winter. Traveling with him by automobile and trailer were his two sons and two daughters.

Before leaving home they had cast their absentee ballots for Gov. Landon and the Republican ticket. They pasted pictures of Gov. Landon on the windows of their car and house trailer.

Five miles this side of the Wisconsin state line, the Crandalls stopped for fuel at the Hickory service station on route No. 45, three miles east of Antioch.

Einar Gets Excited.

Sorenson was inside the tavern operated in connection with the station when the Crandall vehicles arrived. He looked out, noted the Landon signs, rushed up to Crandall and demanded:

"Don't you know you're violating the state law? Your car is too far from the trailer and the over-all length is too great. You're under arrest."

At this Sorenson showed his game warden's badge. It impressed the Crandalls, who thought he was a policeman.

"Then he started in," Crandall said last night at the home of Eric Carlson, 6037 North Lawndale avenue, where he spent the night. "He said he would take us before a justice in Antioch, but if we took off the Landon pictures he would arrange for a 'soft' fine.

Threatens Jail, Too.

"For the next ten minutes we listened to a eulogy of President Roosevelt and all the New Deal. Then the man said we probably would have to spend the night in jail at Antioch if the justice couldn't be found. As a favor he would not make the arrest, he told us, if we would immediately rip down the Landon pictures."

Naturally they did not want to spend all night in a jail, Crandall declared, so the Landon signs came down. He added that once inside Chicago, however, some "spare" Landon pictures went back in the windows of their autocade.

ON MADRID BATTLEFRONTS, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Wearied defenders of besieged Madrid tonight rationed food for the refugee-swelled population of 1,500,000. An army of 500,000 bedraggled refugees from other areas increased the gravity of the Madrid situation. They fled before Fascist armies which now are within ten miles of Madrid on the south.

Verifying persistent reports that Madrid was faced with starvation unless supplies arrived soon, the civil governor, Carlos Rubiera, organized a provisioning committee to dole out the dwindling food stores bit by bit to the hungry inhabitants. He claimed food supplies would last two months.

Bring No Money or Food.

The normal 1,000,000 population of Spain's capital city, authorities estimated, had been increased 50 per cent by streams of haggard old men, women, and children which have trudged into the city from Fascist-captured areas. Most of them possessed nothing but carts of household belongings—no food, money, or clothing.

The government saw sheer force of numbers as the best—and perhaps only—method of breaking the insurgent attack before it gained the gates of the city. The military high command mobilized all able-bodied men between 20 and 45 into a new second line army estimated at 35,000.

Tighten Ring of Attack.

Fascist leaders tonight smiled with utmost confidence at reports of Madrid's physical and human defenses so hastily organized against them. The advance units of their attack were each within ten miles of Madrid and having little difficulty driving forward much as they chose.

The Cordoba radio announced that Fascist Gen. José Varela had offered immunity to all citizens of Madrid who would enter the insurgent lines without arms during the projected attack upon the capital.

Varela declared his African Moors and the Foreign Legionnaires would be the first troops to enter the capital and it would be "difficult to restrain them."

Rebels to Loose 200 Tanks.

For the final assault on the city itself the Fascists were saving a deadly fleet of 200 "baby" armored cars and tanks. With machine guns spitting death from the slits in the sides of these mobile pill boxes, the Fascist leaders said, their men should be able to kill all who opposed their triumphant entrance into Madrid.

It was not their wish, the Fascist leaders asserted, to spill more blood in the beautiful boulevards of Madrid than was necessary for its capture.

The populace, they hoped, would be terrified into surrender by their daily airplane strafing, and if not by this, the capital's defenders might be demoralized when the insurgent artillery was brought into play.

Field batteries of six inch guns, able to shell Madrid from a distance of but a few miles, were wheeled up with the advance Fascist infantry units. It would not be long, the insurgent leaders said, before they would be whining shells into the very patios of Madrid.

Fear Anarchist Arson.

Recalling the sacking and burning of Irun earlier in the civil war, the insurgent leaders said there was also the possibility that the anarchists within Madrid might set the city afire as soon as it became apparent the Fascist advance was inexorable.

The insurgent attackers tonight were poised on three highways south of Madrid.

On the main highway between Madrid and Aranjuez insurgents were massed between El Cerro de los Angeles [Hill of the Angels], less than ital, and Pinto, a settlement three miles farther south.

On the main highway between Madrid and Toledo Fascists were facing government troops concentrated at Parla, not quite fourteen miles southwest of Madrid.

On the main highway between Madrid and Navalcarnero Fascist squads halted temporarily in the vicinity of Alcorcon, approximately eight miles southwest of the capital after occupation of Mostoles.

In the northwest sector insurgent warriors were in possession of the heights surmounting El Escorial, historic city thirty miles northwest of Madrid. The Fascist forces threw a semi-circle about Escorial, extending from a point east of Robledo de Chavela through Zarzaeljo to the positions near Peguerinos.

Small forces were reported operating in the territory directly east of San Martin de Valdeiglesias in the vicinity of Brunete. Parts of these units have been dispatched south and north to join the Escorial and Navalcarnero columns.

The insurgent forces of Col. Ricardo Rada, near Escorial, used cavalry charges to spear the way for their virtually unimpeded advance.

At El Espinar, ordinarily a sleepy village at the foot of the Leon peak in the Guadarrama mountains, the effect of the rebels' shelling of various loyalist positions was plainly visible.

Isolated on Mountain.

The most pitiful sight was offered by a group of about 200 Loyalists at the top of the Mata de Sanbals peak, who had been cut off from their comrades on neighboring peaks as a result of a rebel raid led by the well known Spanish movie actor Sergt. Fernando de Cordoba. The Loyalists lost their two machine guns in that raid.

The fate of this "lost battalion" seems to be either to starve to death or surrender—but if the marooned fighters should try to surrender they most likely would be mowed down by the machine guns of their fellows in neighboring positions.

Two American newspaper correspondents, David Minifie and Henry T. Gorrell, captured recently by rebel troops, today crossed the border to St. Jean de Luz, France. Their captors took them from Salamanca to the border town of Irun. Minifie represents the New York Herald-Tribune and Gorrell the United Press.

Bomb Red Ships at Barcelona.

LISBON, Oct. 28.—(AP)—A Spanish Fascist radio broadcast heard in Lisbon today asserted insurgent airplanes had bombed Barcelona and seriously damaged several Russian ships which the broadcaster said were discharging cargoes of war materials. The broadcaster added that the military barracks in the socialist held city were also bombed.

Bomb Rebel Airports.

MADRID, Oct. 28.—(AP)—The Socialist government tonight claimed "the most marked triumph" since the Spanish civil war began with the bombing of the insurgent airports at Seville, Granada, and Caceres.

2 NAZI REPORTERS EXPELLED FROM ITALY BY IL DUCE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Premier Mussolini today ousted two more newspaper correspondents from Rome, according to news reaching here.

Frantz Obermayer of the Munich, Germany, Neueste Nachrichten and Rudolf Maltzahn of the Berlin Voelkischer Beobachter, have just been requested to leave. Their expulsion comes at the moment when the visit to Berlin of Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister, was announced as having cemented a new Italo-German friendship.

[Dispatches from Rome said Obermayer was expelled for writing an article speculating on the visit of Alessandro Lessona, minister of colonies, to East Africa, and intimating that Lessona intended to investigate charges of a huge swindle plot during the Ethiopian campaign. The name of Marshal Emilio de Bono, commander in chief during the early days of the campaign, was brought into the story.]

French Courts Dismiss Suit on Bond Fraud by Premier

PARIS, Oct. 28.—(AP)—The courts today dismissed a suit by the taxpayers' federation against Premier Leon Blum charging he defrauded the public by pressing sale of government bonds knowing that secret devaluation negotiations were being conducted. The courts declared the premier acted in his official rather than personal capacity and that parliament ratified his actions.

ITALY, PORTUGAL DID NO WRONG, COMMITTEE SAYS

Rejects Soviet Charge of Aid to Spain.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—(AP)—The international "hands off Spain" committee tonight acquitted both Italy and Portugal of charges of violation of the nonintervention agreement. Three separate votes on the various charges were taken and in each case the "acquittal" was unanimous except for Russia's vigorous dissent.

Lord Plymouth, British chairman of the committee, took the initiative before the body and said the charges against Italy that she had supplied arms and munitions to Spanish Fascists either:

1. Referred to what happened before the agreement went into effect; or
2. Had not been proved; or
3. Were not violations.

Rejects Port Control.

The three votes were taken on:

1. Italy's reply to charges by Russia that she had supplied war materials to the insurgents in Spain;
2. Charges by the Socialist Spanish government against Portugal that she had aided the insurgents;
3. Russian allegations charging both Portugal and Italy with sending in arms and ammunition.

The committee after its lengthy session today issued a communique disclosing that the Portuguese representative declined to accept Russia's proposal for control of Portuguese ports by naval vessels of one or more of the member nations of the committee:

Ivan Maisky, Russian ambassador to London, told the committee Russia would combine its control proposal with a proposal made today by Lord Plymouth for control of Spanish ports and frontiers to see that the nonintervention agreement was observed.

Proposes Naval Patrol.

Lord Plymouth suggested that naval patrols be placed along Spanish and Portuguese coasts as a means of halting arms shipments to Spanish Socialists and Fascists.

German and Italian representatives insisted they were anxious to make the agreement effective and indicated that their governments would approve but they said the proposals must be studied.

Charles Corbin, French ambassador to London, said that France was willing to accept anything that would make the agreement effective.

This setback to Russian allegations came after charges and countercharges had been flung from rival Fascist and communist camps for weeks.

Russia herself will be on the carpet at next week's meeting of the committee when it is expected she will reply to Italian charges of Russian violations of the neutrality pact.

Italy Adds 20 Violations.

Today's session was marked by bitter clashes between Maisky and Francisco Calheiros, Portuguese delegate.

Dino Grandi, Italian ambassador to London, and Prince Otto von Bismarck, German chargé d'affaires, and Calheiros all insisted that the Russian reply "clarifying" Russia's ambiguous threat to quit the committee still left the situation in doubt.

Grandi said it was essential to be certain that Russia was adhering to the pact before proceeding further.

Fresh Italian counter-charges—detailing 20 alleged acts of Russian aid to Spanish socialists, were tossed into the already tangled situation by Grandi.

These took place between Oct. 9 and 20, he said, and were in addition to instances previously revealed by other representatives.

The charges placed before the committee by Grandi included ten of minor importance, but wound up with a citation that the newspaper El Diluvio of Barcelona on Oct. 17 said Russia had made preparations to supply arms to Spanish "comrades" openly. A copy of the newspaper was attached to Grandi's document.

The Major Charges.

His ten major charges follow:

1. On Oct. 12 the soviet ship Neva left Odessa for Spain with 150 heavy auto trucks.

2. On Oct. 13 150 Russians disembarked at Alicante from the steamer Ciudad de Barcelona.

3. During the night of Oct. 11 the Russian steamer Giorgio Dimitrov loaded sixty trucks at Odessa for Spain.

4. On Oct. 15 the steamer Transbalt, at Odessa, loaded 100 new trucks and boxes of munitions, sugar, and food for Spain.

France Boosts 1937 Budget Expenses Almost One-Third

PARIS, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Premier Leon Blum's cabinet expects to boost its total ordinary and extraordinary expenditures by almost one-third in 1937—from 46 billion francs [now $2,116,000,000] in 1936 to 60 billion francs [$2,760,000,000] next year.

Financial circles pointed out the franc's purchasing power will be actually less in 1937 than during this year before the French currency was devalued.

The greatest budget increase will come in extraordinary sums, totaling 14 billion francs [$644,000,000] for armaments, public works, and unemployment relief.

Defense Budgets Up.

A sharp rise in the defense budgets was foreshadowed by an announcement from the ministry of finance that 8,500,000,000 francs [$375,000,000] of the total extraordinary estimates will be set aside for armaments.

The ordinary budget, increased 6 billion francs [$276,000,000] to 46 billions [$2,116,000,000], was expected to list another 8 billions [$368,000,000] for national defense.

The finance committee of the chamber of deputies said, however, it is impossible to tell the exact total for armaments yet, because details of the ordinary budget have not been disclosed. Total arms appropriations this year were 13,500,000,000 francs [$612,000,000].

National Deficit to Rise.

The addition of the huge extraordinary estimates will raise the total national deficit, it was expected, to 17,500,000,000 francs [$805,000,000] next year, most of which Premier Blum is expected to borrow.

Through a program of tax revision and reform, the government expects to reduce its ordinary deficit by almost one-half—from 6 billion francs [$276,000,000] expected in 1936 to 3¼ billion francs [$161,000,000] next year.

Reduction in the regular deficit will result from abolition of some taxes and consolidation of others, financial officials asserted. A smaller number of taxes will increase returns, they declared, and do away with frauds prevalent under the old system.

Designed to speed up business and simplify the taxing structure, the tax revision program has been mapped to cancel sixty levies, eliminate a "turnover" tax on business, and impose a 2 per cent levy on undistributed profits. The business tax will be replaced by a 6 per cent production levy, while rates on inheritance taxes are to be increased for large estates.

Probe Minister's War Record.

Two former soldiers were named today to study the world war record of Roger Salengro, minister of the interior, accused by Rightist newspapers of betraying his country during that conflict.

Gen. Marie-Gustave Gamelin, chief of staf of the army, named M. Pichot, president of the Federal Union of War Veterans, and M. Debarral, ex-secretary of the National Confederation of Former Combatants, to examine the war ministry's records.

Rightist newspapers have accused the minister of deserting from the French lines on the pretext that he was looking for the body of a dead friend. The war ministry, however, asserted in a public announcement that Salengro was acquitted by a court martial while he was held captive by the Germans.

CLAIM ITALY PLOTS RAID

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 28.—Charges in a communique issued here yesterday by the Spanish embassy that Italian armed forces have installed themselves in the Island of Mallorca and are preparing to launch an expedition against Catalonia in a few days have been corroborated by a secret report of the British intelligence service, THE TRIBUNE was informed today.

The communique said there is reason to believe the Italians who were called into Mallorca to aid the Spanish rebels have quietly shoved their allies aside and now are planning to make an attack of their own against the Catalan coast early in November. The communique then made the following precise allegations:

A total of 112 Italian bombing and pursuit planes are assembled at Mallorca ready to make an attack on Barcelona.

Italians are fortifying the coast of the Balearic Islands, having lately received reinforcements from an Italian ship which debarked at Palma eight complete anti-aircraft batteries.

Eight submarines painted gold and red, the colors of the Spanish insurgents, are ready to leave the base at Genoa with a complement of Spanish rebels and officered by Italian naval officers. The mission of these submarines is to prevent any foreign ships from approaching the Balearics and at the same time to prevent vessels considered as undesirable—in other words Russian vessels—from entering the port of Barcelona.

Fear Move by Il Duce.

Both the British and French governments are seriously worried by the Italian activities in Mallorca and there is reason to believe that strong pressure is being brought to bear in Rome to prevent Premier Mussolini from doing anything in the Mediterranean which would aggravate the present situation. There is some suggestion that the British foreign office is taking advantage of the arrival in London of Joachim von Ribbentrop, the new German ambassador to Great Britain, to enlist German support in soft pedaling Il Duce.

DESERT LEAGUE, BELGIAN FASCIST GROUP DEMANDS

Claim Cabinet Retreats from Neutrality.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Belgian Fascists and Flemish Nationalists, opponents of Premier Paul van Zeeland's government, demanded tonight that Belgium announce its withdrawal from the league of nations.

Their proposal came after a speech by Foreign Minister Paul Henry Spaak which those groups contended was a recession from a strong "neutrality" policy recently pronounced by King Leopold III.

Spaak described Belgium's new foreign policy as "complete independence without returning to our pre-war foundation of complete neutrality." It could not be adhered to, he asserted, unless parliament provided extraordinary appropriations for military expenses.

Backtracks on King.

The Rexists, a Fascist organization headed by Leon Degrelle, called the "Hitler of Belgium," and the Flemish Nationalists, whose sympathies are strongly pro-German, declared Spaak had backtracked on the king's statement that the nation should refrain from collective security and the army should be reorganized only for protecting Belgium from invaders.

Belgium, Spaak said, will inform both Germany and France, her neighbors, that she will not harbor the army of either side for an attack on the other.

Nevertheless, he said, Belgium will "respect the signatures already given." He apparently referred, among other things, to Belgium's post-war military treaty with France, her world war ally.

Hitler Causes Change.

"We must in the future know exactly what obligations we are signing," Spaak declared. "The German violation of the Locarno pact changed the basis of everything."

The military bill, presented to parliament yesterday, was published tonight. Sponsored by the government, the measure asked an increase in the military service period from eight to 18 months for the infantry and for varying terms in other branches.

The total army enrollment, including 26,000 professionals, would then be about 92,000 compared with the present 70,000 troops for eight months of the year and 56,000 the remaining four months.

MOLLISON LANDS IN NEWFOUNDLAND ON FLIGHT TO LONDON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HARBOR GRACE, Newfoundland, Oct. 28.—Capt. James A. Mollison, British flyer, set down his orange and blue cabin monoplane, Dorothy, on the ice sprinkled air field here at 4:55 p. m. today [3:25 p. m. Chicago time]. He was 6 hours and 41 minutes out of Floyd Bennett field, New York, on a one stop flight to London. Mollison has previously made three westward flights across the Atlantic.

Reports indicate weather conditions in the immediate future will not be satisfactory, but the flight will be resumed when they improve, the flyer said as he alighted, tired and cold, and went to the custom office and then to the Cochrane hotel. Tomorrow 500 gallons of gasoline will be put aboard the plane, which carries no radio.

Mollison's plane, a Bellanca, has a 700 horse power motor. The flyer said he will navigate only with an artificial horizon and a gyroscope compass.

When he took off at New York Mollison wore a dinner jacket, because "I do my best flying at night," a white sweater, slacks, and a flying suit. He said his plane was named for Dorothy Ward, English actress, a "very dear friend." Mollison's flying wife, the former Amy Johnson, who last week announced in London they had separated, cabled Mollison good wishes before he left New York.

FIFTEEN DIVORCE ORDERS UPSET BY SUPREME COURT

50 Other Husbands Face New Alimony Bills.

Any men and women who have remarried since being divorced under an amendment to the state divorce laws which was declared unconstitutional by the Illinois Supreme court on Tuesday are unwitting bigamists, in the opinion of Judge Rudolph F. Desort of the Superior court, who wrote the amendment.

"There is only one thing for such people to do, as I see it," Judge Desort said. "They should, if possible, get new divorces under the old divorce law and then remarry their present spouses. In view of the Supreme court's reversal of the amendment, the people to whom I refer are not legally married to their new mates."

Drafts a New Amendment.

Judge Desort said that he was already at work on a new amendment, to be offered at the next session of the legislature, from which will be omitted the features on which the Supreme court based its finding of unconstitutionality.

"I haven't yet read the high court's opinion," Judge Desort said, "but apparently a majority of the justices took the position that the new law was discriminatory because it made a distinction between childless couples and those with children."

Lawyers pointed out, however, that the justices who concurred in the majority opinion [the vote was 4 to 3 against the amendment]. did not dwell on the distinction made between mothers and childless women, but rather on the discrimination between husbands.

Two Sections in Amendment.

The overthrown amendment contained two provisions. One was that alimony payments to childless women could be terminated by court order after two years. The other provided that two years of separate maintenance for childless couples constituted legal desertion and therefore a ground for divorce.

The majority opinion pointed out that under the amendment a judge in the lower court could order the payment of alimony in a separate maintenance case for a total period of not more than two years. Thus, if a man paid temporary alimony for several months before separate maintenance decree was granted, the court would lack authority to order such a man to pay under its decree a sufficient additional length of time to establish the ground of desertion. This would classify him arbitrarily apart from a man who had paid a sufficient length of time under a decree of separate maintenance, the opinion said.

Sixty-five Husbands Affected.

A survey of Superior and Circuit court records here showed that the Supreme court ruling would affect about 50 men whose alimony payments have been terminated under the amendment, and at least 15 husbands who won divorces based on "legal desertion" as defined in the amendment. It is not known how many principals in such divorce cases have since remarried.

Judge Philip J. Finnegan of the Circuit court, who granted no divorces under the voided law, but who set aside alimony payments in 25 cases, said he would restore the alimony orders and require the husbands to pay up their arrears "as soon as the mandate in the case is filed with me."

William C. DeMotte, president of the National Casket company, whose wife's appeal from an order halting her alimony payments resulted in the Superior court's ruling, did not indicate yesterday whether he plans to ask a rehearing within the time limit of 15 days. Mrs. DeMotte's lawyer, Drennan J. Slater, said that if a rehearing petition is not presented he would file the mandate in the case as soon as the 15 days are up.

ORDER 300 TROOPS TO SEE HANGING OF TWO TRAITORS

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Oct. 28.—(AP)—In a square formed by 300 white faced soldiers, two sergeants, convicted of transmitting military secrets to Czecho-Slovakia, were hanged today. The soldiers were ordered to witness the executions so they might serve as an example to all Hungarian armed forces.

Officers of the court martial also were present as bugles sounded and the hangman kicked stools out from under the condemned, John Beiro and Josef Kavacs. The doomed men had spent the night in the same cell, drinking five quarts of wine, playing cards, and listening to a gramophone. They sang military songs until priests arrived to give the sacrament.

The men were accused of using young girls whom they introduced to officers to obtain military secrets. Then they allegedly sent the secrets to Czecho-Slovakia through smugglers. Several girls and another man were sentenced to prison in the case.

STALIN REGRETS HE CANNOT ADD TO DEATH REPORT

MOSCOW, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Writing from the "calm of the other world," Dictator Josef Stalin sent his blue-penciled "regrets" today he could not add anything to reports of his death. The Moscow bureau of the Associated Press received a second letter from Stalin, replying within a few hours to a request for an interview sent to the Kremlin.

In the first letter the dictator, commenting on widespread reports that he was either dead, dying, or going to the United States for a serious operation, humorously requested the reports to be believed, "and don't disturb me in the calm of the other world."

The dictator was seen at the Bolshoi theater on Sunday. Informed sources say he undoubtedly will appear in Red square Nov. 7 to review a parade.

BUSTER KEATON CALLS SELF A 'POOR MAN' IN HIS FIGHT ON ALIMONY

New York, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Buster Keaton, motion picture comedian, pleaded in Supreme court today that he is a "poor man," and said he was being "persecuted" over alimony arrears.

He filed a motion to vacate a warant of attachment for $4,500 filed by his divorced wife, Natalia Talmadge Keaton, formerly prominent in the movies.

Mrs. Keaton based her warant on a divorce decree which she said required Keaton to pay her $300 a month for the support of their two sons, Robert, 12, and Joseph, 14.

In his motion Keaton said that when they were divorced in 1932 he gave his wife 90 per cent of their property and that subsequent losses had made him a poor man, dependent on his salary, while she is a wealthy woman. He said he was served with the warant when he came to New York to make comedy shorts.

TOIL IN DARK TO AID MAN HURT ON MOUNTAIN CLIFF

Salt Lake City, Utah, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Rescuers fought darkness and jagged rocks tonight in an effort to reach an injured 21 year old deer hunter trapped on a ledge in the rugged Wasatch mountains southeast of here.

Lloyd Rawson fell over the brow of a cliff in the precipitous mountain fastness shortly before noon as he scoured the desolate region for big game.

Only a protruding ledge a short distance below saved him from plunging 300 feet further to certain death.

His leg broken, Rawson lay on his precarious perch for three hours before a signal fire and his whistling attracted his brother, Joseph, 17, from whom he had separated shortly before the accident.

After finding his brother alive, Joseph descended the cliff and raced five miles to the nearby community of Granite for aid.

HUNT GANGLAND CLEW IN NILES TAVERN SLAYING

Two Killers Fire Dozen Shots and Escape.

Adolph Anzona, 30 years old, 3265 Warren avenue, manager or owner of Charlotte's cocktail lounge, 7225 Milwaukee avenue, Niles, was murdered by persons unknown. This was the verdict of a coroner's jury yesterday. Two men entered the roadhouse early yesterday morning, singled out Anzona, and killed him with a dozen bullets.

"We know this shooting was not the outcome of a robbery attempt," said Deputy Coroner Edward Edelstein in questioning the widow, Gladys, [illegible] years old, at the inquest which was held at 5826 Elston avenue. "These wanton killings have to be stopped. The only way we can make any progress is through the coöperation of the family. Now, do you know of any trouble your husband had with any one?"

Friend of Slain Gangster.

The widow replied that she did not. She knew nothing about her husband's affairs, she said, explaining that whenever she asked questions he told her to mind her own business. She knew, however, that he had been the friend and companion of Jack Klutas, gangster and kidnaper, who was slain by policemen in 1933.

The widow said her husband was manager of the roadhouse. Other witnesses testified Anzona recently had claimed to own the place. Neil McKenty, named by the widow as the probable owner, said the property was in the name of his wife, Charlotte. Anzona's mother was a sister of Mrs. Charlotte McKenty, McKenty told the deputy coroner. McKenty gave his address as 4800 Dempster street in Niles Center.

Handbook in Tavern.

The McKentys have at least two other taverns in Cook county, police said. Anzona was said to have boasted that he was a big dealer in horse race betting and was known to have operated a handbook in the Charlotte lounge.

The name of Adolph Dumont also was mentioned at the inquest. Dumont, who owned several of the roadhouses operated by the McKenty family, was taken for a ride and killed in 1931. He was an uncle of Anzona by marriage. Dumont, an ex-convict, was known as "Dorf" because of his first name—Adolph—and the nephew took over the nickname.

Anzona's relationship to the operators of several roadhouses, and his former association with Klutas, whom he is reported to have betrayed to police, were clews leading to the theory that the killers were gangsters. Police had no other leads to their identity.

Anzona had a criminal record, according to Lieut. Harry Andel of the county highway police. Lieut. Andel said that undoubtedly Anzona had been engaged in some racket and had not been honest with his associates.

POPULATION OF U. S. IS SET AT 128,429,000 BY BUREAU OF CENSUS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—The population of the United States was estimated at 128,429,000 today by Director William L. Austin of the bureau of census, department of commerce.

The new figure, as of July 1, represented an increase of 908,000, or 0.71 per cent, since July 1, 1935. It was based on the number of births and deaths during the year ending June 30, 1936, and the excess of immigration over emigration.

Births exceeded deaths by 899,956 and the net immigration was 8,044, according to the data taken by Austin. The population figure on the basis of the 1930 census was 122,775,046, and the biggest annual increase since then was 1,022,000, for the year ending July 1, 1931.

The population of the state of Illinois was estimated at 7,845,000, or an increase of 204,346 since the 1930 census. Illinois was topped only by New York, with 12,935,000 persons, and Pennsylvania, with 10,136,000, according to Austin's estimate.

ORDERED FREED; TALKS HIMSELF RIGHT INTO CELL

George Kuehne, 38 years old, 1719 North Sawyer avenue, talked himself into a cell at the Sheffield avenue station early today. Policeman William Hippenmeyer, off duty and on his way home, saw Kuehne switch off the lights of an automobile parked near Wellington and Damen avenues. The action seemed suspicious and he took Kuehne and his young woman companion to the police station for questioning.

Lieut. Anthony De Grazio talked to the pair and ordered them released, but Kuehne was indignant, announced he was a civil engineer for the county and that his political friends would see that Policeman Hippenmeyer was punished. He asked and received the number of the policeman's star.

Outside the station Kuehne met the policeman again and resumed his tirade of abuse, police said. Hippenmeyer took him back into the station and he was booked on a charge of disorderly conduct. He began calling his friends in an effort to raise $25 bond.

HAPPEN HERE? BUT ONLY IF YOU LET IT HAPPEN

Hitler's Rise a Lesson to Americans.

it may be ours unless we profit from it. Let us see what lesson it has to teach us.

The lesson is a simple one. It is just this:

If you want to preserve your country from the horrors of persecution, if you want to preserve your liberties and the liberties of your children, you must do everything within your power to prevent the creation of anything resembling a dictatorship in this country.

You must not lull yourself with the thought that a dictatorship is necessary for the solution of economic difficulties.

You must not forget that a tolerant dictator may be followed sooner or later by an intolerant dictator—and generally is.

You must not ignore the principle—proved true, time and again in human history—that temporary powers given to a government in an emergency tend to become permanent powers; and that liberties once lost are seldom regained, and then only at heavy cost.

And above all, you must not allow the pressure of your other interests to divert your attention from political questions which concern you deeply and directly.

If you do not save yourself, nobody will save you.

* *

Let us apply these lessons to our own day and our own country.

What would be the first fatal steps toward setting up a dictatorship in America?

Every schoolboy who has studied civics knows the answer.

The first step would lie in concentrating power in Washington and in the hands of the President.

The second step would be the transfer of law making power from congress to the President.

The third step would deprive the Supreme court of the United States of the power to interfere with the acts of the dictator. At present our courts can and do protect individuals from oppression by their government. No dictator can tolerate that kind of interference.

* *

And now let us examine the records and promises of the two principal candidates for President of the United States in the light of what we have just been saying.

We saw that the first step toward dictatorship was an increase in the power of the President.

Most of the characteristic acts of the New Deal do just that. Let us look at just one of them, the NRA, for it is typical of all the rest.

This act gave the President the right to regulate all kinds of business, everywhere in the country. This was a power never before claimed or exercised by the federal government. The NRA law was intended to enable the President, if he so desired, to command merchants where to buy goods and where to sell them. The President was to have the power to control all production and all distribution. He could fix prices which consumers must pay and he could regulate wages, up or down. He could tell manufacturers how much they could produce and what they must charge for their products. Any one who tried to sell at lower prices, even if he could do so profitably, could be put in jail or fined. The President was given power even to prevent men from going into business if they wanted to risk their own money in a new venture.

The powers which the President obtained under this act were powers which up to that time had never belonged to the federal government. They were powers which belonged either to the states or were forever reserved to each citizen to exercise as he, in his liberty, chose to exercise them.

* *

The second of the three steps toward dictatorship is the taking over of the law making power by the President. Again NRA will illustrate Mr. Roosevelt's attitude.

Everybody knows, of course, how the NRA law was passed. It was not drafted by congressmen. The men who wrote it were Mr. Tugwell, Mr. Johnson, Mr. Richberg, and others of the President's intimate advisers. The bill was handed to congress and congress passed it, under orders and threats from the President. For all practical purposes, he had taken over the law making power. Congress was only a rubber stamp.

And now look closely at the law itself and see what it provided. Each industry was authorized to write its own laws. But if an industry did not want a code or could not agree upon one or drew up a code which the President for some reason did not like, he could himself write the code for that industry and his code had all the force of law. Violations were punishable by heavy fine and imprisonment. Mr. Roosevelt had taken the second step toward dictatorship. He had assumed the power, single-handed, to write laws.

When the Supreme court, by unanimous vote, declared NRA unconstitutional, the judges asserted that the delegation of law making power in this statute was "delegation run riot." Those were Mr. Justice Cardozo's words. Nobody can accuse him of overstating the offense.

* *

Of course, these dictatorial powers cannot be exercised as long as the Supreme court is able to preserve the constitution against the President's assaults. But Mr. Roosevelt wants to curb the powers of the Supreme court, too, and that is the third and longest step of all toward dictatorship. He indicated his views as long ago as 1932 in a campaign speech at Baltimore. He made them even clearer in his "horse and buggy" interview in which he denounced the Supreme court for throwing his NRA law into the discard. He has never suggested an amendment to the constitution, probably because he knew that the people would not approve his kind of amendment, but he has indicated all too clearly that he wants, somehow or other, to get around that decision.

That would not be as difficult as it sounds. Certainly no reasonable man or woman who has watched the course of events in the last three and a half years can have any doubt that if a vacancy occurs on the Supreme court, Mr. Roosevelt will fill it with a man who will let him have his way. There is a great likelihood that vacancies will occur in the next four years, for the youngest member of the court is more than 60 years old and the average age of the justices is more than 71.

* *

You hear people speak contemptuously of the nine old men. But only last year we had a dramatic demonstration of how well these men guard our individual liberties. An obscure family in Brooklyn, Schechter by name, received peremptory orders telling them how to run their chicken business. If the government could meddle in such matters it could meddle arbitrarily in anybody's affairs. It could do the things that Hitler does to control the lives of his subjects.

But the Schechters, unlike the victims of oppression in Europe, were not helpless. They went to the Supreme court with their complaint. The Supreme court decided unanimously that the little Schechters were right and the United States government was wrong.

That was the end of Gen. Johnson and the NRA. That was also the beginning of real recovery in the United States.

Every citizen of the United States who is in danger of being persecuted can do exactly what the Schechters did. If the victims of persecution abroad had our constitution and a Supreme court organized like ours to protect them they would not have lost a night's sleep.

Do we want a Supreme court containing judges hand picked to approve the creation of a dictatorship in America?

* *

We know what the three essential steps toward creating a dictatorship in this country would be. We have seen that Mr. Roosevelt has taken those three steps.

And now we will prove from Mr. Roosevelt's own lips that he, too, recognizes the very dangers which we have been pointing out.

In presenting his report to congress on the state of the nation as recently as Jan. 3 of this year [months after the Supreme court had invalidated much of his legislation], he said:

"In thirty-four months we have built up new instruments of public power. In the hands of a people's government, this power is wholesome and proper, but in the hands of political puppets of an economic autocracy, such power would provide shackles for the liberties of the American people."

It had not occurred to Mr. Roosevelt, tolerant man that he undoubtedly is, that by the same token these "instruments of power" in still other hands could be used to persecute racial and religious minorities, and deprive the American people of free speech, free press, and freedom of worship.

* *

And now, by way of contrast, let us see what Gov. Landon thinks about dictators and dictatorships. This is what he said, with transparent sincerity, in his speech at Detroit on Oct. 13, 1936:

"We live in a world in which human liberties are falling. In nation after nation ideals of democracy have been swept away.

"In every case the process of destruction follows the same pattern. First the executive sets himself up as a popular leader and in the name of national emergency asks that additional authority be given to him.

"Then the legislature gradually yields more and more power to the executive, until the legislature becomes a mere instrument of the executive.

"Finally the courts of law are undermined, and the judiciary ceases to be a protection for the people.

"When this final stage is reached—when the independence of the courts is destroyed—the rights and liberties of the people are gone. The people then are at the mercy of the executive. The executive is all-powerful.

"We have seen the results of this process abroad. The first steps already have been taken here. Think back over the last three and one-half years and see what has happened . . .

"If I am elected I shall recommend to congress the repeal of all acts giving autocratic powers to the chief executive."

We know that under the kind of constitutional government which America has enjoyed for 149 years and Mr. Landon is pledged to maintain there have been no organized persecutions of any minority. We know that under the constitution our country has grown great and strong, and over the years its people have been happier and more prosperous than the people of any other land.

But if Mr. Roosevelt is to be encouraged to go on building up a dictator's "instruments of power," who can say confidently what will happen one of these days in free America?

* *

The first step toward persecution is dictatorship. If there is no dictatorship there can be no persecution. A vote for Gov. Landon is a vote for the preservation of free institutions in a free land. A vote for Mr. Roosevelt is a vote for taking just such a chance as was taken by those who favored the Bruening dictatorship in Germany.

Do you want to take that chance? Do you want to take it for yourself? Do you want to take it for your children?

Your answer will be made when alone, unwatched, unchecked, except by your conscience, you enter your voting booth on Nov. 3.

JEFFERSONIANS BACK G. O. P. CANDIDATE IN N. Y. GOVERNOR RACE

New York, Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Support of the Jeffersonian Democrats for William F. Bleakley for governor was announced today by Col. Henry Breckinridge, who has been active as head of that group in supporting Gov. Alf Landon for president.

Col. Breckinridge, by long distance telephone from Canton, O., announced his acceptance of the chairmanship of the New York committee to work for the Republican state nominee. Other members of the advisory committee are Bainbridge Colby, Raymond V. Ingersoll, and James E. Finegan, all of whom previously have come out for Landon.

"Gov. Herbert Lehman has been the New York agent for the Roosevelt-Farley-New Deal machine," said Col. Breckinridge. "He has participated in or supported the repudiation of the 1932 Democratic platform, the violation of every principle of the Democratic party, and the subtle subversion of our constitutional system.

"He has been a leading partner in making New York state the principal 'filling station' of the New Deal. He supports the New Deal policy which plunders the wealth of New York, stifles its commerce, and siphons off its money for New Deal boondoggling to every other section of the United States."

Take this short first step to shoe satisfaction

There should be no reason to be hasty in buying new shoes. An incautious purchase is often the source of lasting regret. You can check your judgment before spending a cent by reading the advertisements of women's shoes which appear in the Chicago Tribune. They present the information you want in order to buy wisely. A few minutes a day with the Tribune will keep you posted on the choice footwear values available in Chicago's shops and department stores so that when you do go out to buy your next pair of new shoes you will know what you want and where to get them. Fashion-wise women look before they buy new shoes—and look first in the Tribune because it contains more advertising of women's shoes than any other Chicago newspaper.

FARM LEADERS RIP WALLACE'S $1 CORN LIMIT

Central West Aroused by New Deal Policy.

Argentine Corn

The first cargo of Argentine corn to invade the Chicago market is due to be unloaded today at the docks of the Norris Grain company in South Chicago. The shipment, 83,000 bushels, is aboard the steamer Pillsbury, from Montreal. Details in market section.

BY PERCY WOOD.

A wave of protest swept through the central west yesterday over the statement of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace that he favored importing foreign corn when the price of American corn goes above a dollar a bushel.

American cash corn sold on the Chicago market at $1.11 a bushel yesterday, and Argentine corn was offered at $1.01. Corn futures declined about a cent a bushel, due partly to Wallace's statement, traders said.

Peek Hits Wallace Plan.

George N. Peek of Moline, plow company executive, former AAA administrator who is now in the forefront of the Landon ranks, declared that Wallace's statement, made at Bloomington on Monday night, demonstrated the secretary's interest in "world" rather than "farm" recovery.

"The farmers," Peek said, "are resenting the Wallace statement that he wants to see imports coming in to keep the price of corn from going beyond a dollar a bushel. This is absolutely in line with his record as secretary of agriculture and with the administration's low tarif and control of the farmers from Washington.

"From the beginning of his administration Secretary Wallace has demonstrated that his interest lies in world recovery rather than in the recovery of the farmer."

G. O. P. Leaders Optimistic.

In Bloomington New Deal supporters were shaking their heads dubiously while the Republicans were more optimistic than at any time during the campaign. A large advertisment in a Bloomington newspaper carried the substance of Wallace's plan in headline type, emphasizing that Wallace "favors importation of Argentine corn equal to 5 per cent of this year's crop, or 75,000,000 bushels, to prevent corn prices from advancing."

Another portion of the secretary's speech, not hitherto given wide circulation, was printed in Bloomington.

"In a drouth year like 1934," Wallace was quoted as saying, "you need not be surprised if we get Argentine corn. For my part, when the crop is cut so low, I hope there will be some imports to keep the price of corn from going too high for the live stock men, forcing them out of business, and upsetting our production program."

Sees Ruin for Farmers.

Harrison E. Spangler, executive vice chairman of the Republican national committee, declared in Chicago that the Wallace plan would ruin corn belt farmers.

"It must be stopped on election day," Spangler said. "Under Wallace's scheme the farmer would be prevented in times of drouth and scarcity from getting a decent price for a short crop.

"According to Wallace's statement, the administration has planned to cheapen the price of corn by inviting exports from foreign countries. This is exactly what is going on now under Roosevelt's reciprocal trade agreements which have taken the domestic market from American farmers.

"This policy, which the New Deal administration has pursued for three years, has cost the corn belt farmers millions and millions of dollars. The statement now from Secretary Wallace that they 'planned it that way' is disheartening to the people in the great corn belt.

"The Wallace announcement of a $1 corn price limit stunned the audience which heard it. This astonishing statement made by Wallace was taken down in shorthand. It was unqualified. It stated plainly that the administration hoped to keep the price of corn from ever going beyond a dollar a bushel by encouraging imports.

"Our wires were busy today with messages from leading farmers denouncing the position taken by Wallace and the administration. Many of them said that they were taking off their coats to help beat the un-American gang in Washington which would perpetrate such a deal upon the corn belt farmers.

"The Wallace statement is the answer to the seven leading farm organizations which, several weeks ago, filed a demand in Washington that the tarif on meats be increased. Although the President was given this power to increase tarifs by congress, their petitions fall on deaf ears. Evidently the large importations of beef and pork products from all over the world are desired by the Roosevelt-Wallace-Tugwell crowd to crush the prices of hogs and cattle to the midwest farmer."

FALL IN HOME PROVES FATAL.

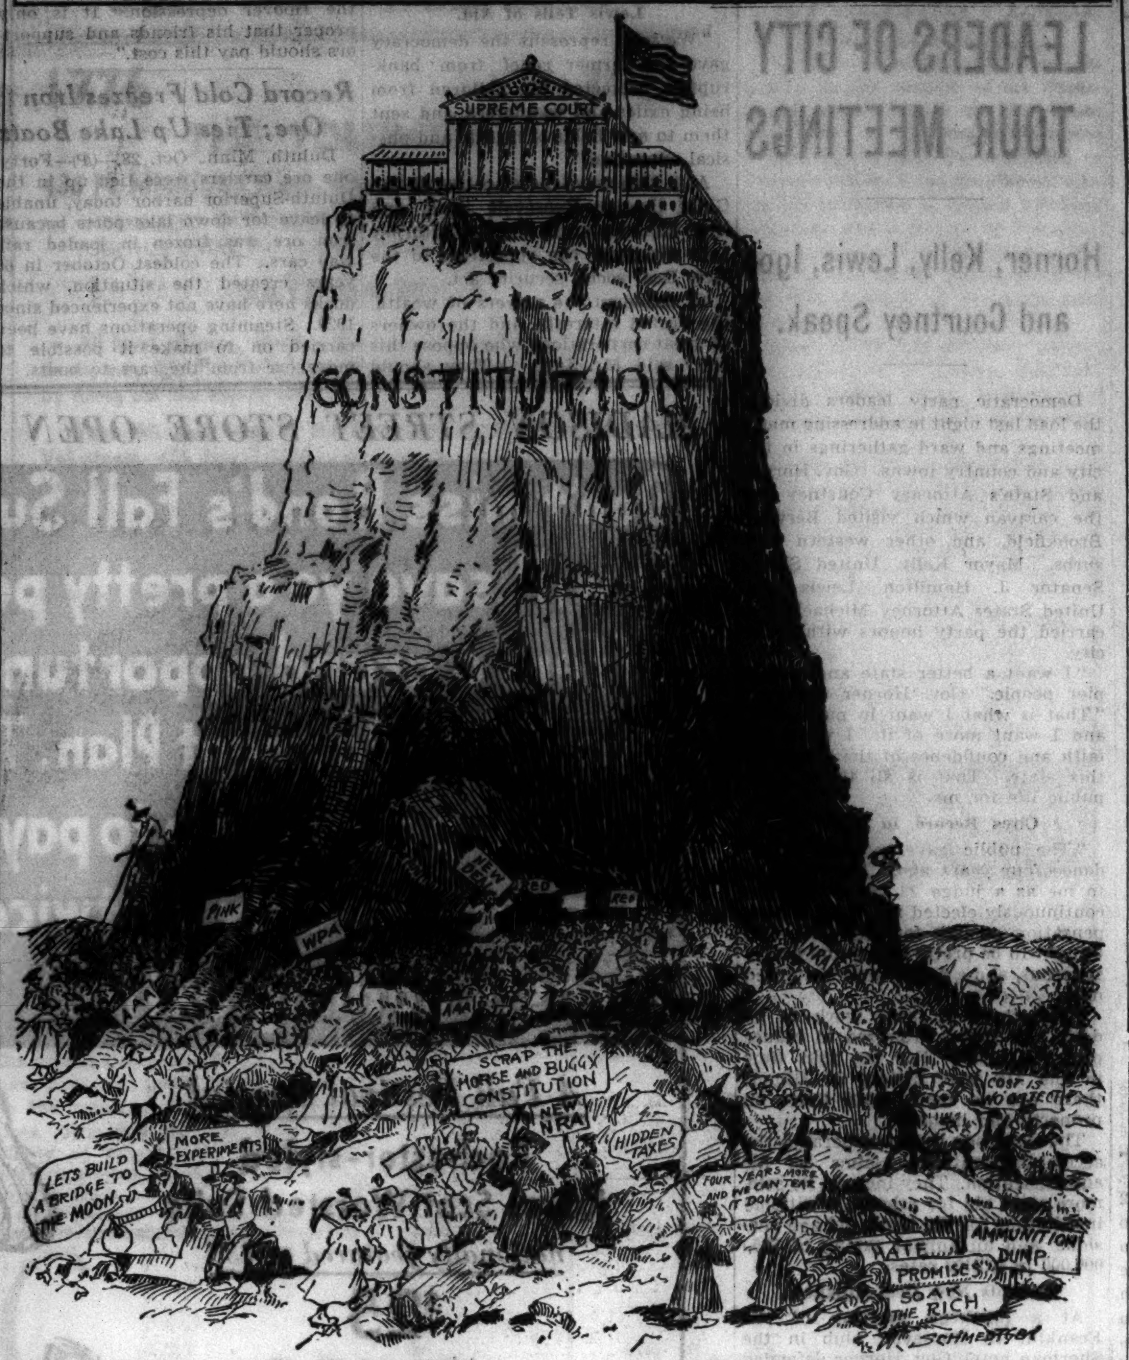
FREEDOM'S GIBRALTAR



The distinguished Chicago artist, William Schmedtgen, drew the above cartoon to illustrate what he regards as the salient issue of the campaign now ending. He submitted it to The Tribune as his argument against the New Deal.

TUGWELL ISSUES REPORT, THOUGH STILL IN HIDING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—For a time this evening it was thought that Dr. Rexford Guy Tugwell, the New Deal's most revolutionary brain truster, had emerged from the woodwork, where he has been boring from within during the campaign, but it transpired that he still is in hiding. The excitement was caused by a statement issued from the resettlement administration under the name of Prof. Tugwell, who is the RA's administrator as well as undersecretary of agriculture and brain truster No. 1.

However, inquiries disclosed that the statement put out by the resettlement propaganda bureau under Dr. Tugwell's name never was seen by the professor and that he still is in the New Deal dog house, equipped with muzzle and leash, for the duration of the campaign.

"Somewhere In West."

W. W. Alexander, assistant administrator of the resettlement administrator, said Dr. Tugwell was "called" before the press agent release was issued and that he indorsed it, but Mr. Alexander did not know specifically where Dr. Tugwell is hiding.

"He still is somewhere in the west on an inspection tour," said Mr. Alexander, "but you may be sure that the statement was authorized by him and was official."

The statement proclaimed that as of Oct. 1 76.5 per cent of the money due from farmer recipients of rural rehabilitation loans had been repaid. The principal due on Oct. 1 was $8,552,688.05, and $6,543,896.98 had been collected, according to the statement.

Touches Drouth Loans.

The statement attributed to Prof. Tugwell added that the total of loans made to farmers for all purposes, including drouth loans, from the beginning of the Resettlement administration on July 1, 1935, to Oct. 1, 1936, was $87,066,409.44. Nothing was said about the percentage of this total that had been repaid.

The Republican national committee has been releasing affidavits from former Resettlement accountants charging that the administration has loans outstanding aggregating millions of dollars for which there is no security, no accounting, and no record. Furthermore, the Republican national committee has cited court records showing that RA loans on individual cows have run as high as $800. Nothing was said about this.

"Success," Says Statement.

But the "rehabilitation loan program," said Dr. Tugwell, by remote control, "has demonstrated its practical success by these healthy collection figures. The figures are more startling when we consider the fact that the farmers receiving these loans were principally relief cases and could get no credit elsewhere."

Dr. Tugwell also announced, by remote control, that families living in twenty-five Resettlement communities had paid $187,393 in rent to the treasury as of Sept. 1. Again nothing was said about the family unit cost of these communities, or what the rent should be to present a reasonable prospect of paying out.

BROOKS BLAMES HORNER IN STATE PENAL SCANDALS

Declares Utility Rate Reductions Delayed.

Conduct of the state welfare institutions under Gov. Horner was condemned in sharp language last night by Wayland Brooks, Horner's Republican opponent, in campaign speeches on the north side and the western suburbs.

"Penal abuses and pardons, and paroles under Horner have shamed Illinois before the nation," Brooks charged. "The revolting conditions revealed by the murder of 'Dickie' Loeb and the 'Midget' Fernekes scandal, were inevitable. Guards and prison employés held their jobs as temporary employment, subject to the whim of some Horner leader, doing as little work and collecting as much as possible for favors to prisoners."

Public welfare under Gov. Horner, his opponent charged, "has become one vast spoils domain." "The contingent of lump sum appropriation for public welfare is the fund which pays for extra payrollers. Under Gov. Horner, it leaped to $4,550,000. This was 26 times the sum appropriated under the preceding administration."

Assails Claims on Rate Cuts.

Brooks also tore into the governor "for using electric rates as a political football and delaying justified rate reductions until election time."

The Republican nominee declared that "Gov. Horner, in desperation, is throwing up a smoke screen to cover the failure of his administration to cut electric rates until 30 days before election. He withheld action on the rate reduction for three and one-half years so that he could use the reductions as a political football. If the Horner appointed and controled utility commission had ordered the rate reductons three and a half years ago when the cases were filed the users of electricity would have saved many millions of dollars."

Glenn Observes Anniversary.

Former United States Senator Otis F. Glenn, who was nominated by the Republicans for a second term at Washington, made only one campaign speech last night, in deference to his and Mrs. Glenn's 25th wedding anniversary. Mr. Glenn's audience in the Hinsdale school auditorium applauded when a bouquet was presented to the couple, Mrs. Glenn having accompanied her husband.

Glenn departed from his routine attacks upon the New Deal in the Hinsdale speech by talking about President Roosevelt's latest fishing expedition in New England and Canadian waters.

"Four thousand men on two battleships accompanied the President," Mr. Glenn said, "and the President caught six fish. Each fish cost about $100,000. Of course we all know that every second the clock ticks, the New Deal spends $6,000."

George E. Q. Johnson Speaks.

Former Federal District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson was also on the radio in Glenn's behalf yesterday.

"I am a great admirer of former Senator Otis F. Glenn," said former Judge Johnson, "for the reason that he places public interest before private interest; that he has the courage to do right, as he sees the right and that he has the ability to understand all kinds of people.

"He understands the problems of the farmer. He understands the problems of the working man. He understands the problems of the white collar man. He is intensely human. He flares with indignation when some one has suffered a wrong, and he is among the first to attempt to right a wrong."

German-Americans Indorse G. O. P.

Mr. Brooks, Charles W. Hadley, Republican nominee for attorney general; Arthur Bidwill for auditor, and George Hatzenbuhler for lieutenant governor were guests yesterday at a luncheon of more than 400 German-Americans in Henrici's restaurant, held in conjunction with the Carl Schurz Round Table.

Herman Hintzpeter presided and the group passed a resolution indorsing Gov. Landon, Glenn, Hatzenbuhler, Arthur C. Lueder, nominee for county treasurer; William Busse for county recorder, and former Judge John F. Haas for the Municipal bench.

Volunteer Singers Make Tour of Hotel Lobbies

Led by Edward Freeman this group of singers from the music department of the Volunteers sang last night in the lobby of the Congress hotel. Other groups sang in various loop hotels. Their programs included the "Campaign Hymn," and "Our Landon." [TRIBUNE Photo.]

VOLUNTEERS TOP 2,000,000 MARK AND KEEP GOING

Patriots Sing in Loop Hotels.

Membership in the Volunteers has passed the 2,000,000 mark, it was announced last night by Attorney Julius Miner in the first of a series of radio talks sponsored by the patriotic organization formed three months ago to combat the menace of New Dealism. Mr. Miner urged all others who believe in American ideals and free government to join the Volunteers and take part in their activities between now and election day.

"Here is our creed," he said. "We are opposed to any impairment of our established principles. We condemn the usurpation of legislative power by the President. We are against the flouting of the integrity of our Supreme court, the displacement of free enterprise by regulated monopoly, the frightful waste and extravagance of public funds—and the coercion of our voters by withholding relief from them. We would stop the breaking down of the moral fiber of our people by reducing them to poverty and permanent dole.

Faith in American People.

"The Volunteers have faith in the basic soundness of the American people. We are dedicated to the perpetuation of our sacred heritage. We arrayed against ruthless mercenaries and pay rollers seeking self-perpetuation at the public trough, and determined to enslave a free people.

"Pay rollers and mercenaries didn't make America. Volunteers made it. Pay rollers didn't win the revolutionary war. Volunteers did. Pal rollers are not going to win this election. The Volunteers will. Join the Volunteers. Display the American colors."

Last evening was the "Night of Song" staged by traveling troupes of Volunteer troubadours, who visited the lobbies of loop hotels to sing Republican campaign songs. Five groups of singers carried their music through the loop from 8 to 10 p. m.

'Our Landon' Is Applauded.

Among their selections which won particular applause were "Our Landon," "Oh, Suzanna" and the campaign hymn of the Volunteers which uses the majestic lines of Whittier's poem to the first Kansas emigrants, beginning:

"We cross the prairie as of old
The pilgrims crossed the sea,
To make the West, as they the East,
The homestead of the free!"

A tea for the women Volunteers who are to distribute Landon-Knox sunflower badges in the Sunflower Day celebration in the downtown area today will be held from 2 to 4 o'clock this afternoon on the 18th floor of Tribune Tower, Volunteer headquarters.

TODAY IS DEADLINE FOR THE MAILING OF ABSENTEE BALLOTS

Chicago men and women who will be out of the city on election day are casting their absentee ballots in the election board's office on the third floor of the city hall. More than 2,100 such ballots have been cast, according to Alexander J. McKay, chairman of the board. The deadline for personal voting by absentee voters is Saturday at 5 p. m. Absentee voters who mail their ballots in must do so by 5 p. m. today.

The absentee ballots are sealed and kept at the office until the afternoon of election day when they are to be distributed to the proper precincts. When the polls close the envelopes will be opened and the ballots placed in the ballot box by the polls officials.

URGE RODGERS 'WRITE-IN' FOR SHANAHAN POST

Friends of Robert E. Rodgers, 3842 Archer avenue, prepared last night to conduct a "write-in" campaign to place his name on the ballot for the Shanahan legislative seat in the 9th senatorial district. Rodgers has been a Republican senatorial committeeman in the district for 35 years and was a close friend of the late former Speaker David E. Shanahan, whose place he was named to fill by the other members of the committee.

Attorneys for Rodgers failed yesterday to obtain a mandamus from Supreme Court Justice Clyde E. Stone in Springfield which would have caused the Chicago election commission to place his name on the ballot. The state certifying board failed to act on his selection by the senatorial committee.

FIVE DEMOCRATIC LEADERS OF CITY TOUR MEETINGS

Horner, Kelly, Lewis, Igoe and Courtney Speak.

Democratic party leaders divided the load last night in addressing massmeetings and ward gatherings in the city and country towns. Gov. Horner and State's Attorney Courtney led the caravan which visited Berwyn, Brookfield, and other western subsurbs. Mayor Kelly, United States Senator J. Hamilton Lewis and United States Attorney Michael Igoe carried the party honors within the city.

"I want a better state and a happier people," Gov. Horner declared. "That is what I want in public life, and I want more of it. I want the faith and confidence of the people in this state. That is all there is in public life for me.

Cites Record in Office.

"The public gave me that confidence four years ago. They gave it to me as a judge 22 years ago, and continuously elected me. That is compensation enough for any man, and I ought to be pretty happy and pretty generous, and a pretty well contented man.

"But there is more work to be done. In 1932 I promised to reduce property taxes. For the first time in the 118 year history of Illinois there are no more state taxes on property and homes."

The governor then enumerated the accomplishments he claims for his administration. They include, he said, more state aid for schools, additional institutions for the blind, old age pensions, and an annual saving of $15,000,000 in utility rates.

Defends New Deal Alliance.

At a luncheon meeting of the Franklin D. Roosevelt club in the Sherman hotel, Gov. Horner defended his coöperation with the New Deal administration at Washington.

"I have been criticized for cooperating with President Roosevelt," the governor stated. "Yes, I am with him all the way and in every department, but not one iota of our state sovereignty have we given up.

"I have been all over the state, in every county and town. And this is not a political boast; the state is ablaze as never before under the banner of Roosevelt."

"There are now no political parties," declared Senator Lewis. "There are only titles called Republican and Democrat or otherwise. We have passed the day of party labels.

Lewis Tells of Aid.

"We who represent the democracy gave the farmer relief from bankruptcy, protected his children from being exiles and wanderers, and sent them to new fields of mental and physical education."

At a 20th ward massmeeting in the Globe theater, Roosevelt road and Blue Island avenue, District Attorney Igoe discussed the opposition to the New Deal social security act.

"I condemn the powers of wealth, the vested interests, and the owners of great corporations who oppose this act," said Mr. Igoe. "They should be willing to pay their fair share of government.

"Some one has to pay the costs of the Hoover depression. It is only proper that his friends and supporters should pay this cost."

Record Cold Freezes Iron Ore; Ties Up Lake Boats

Duluth, Minn., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Forty-one ore carriers were tied up in the Duluth-Superior harbor today, unable to leave for down lake ports because iron ore was frozen in loaded railway cars. The coldest October in 66 years created the situation, which docks here have not experienced since 1920. Steaming operations have been carried on to make it possible to move ore from the cars to boats.

One man told Another

. . . Now millions are wearing trousers tailored with TALON REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

One man with a mind open to new ideas tried trousers closed with the Talon Slide Fastener . . . liked them . . . told other men why.

Men kept on telling other men . . . until today millions are wearing trousers tailored with Talon . . . and telling others they'll never go back to buttons again.

Because the idea makes sense. Eliminated are the unsightly gaps and bulges, the extra thickness, of the button closing.

Instead, the Talon Trouser Fastener . . . a slide fastener specially created for this purpose . . . produces a perfect, smooth closure, thin and continuous as a seam.

It gives new security, new self-confidence, freedom from danger of accidental disarray, embarrassing to others as well as to the wearer himself.

No wonder men like trousers tailored with Talon—and are passing the word along. Try them yourself. Wear one pair, and in a few days you'll see why millions of men will never go back to buttons again.

Today . . . well-tailored trousers are closed with the TALON slide fastener

The specially designed Talon Trouser Fastener must not be confused with any other slide fastener, even other Talon fasteners. It is small, flat-lying, and its special locking slider and special reinforcement are made expressly for use in trousers. The Talon Trouser Fastener will not crush, jam or break in pressing, yet it is as flexible as the fabric of a suit and absolutely rustproof. And it is tailored into the trousers with the usual protective underflap.

Millions of men will never go back to buttons again

VOLUNTEERS, THE TIME IS SHORT; DON'T WASTE IT!

New Instructions to Aid in New Deal Defeat.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Volunteers, this is your week!

The great rally on Tuesday night started it. That great rally demonstrated your capacity for organization. The remainder of this week will prove that your organization is effective. The recollection of those hundreds of delegations of women, each with the insignia of organization to broadcast the determination to win will arouse Cook county to its final burst of strength.

This is your week and today is your day of Sunflowers.

When you have read this you will have made your plans for Sunflower day. Those of you who are to take charge of the street intersections in the loop will have donned your banners and your sunflower hats and will have set off with your bags of sunflowers. Perhaps many of you will have taken your places before the early trafic hour has started. But when the day is over you will have made Sunflower day memorable in the history of American politics.

A Chance to Aid Tonight.

And memorable though the day will have been, your chance to serve the cause of free government will not end with the setting of the sun. During the evening hours you who have radios will have another great opportunity.

Two great broadcasts will go out, at hours conveniently close together. On one of these Gov. Landon's voice will be heard from one of the most important battlegrounds of the campaign. The first broadcast will be The Volunteers' own, from station W-G-N at 7 p. m. The second, over W-G-N and WBBM at 9:30 p. m. will originate in Madison Square Garden, New York, at the great Landon mass meeting.

Act now! Invite your neighbors—especially those who are still "on the fence" politically—to your home to hear these broadcasts. Make a Landon Volunteers' party of it. In the time between these broadcasts use your own persuasive powers; help them to see the truth.

Plan for Tomorrow, Too.

That is one thing. Here is another. Tomorrow is another day. It will be the day after Sunflower day, but it will be no less important in the conflict with New Dealism, with the threat of communism, with the shadow of dictatorship. Volunteers will not quit. Volunteers will increase their activity as the time lessens until election day. You must keep in mind that the votes you have gained can yet be lost if the voters do not reach the polling places.

The first point to be urged is that the absentee voters must be warned. This means that if you know of any voter who expects to be absent on election day you must help that voter go to the city hall and cast his absentee ballot. Please remember that an absentee voter cannot cast his ballot by an agent. Each voter who expects to be away from the city on election day must cast his own ballot in advance.

Poll Watchers Are Needed.

Here is another duty.

There will be need for thousands of poll watchers. Volunteers can serve this purpose with the greatest success. There are to be fifty thousand poll watchers. Many of these thousands already have their credentials. Others may have them by applying either at the general headquarters at 435 North Michigan avenue or at any of the district headquarters. District and precinct leaders are urged to attend the school for poll watchers in the general headquarters tonight at 7:30.

Here is another duty repeated.

Help Others to Vote.

Make it your business to survey your neighborhood for two things. First to discover all those who because of age or physical inability will need help in going to the polling places. Next, to find such automobile owners as are willing to contribute the use of their cars and their own services. On election day take these cars and carry the aged and physically unable to the polls.

Here is another duty.

Between now and next Tuesday make a point of two votes in addition to your own against the New Deal. Your own neighborhood may have been combed from one end to the other. Comb it again. Are you sure that some good Jeffersonian Democrat has not been overlooked? There is only one way to make sure. Go and see that voter.

And bear this fact in mind, for yourself and for those voters you talk to: THE BALLOT IS SECRET. No one can know how you voted. Do not be bluffed by any politician or by any boss.

Watch for Honest Count.

Two great duties: See that the voters have been told of the importance of this election and that they reach the polling places, and then make sure that their votes are honestly counted. You can count almost in the dozens those election officials who have been sent to jail in the last year as the result of their corrupt practices. This teaches you there are plenty of others who will try the same practices. It will be your duty to stop them.

One watcher in a polling place might be tricked. A squad of poll watchers in each polling place cannot be greatly deluded. Let every election official know there are a dozen pairs of eyes on him from the opening of the polls until the last ballot is counted.

Watch for tomorrow's instructions.

CAMPAIGN SIGNS ORDERED OUT OF A POLLING PLACE

For several weeks there has appeared in the window of the Seventeenth ward office of the city street department at 422 West 69th street a neon sign urging the reëlection of Coroner Walsh, a canvas placard asking the reëlection of State's Attorney Courtney, and a picture of Gov. Horner, candidate for reëlection. This building will be the polling place for the 75th precinct of the ward next Tuesday.

Informed of this situation yesterday, Alexander J. McKay, chairman of the election board, ordered that the signs must be removed by Tuesday.

Joseph Butler, superintendent of streets, went even further. He called the ward office and ordered that the three political signs be taken out at once. The placing of them in the window was "a damn fool thing," he told the clerk in charge.

STATISTICS SHOW CRIME IS REDUCED BY EASTERN TIME

Police Credit Additional Light in Evening.

Sunlight Saving Today

Sunset today, 5:48; under Central time, 4:48. An extra hour of light to reduce the trafic menace.

BY LLOYD WENDT.

Eastern time not only reduces the trafic hazard and lighting costs in Chicago, but it is an important factor in the reduction of crime. This was shown yesterday by a survey of police department records covering three months of eastern standard time here.

This finding was not unexpected. Ten years ago Chief Morgan Collins of the police department told the city council that summer daylight time would reduce crime since it increased the hours of daylight during the wakeful period for most people. Criminals work in darkness, he pointed out, and the added daylight late in the day decreased their opportunity to prey on the public.

Statistics Support Theory.

A survey of the police records by Otto Brendel, head clerk, and Hans Olson, statistician in the police bureau of criminal information and statistics supported Chief Collins even more forcefully than police officials had expected.

There has been a general reduction of crime in Chicago as a result of increased efficiency in the police department, and for other sociological reasons, but the statistics show that the reduction has been greater in the period given extra daylight by eastern time than in other times of the day or night.

In March and April, between the hours of 5 and 6 p. m. when there was daylight both under central time in 1935 and under eastern time in 1936, the percentage of all robberies for the 24 hours was about the same for both years, 3.2 per cent in 1935, and 3.4 in 1936.

Crime Reduced in Extra Hour.

In 1936, however, under eastern time, there was an extra hour of daylight for the hour between 6 and 7 p. m., which was mostly dark under central time in 1935. In 1935 the per cent of robberies for the hour was 6.5 in 1936; under eastern time it was 3.5, reduced almost one-half.

Between the hours of 7 and 8 p. m., when eastern time still provided some daylight benefit during the spring months in 1936, the reduction was from 9 per cent in 1935, under central time, to 5.2 per cent in 1936.

These facts show, according to police officials, that the public is safer from the criminal element in the late afternoon and early evening because of eastern time. Opponents of the measure have claimed, however, that added darkness on certain winter mornings will increase the danger from criminals for the people who must rise very early.

Few Out in Early Hours.

The statistics show that this is true in a very small measure for an extremely small number of people. Because there are few people on the streets in the early morning hours, there is less crime at that time and any time of the day or night.

In March and April, for example, in 1935, under central time, 1.6 of all robberies occurred between 5 and 6 a. m. In 1936, under eastern time, this figure had increased only .3 of 1 per cent. Only .9 per cent of the total robberies occurred between the hours of 6 and 7 a. m. in both years. There was no increase.

When a .3 of 1 per cent increase for one morning hour is compared with a 3 per cent decrease in one evening hour and a 4 per cent decrease in another evening hour, eastern time can be credited with a total 6.7 per cent decrease in robberies for the hours considered.

The same trend toward less crime in the evening under eastern time is also shown in the first twenty-six days of October under eastern time in 1936, as compared with central time in 1935.

Last year, between the hours of 6 and 7 p. m., 6.3 per cent of all robberies occurred; this year only 3.8 per cent. Robberies between the hours of 7 and 8 p. m. this year showed a reduction of only .9 per cent, since not the entire month is in daylight during that hour, even under eastern time.

For hours between 5 and 7 a. m. in both years there was an increase of .6 per cent in the robberies, but again, as in March and April, the amount of robberies in those morning hours was less than one-sixth that of the evening hours.

Declares It Important Factor.

"Unquestionably eastern time is an important factor in the reduction of crime," said Mr. Brendel after studying the figures. "It seems reasonable that it should be so. Criminals fear daylight, and if each citizen has an extra hour of daylight each day, especially towards evening, when statistics show there is more crime than in early morning, he should be that much safer from criminal activity."

Statistics have shown that eastern time not only reduces crime, but trafic fatalities, lighting costs, and industrial accidents. Opinions of medical men and park experts are that eastern time increases recreational opportunity and benefits health. If Chicago desires to retain these advantages, by keeping the clocks as they are, it can do so by voting "yes" on question 1, "no" on questions 2 and 3 on Nov. 3.

HOW TO VOTE TO RETAIN EASTERN TIME

Question
Shall Chicago have Eastern Standard Time (one hour faster than Central Standard Time) throughout the year.	YES	X
	NO
Shall Chicago have Central Standard Time throughout the year.	YES
	NO	X
Shall Chicago have Central Standard Time with day-light savings time (one hour faster than Central Standard Time) from the last Sunday in April to the last Sunday in September.	YES
	NO	X

Voters going to the polls next Tuesday will be handed a short advisory ballot on time. It will permit a choice from three time systems for the city of Chicago, the one now in effect, eastern time, and two proposed, central time, or summer daylight time.

The board of election commissioners advises voters to mark the ballot on all three proposals. All marks will be tallied, even if a voter should put a cross in each of the six squares. The question receiving the most "Yes" votes and the least "No" votes will win. If there is no conclusive result, the city council will study the returns and take such action on time as appears in conformity with popular will.

Because eastern standard time provides all of the benefits of summer daylight time throughout the year, without changing the clocks and various business schedules twice a year, THE TRIBUNE recommends that Chicagoans vote "Yes" on eastern time, question one; "No" on central time, question two; and "No" on central time with summer daylight time, question three.

Eastern time has been shown to reduce trafic fatalities, lighting costs, industrial accidents, and crime. It increases recreational opportunity and benefits health. Chicago has experienced eastern time and knows the benefits.

End time tampering. Vote "Yes" on question one, "No" on questions two and three on Nov. 3.

LEADER OF BAR SAYS PRESIDENT IS AN AUTOCRAT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Reëlection of President Roosevelt would be another step down in this country's descent from democracy to autocracy, Frederick H. Stinchfield, Minneapolis, president of the American Bar association, said tonight.

Mr. Stinchfield made this statement before he proceeded to address members of the Milwaukee and Wisconsin Bar associations at the Elks' club on problems of the legal profession.

"One of the fundamental principles of our American government is a division of power into three branches, executive, legislative, and judicial," Mr. Stinchfield added. "President Roosevelt sent laws he and his advisers had drawn up to congress with the admonition that they must be enacted. Then the President sent these must laws to another body for interpretation.

"After that he directed his own men to carry these laws into effect. The President thus has assumed and is exercising the power of an autocrat. If he is permitted to continue in power the government of this country will cease to be a democracy."

Mr. Stinchfield also criticized the President's policy of seeking recovery by extravagant spending and the assumption of an enormous debt load. That policy, Mr. Stinchfield said, is contrary to common sense rules of mankind.

AL SMITH CALLS ON LANDON; SAYS HE'S RIGHT MAN

New York Stages Huge Parade for Nominee.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Al Smith and Gov. Alf M. Landon are "as close together as we can be, and are going to stay that way for a long, long time," the Republican presidential nominee tonight declared after a conference with the former Democratic candidate.

The meeting of the two followed a rousing welcome to Mr. Landon by New York City, the votes of which may be the key in Tuesday's election results. There was something almost electrical, something that seemed to presage victory, in that reception.

Al Smith's call was made much earlier than was expected. Landon had been resting after his parade through New York, lighted by flood-lamps, accompanied by fluttering banners, and under a barrage of ticker tape and torn paper.

Confer a Half Hour.

For thirty minutes the two conferred, then both stepped out from Gov. Landon's hotel room and posed for photographers. Landon took Al's hand.

"I'm glad to meet you, sir," Smith said, and added:

"You must know from the size of the demonstration you received that you are welcome here. I want to tell you that you have more friends among Democrats in New York than you have any idea."

Smith said after the conference that it was his first meeting with the Republican candidate. He said he liked him "very much." Asked why, he replied:

"Because he is very clear headed, very much to the point, and very sensible." Asked if he thought Landon was a winner, he said:

"I do not make political predictions."

He's Sure He's Right.

Asked if he thought he was right in turning from his own party to support the Republican, Al answered:

"Sure. I've always known I was right."

Smith will sit on the platform at the Madison Square Garden rally tomorrow night when the Landon campaign will reach its climax. He may be chosen to introduce the nominee. John W. Davis, also a former Democratic candidate, also will be on the platform, bringing the drama of the drive for preservation of a constitutional government and its non-partisan significance to a high point.

Paraded to His Hotel.

Gov. Landon, arriving from New Jersey at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon, was placed at the head of a parade which marched through the uptown district to his hotel. The paths of Gov. Landon and President Roosevelt crossed near this point for the third time in the campaign. A few minutes after Gov. Landon was escorted by crowds that blocked the streets in the section of 42d street and Park avenue, the President rode down Park avenue on his way to the east side.

The Landon parade began at the Pennsylvania station and swung north on Seventh avenue to 34th street, east to 5th avenue and north to 42d street.

At the head rode the mounted police and three men carrying the colors. A truck with floodlights came next and flashed back a blinding flare on throngs that extended from curb to curb all along the line, touching with brilliance the yellow balloons that were sent up by the hundreds as Landon passed, and the storm of torn paper and confetti that came down from the high towers of the district.

People March in Street.

The trafic in this locality was stopped and the people marched in the street by the side of the Landon procession singing "The Battle Hymn of the Republic." It was a political scene of spirit and color. The marchers carried banners and signs of all sorts.

The open car bearing Landon moved slowly in the closely packed streets. The governor stood up, waving his gray hat, showing New York for the first time the charm and strength of his countenance. There were few cries of derision, no booing. The people received him with more genuine enthusiasm than was noted in the Los Angeles downtown crowds.

Prominent in the line of march were the "victims of future taxes," the women's Republican club, and the young men's Republican clubs. The greatest concentration was around the public library. Here was a mass of humanity for two blocks. In the parade that filed past, marchers came from many assembly districts and from many branches of the Republican organization.

New Voters for Landon.

"The 400,000 new voters of New York are for Landon," read one sign.

"Park Roosevelt in Hyde Park," was another. Other signs read:

"Another Lincoln-Landon."

"The New Deal is dead—long live Landon."

"Al Smith is for Landon."

"From the Battery to Harlem—all for Landon."

At the Murray Hill hotel, which Gov. Landon chose as his headquarters because he has been going there on occasional visits ever since he was a child, he was met by a citizens' committee including Felix M. Warburg, Mrs. Ogden Reid, Amos R. E. Pinchot, and George V. McLaughlin. The governor had dinner with Miss Theresa Cahill, who was the nurse of his daughter, Peggy Ann, for many years after the death of the first Mrs. Landon.

At Newark, N. J., this morning the governor received a great welcome. He was met on the train this morning by a large delegation of New Jersey Republicans headed by Gov. Harold G. Hoffman, Senator W. Warren Barbour, and former Senator Walter Edge.

Text of Gov. Landon's New Jersey Address Defining Labor Policies of G. O. P.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 28.—(Special.)—The text of Gov. Alf M. Landon's speech here today follows:

"Labor has fairly won many victories in this country. Its greatest triumph has been won not on the field of battle but in the stronghold of public opinion.

"The greatest victory of labor, in my opinion, has been to bring about the general recognition of an important principle. It is that national prosperity depends on labor's receiving an increasing share of the value of everything we produce.

"The truth of this principle is today accepted by the man who hires as well as by the man who toils. It is the foundation of increased production, greater national wealth, higher average purchasing power and a larger measure of happiness for every one.

"Organized labor has been the natural champion of this principle. The father of the American Federation of Labor, Samuel Gompers, was one of its first sponsors. As early as 1899 he declared:

"'I believe that as time goes on the wage earners will continue to become larger sharers per dollar of the wealth produced. I have no fear as to the future of organized labor.'

Sees Growing Movement.

"Since then America has grown, and the organized labor movement has grown along with the nation.

"That conviction of Mr. Gompers has become the conviction of every progressive citizen of this country. The capitalist who employs labor knows that ultimately the success of his enterprise depends on more widely distributed purchasing power. The banker who furnishes credit to the industrialist recognizes that higher wages, shorter hours and a constantly rising standard of living create a greater demand for the output of his client.

"Organized labor has become part and parcel of the framework of this democratic nation. The labor union, as public opinion recognizes, is an instrument of economic progress and national well-being.

"The day when the owner of a business knew personally every man in his employ, and often his family, is virtually gone with the development of vast industrial units. With this rapid growth of large enterprises it is only logical that an instrument like collective bargaining should have been developed for a closer understanding between management and men.

Pledges His Coöperation.

"I would like the workers of America, whether they are organized or unorganized, to understand clearly that their problems are familiar to me; that I myself have worked with my own hands; that I have earned wages, and that I am in deep sympathy with the point of view of the working men and the working women, and eager to coöperate with them.

"For many years I have believed in the necessity for organization as a means of advancing the fortunes of the individual worker, raising his standard of living and giving him the position in the world to which he is entitled.

"It is a fact that the Supreme court of the United States recognizes the right of organized labor, through peaceful methods, to extend organization to labor that is unorganized, that it recognizes the right of peaceful picketing, and generally that the law is on the side of those who as workers are eager to promote their own fortunes and those of their fellow workers in the same or other industries.

Story Needs Interpreting.

"It is an old story that labor has the right to organize and bargain collectively through representatives of its own choosing without interference by employers. But, like many another old story, it needs to be emphasized and applied. When I am President I will see to it that federal laws for the protection of workers are enforced.

"If this right of organized labor has been acquired through great sacrifice, it is all the more valuable because of the lesson of experience it has given us all. Today we know that progress comes through mutual understanding between labor and capital, reached through conferences based on the processes of collective bargaining.

"As Mr. Gompers said, 'From the moment in which workers and employers negotiate and agree upon terms, hours, conditions, and wages, the principle of autocratic domination gives way to the principle of democratic coöperation.' In those words Mr. Gompers stated the American way of meeting the labor problem. It is the truly democratic way. False liberalism and undisguised autocracy follow a different route. They do not bridge the chasm. They widen it. Theirs is the way of war, not of peace.

"Mr. Gompers' great success in the cause of organized labor lay in his genius for recognizing that the situation of the working man in this country is different from that of labor in the old world. In most European nations labor has become a class apart. In America labor always has been merged in the nation as a whole.

Entanglement Denounced.

"Labor in this country has progressed by following the Gompers policy of keeping free from entanglement with any political group. That policy more than anything else is responsible for the steady advance it has made. In the United States real wages have constantly increased, but at the same time labor has retained its freedom. More than that, it has won general recognition of its right to freedom of action.

"We are witnessing in this country today an effort to introduce into the camp of American labor the European system of political alliances which invariably victimizes labor. In trying times leaders always arise who claim they can deliver the labor vote to one political camp or the other. Back in 1904 even Mr. Gompers himself was accused of belonging to this class. The cry was raised: 'Gompers has promised to deliver the labor vote.' Years later when writing the story of his life he made reply. I quote:

"'I knew full well that I could not deliver the labor vote nor did I make any such promise or pretense. It was simply absurd for any one to charge that I had in mind either the desire or the will or the ability to deliver the labor vote.

No Classes in America.

"'To meet that unjust criticism and attack I frequently declared upon the public platform as well as in conferences and writings that I had not the power to deliver the vote of any man. The only vote which I controled was my own.'

"Mr. Gompers spoke truly. No one can deliver the labor vote of America to any one political party. No one can deliver the farm vote of America to any one political party. No one can deliver any other class vote in America to any one political party.

"Why? Because there are no classes in America. We are one nation and one people. We are a nation of individuals and of freemen. As freemen we may differ in our opinions on national affairs. But we are one people however much we may differ.

"That is the unique feature of our American system. Any one who claims to be able to deliver, or strives to deliver, any part of the American people to a political master is betraying the creed of America. Such a person is sowing the seeds of destruction for all of us. He threatens to destroy the one classless nation in a world divided by class hatred and overshadowed by the tragedy of disunion.

"Let us stand in the future, as in the past, a united people, a united nation!

Blasts Security Setup.

"Now, in conclusion I want to discuss another matter of deep concern to labor.

"I have been frankly exposing the inadequacies, the inequalities, the dangers and the disappointments inherent in the compulsory insurance programs of the New Deal. At the same time I have been offered in its stead a practical and a constructive program of real security.

"The present administration claims that the burdens of the social security act fall mainly upon the employers. The real facts are that they fall almost entirely on the workers. They must pay twice; once directly when the tax is deducted from their pay envelopes in increasing amounts until it reaches 3 per cent. They must pay again indirectly in reduced employment, higher prices or lower wages.

"These inevitably must result from the 6 per cent pay roll taxes on their employers, who must pass on these increased costs to the public in one form or another.

Other Flaws Pointed Out.

"I have already pointed out that about half of our workers, those engaged in agriculture, household work, and the like, are excluded from the benefits of the act; that this is the largest tax measure in our history; that the younger workers are forced to carry a disproportionately higher share of the burden than the older workers, and that federal burocrats will check and recheck every pay envelope and every shift of jobs of every man and woman covered by the act.

"I have also shown that the act does not set up a true insurance plan; that the taxes collected are not held in any savings or reserve fund as claimed. Instead they are diverted into government bonds, I. O. U.'s.

"When payments become due they must be currently authorized by congress and newly financed. The act at best is only a promise of the government to raise money at some future time—if it can.

"Meanwhile the proceeds of these taxes in the hands of this administration will be used to meet current deficits and future extravagances. This is not social security. It will create social insecurity.

What Republicans Offer.

"On the other hand, we Republicans have pledged ourselves to provide assistance to the needy, blind, and crippled, to foster the promotion of child welfare and the improvement of the public health service.

"Our platform proposes to encourage adoption by the states of honest and practical programs of unemployment insurance. This position is taken because all past experience abroad with this type of insurance has been a bitter disappointment. Practically every plan has broken down after a few months in the face of a depression of any duration.

"The only real reserve to meet prolonged unemployment is sound government credit based upon a balanced budget and a low national debt. These facilitate necessary borrowing in time of need.

"We Republicans further pledge ourselves to provide every American citizen over 65 with the supplementary payment necessary to give a minimum income sufficient to protect him or her from want. This is a genuine old age pension plan which, I have always believed, should not be based on the pauper's oath, although this oath may be required under the present social security act.

On Pay as You go Basis.

"Our plan of federal grants-in-aid by the states will be on a pay as you go basis. The necessary funds will be raised by means of special tax, directly levied and widely distributed. For only if every one bears his just share can we hope to prevent the plan being used for political purposes.

"Our program contemplates administration by the states on a nonpolitical basis in order to end centralized control in Washington.

"My criticism of the present act is not that its purpose is bad. It is that this act will involve a cruel disappointment for those of our people least able to bear the shock of disappointment.

"To these—our old people and our workers struggling for better condition—I will not promise the moon. I promise only what I know can be performed: Economy, a living pension and such security as can be provided by a generous people."

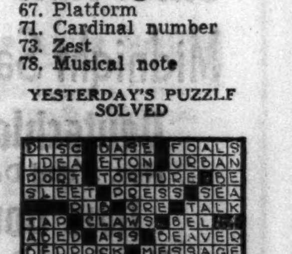
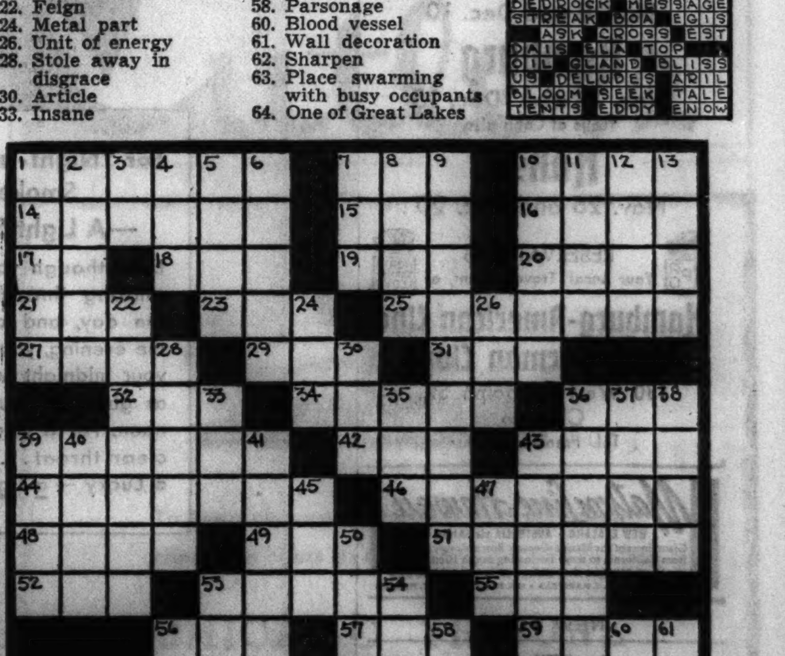
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED





Moving Forward

Marshall Field & Company presents here each day observations and opinions, intended to be of interest and value to those it seeks to serve.

PIXILATED

By CALEB

A RECENT, extremely popular picture introduced a new word to the public. That word was pixilated. Many readers will recall the court room scene in which two old ladies pointed out a pixilated man—a man "touched" by the pixies, or goblins.

And it developed that in the opinion of the two old souls, every one in their village was pixilated but themselves.

Somehow, the world is like that. Every one is pixilated but ourselves. The proverbial Quaker story is to the same effect.

The queer things we do ourselves are legitimate enough, but the queer things other people do are cause for wonder and possibly contempt. The man who carries flowers to his office wonders why a neighbor is so silly as to carry a camera around.

A lady I know who won't spend a dollar for a book will spend two dollars for an odd fish any time she hears of one she doesn't have. She thinks her husband "queer" because he is devoted to an Irish setter.

I know a busy Loop man who keeps his watch forty-five minutes fast—so he can be sure of being on time when he's late. Pixies are responsible. He's slightly "touched"—of course.

A neighbor of ours who never has time to darn socks has never failed to accept an invitation for any kind of jaunt or party on a minute's notice. I know a lady who tips hair dressers fifty cents who won't tip a taxi driver five cents on a dollar ride. Of course, she's pixilated.

My personal idiosyncrasies, however, have nothing to do with pixies or goblins. They're simply expressions of personal taste and freedom. I like to swim or take walks in a hard, warm rain. I dislike door slammers, slow walkers, middle-of-the-road drivers, and policemen who yell when talking would do.

We are all pixilated—those of us the most who think others are.

In this store, we are entirely sympathetic with these innumerable "touched" souls we know, who have decided tastes and ideas about many things. Indeed, we cater to them and their tastes. They make merchandising interesting. We have all the understanding in the world for the woman who adores "modern"—and we equally understand the woman who dotes on Victorian—and feels antique and Georgian things are stodgy. We have people here who can be enthusiastic with the first customer, and others with the second.

If there weren't personal ideas and preferences and tastes among you—honest differences of opinion as to what's right and good and attractive and worth while—our business might become far less fascinating to us.

IOWA CANVASSES REVEAL GROWING SURGE TO LANDON

Farm Vote Swing Against New Deal Reported.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Davenport, Ia., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Chief problems in the battle for Iowa's 11 electoral votes are the tenant farmers, unorganized labor in cities with industries and the "silent vote" which refuses to indicate in the many precinct and county canvasses how it will vote Nov. 3.

Along the Mississippi in Democratic river counties, indications are that normal Democratic majorities may be reduced considerably. Farm owners in general are reported to have swung against the New Deal. So have many of the tenant farmers, but in the main it is the tenant on whom the Democrats are counting for the largest part of their farm vote.

A report just out shows that of Iowa's 214,000 farms reporting 84,000 are operated by full owners and 23,000 by part owners, while 1,500 are operated by managers and 107,000 by tenants.

G. O. P. Looks to Farms.

In the voting, approximately 45 per cent of the ballots are rural and 55 per cent urban. The Republicans count their great strength to be on the farms and in the smaller towns and cities where sentiment reflects that of the farmers.

Republicans and Democrats alike speak of three waves of sentiment in recent weeks. Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas swept up with his Des Moines speech, and President Roosevelt's appearance in the state swung him up on the wave, but in the last ten days Republican canvassers report the surge has been towards Landon and is growing as shown in various polls.

In the larger cities the emphasis thrown by the G. O. P. on the wage tax which is to be extracted from pay envelopes beginning Jan. 1, 1937, appears to be demonstrating weight among the industrial workers, with whom President Roosevelt has been strong.

See Shift in Sentiment.

In Davenport in the last week more sunflowers have been seen. In Waterloo, where workers in the tractor plant, the packing plant and the railroad shop have been preponderantly for Roosevelt and the New Deal, Republicans declare sentiment appears to be changing somewhat.

With stress thrown on the wage tax and on importation of meats and corn from competing nations, some of the Waterloo workers who have been wearing the Roosevelt ear of corn badge are reported to have added the word "Argentine" to it and have put on sunflowers.

From the platform charges have been made, as in other states, that pressure is being brought by New Dealers on PWA workers, and that with "politics in relief" the expenditures on WPA have been $11,975,000. Easy money also has been pumped in by PWA. From June 16, 1933, to June 16, 1936, 286 grants were made in 88 Iowa counties. Total cost of the projects was $29,636,136, and the amount actually spent up to that time was $7,094,000.

Fears Rise Over Debt.

Added to the 93 million dollars of rental and benefit payments to farmers on the corn-hog program, and the CCC camps, and the soil conservation checks which are being awaited, it makes over 116 millions for Iowa.

In the countryside and the hamlets where the farmers, while accepting the checks with thanks, are now viewing the tremendous federal debt as a mortgage on their future earnings, the WPA "boondoggling" also has been reported as a cause of a swing from the New Deal.

In Dubuque county, Democratic stronghold, the normal Democratic majority is expected by Republicans to be cut in half. Here the issue of communism and fascism is said to be of great weight. With events in Spain and Mexico in their minds, the followers of the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin have grown in numbers.

Landon Strong in South.

In Washington county, home of Smith Wildman Brookhart, former senator, now New Dealer, Republicans report one of the most notable swings in the state. Cedar county, seat of the cattle war over tuberculosis some time ago, shows strength for William Lemke, his candidacy being supported by the farm union.

In the southern half of Iowa, the four south tiers of counties, the estimates of Republicans are that Landon will roll up a lead of 50,000, not including Des Moines.

It is the northwest of Iowa, however, that Republicans regard as their hardest problem. As in years past, it is the most radical part of the state, the area where Brookhart used to run strong. This time Roosevelt is expected by both sides to carry the Eighth and Ninth congressional districts.

Lemke May Be Factor.

Lemke may cut in, although scouts report he does not appear to be hitting much of a gait. Lemke is expected by some to roll up a sizable vote in Plymouth county in the northwest, where some years ago the foreclosure of farm mortgages led to threats to string up Judge C. C. Bradley of Le Mars.

As Republicans view it in the light of precinct canvasses and other polls, the New Deal vote in the northwest will go to Roosevelt by smaller margins than four years ago.

On both sides, the general feeling is that Iowa will be rather close, unless the large size of the "silent" vote presages a landslide either way. In 1932 the Roosevelt plurality was 184,000. A changeof 92,000 votes would turn it around, and Republicans are strongly counting on the traditional Republicanism of Iowa.

State House Scandals Aired.

On state officers, the Democratic ticket is generally fancied to be weaker than Roosevelt.

Verne Marshall, editor of the Cedar Rapids Gazette, is on the air at night pouring it on to the Democrats for the state house scandals. His paper this year won the Pulitzer prize for the most disinterested and meritorious public service of an American newspaper in 1935 with its campaign in Iowa. The liquor control board, the slot machine racket, and the investigations at Sioux City are being recited in detail by Editor Marshall, whose radio speeches are rated by Republicans as the most effective in their state campaign.

NOTES OF THE CAMPAIGN

Rockford college students at Rockford, Ill., gave Gov. Alf M. Landon and Col. Frank Knox a 2 to 1 victory over President Roosevelt and Vice President Garner in a mock election yesterday. The Republican ticket received 181 votes, while the Democrats polled but 91. Wayland Brooks received 176 votes and Gov. Horner 100 in the state gubernatorial race.

A group of twenty-five, headed by John E. Traeger Sr., president of the Cook county jury commission, has formed a committee of German-American citizens to assist in State's Attorney Courtney's campaign for reelection.

Gov. Horner yesterday advised the Chicago Dental society that he is not in favor of any legislation "in the form of compulsory health insurance which would tend to detract from the efficiency, progress, or ethics of any of the health professions such as medicine and dentistry." The dental society's legislative committee had asked his views.

Gov. Horner will be the club guest at the vocal festival to be held by the "Blue Devils" at the Morrison hotel Saturday night. The organization was formed in 1930 to foster a better understanding between the United States and France. Rene Weiller, consul general for France in Chicago, is expected to attend the festival.

The young people of the country should be thankful for Gov. Landon, a "practical idealist," who will not allow their heritage to be frittered away and destroyed. Arthur A. Ballantine, undersecretary of the treasury in the Hoover administration, brought this message last night to 300 persons in Mandel hall at a meeting sponsored by the University of Chicago Young Republican club.

Twelve hundred girls will invade the loop Saturday with 90,000 buttons to distribute for Gov. Horner, his headquarters announced yesterday. The girls are members of the Horner Young People's organization.

William Busse, Republican nominee for recorder of deeds has been indorsed by the Lithuanian Republican club of Illinois, according to Anthony A. Slakis, president.

Harry S. Ditchburne, Republican nominee for state's attorney, has been indorsed by the Churchmen's Brotherhood, an organization with 56,000 members in Chicago.

O IS FOR OTTO

Everybody laughed at Otto,
Always absolutely blotto.
Buying nameless drinks in haste,
He gulped them down to kill the taste.
He thus missed half the fun in life,
And what is more, annoyed his wife.
"I do not love you when you're blotto,"
Said his wife. "Try Otard, Otto".
Otto did, and thanks to her
He's now a temperate connoisseur.

Unique distinction for a great Brandy!

The grapes of the tiny Cognac region yield a rich and distinctive brandy. And of these, only OTARD is bottled at the historic Chateau de Cognac. This distinction is unique as the flavor and aroma of OTARD itself!

ROOSEVELT BIDS FOR SUPPORT OF N. Y. ALIEN BORN

Dangles More Easy Money as Bait for Votes.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
(Picture on back page.)

New York, Oct. 28.—[Special.]—East Side, West Side, All Around the Town, President Roosevelt flashed his teeth and waved his campaign hat today in an effort to promote New Deal strength in this city toward capture of New York's pivotal 47 electoral votes next Tuesday.

The brunt of his vote wooing came in a motor parade in three boroughs, a speech at the celebration of the 50th birthday of the statue of liberty and another at Roosevelt park in the lower east side. Both prepared speeches were attuned to the ears of the country's foreign born citizens.

Facing the towering symbolic statue, he praised the contribution of the foreign born in the making of the country and urged rededication to peace and liberty which the French gift to this nation symbolizes.

Pledges More "Easy Money."

At the park he promised more easy money to ease the lives of those "who have come here of late."

As President Roosevelt returned to Manhattan from under the shadow of the Goddess of Liberty, his Republican opponent, Gov. Alf. M. Landon, emerged from the Pennsylvania station for his last invasion of the city.

Roosevelt showed himself to more than a million New Yorkers in the boroughs of Richmond, Brooklyn, and Manhattan in riding to a tumult of shouts and cheers. But only a small proportion of the New Yorkers were voters.

His path was thronged with children freed from classrooms to see a President pass. Only a few thousand oldsters lined the sidewalks until Mr. Roosevelt made a carefully timed entrance into the business section during the noon hour.

President Smiles at Boos.

In the ride through the financial section—the President's first since his inauguration—boos mingled with the cheers at Wall street. These brought wreaths of smiles to the President and his followers because, in their opinion the boos served to heighten the New Deal's class against class issue.

"It couldn't have been better if Jim Farley had hired booers," one member of the official family rejoiced.

Mr. Roosevelt began his visit to whoop up sentiment in the party's stronghold by leaving his special at Bayonne, N. J., at 9:30 a. m. The town—one of the strongholds of Frank Hague, Democratic czar of industrial New Jersey, was festooned with bunting so that it looked like Milton and Oak streets, during the fiesta for St. Rocco.

Met by Gov. Lehman.

After a few words over the amplifying system of his private car, the President entered his motor car for Staten Island. En route at the New York line he dropped Hague and picked up Gov. Herbert H. Lehman of New York, whom he hopes will bring the New Deal votes in his quest for reëlection.

The caravan raced through Staten Island and ferried to Brooklyn to participate in the laying of a corner stone of Brooklyn college, a PWA project, then continued on to Williamsburg bridge for a fleeting inspection of a housing project, and ferried to Governor's Island, army corps headquarters, for lunch with Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, corps commander.

After lunch Mr. Roosevelt ferried to Bedloe's Island for the ceremony beneath the harbor guardian. En route he slipped his campaign hat under his seat and snapped out a shining silk topper, to give evidence that his appearance was "nonpolitical."

Saluted by War Craft.

In the short sea journey the ferry Murray Hill was saluted by war craft in the harbor as she tooted proudly in honor of her distinguished passenger. Crews of destroyers and cruisers lined the rail under gay signal flags to salute.

The statue ceremony included addresses by Ambassador De Laboulaye, grandson of the Frenchman who conceived the French gift. President Le Brun of France addressed the gathering by radio from Paris.

As army and navy planes droned overhead and vessels zigzagged through the harbor Mr. Roosevelt urged a broadening of the symbolism of the green statue so that "to the message of liberty which America sends to the world must be added her message of peace."

Appeals to "Common Man."

The speech was studded with the phrase "common man" and the word "liberty." The President's thesis was that the foreign born citizen was here given "a second chance—a chance to create a new world after he had almost spoiled an old one."

At the conclusion of the ceremony the President again boarded the Murray Hill for Manhattan, where he motored to the park named in honor of his mother. There in the heart of the east side many in his audience were foreign born citizens.

Rewording the theme of his statue of liberty address, he went on to state his belief that the newer citizens had discharged their obligations to American born citizens "better than we have discharged our obligations to them." He cited, for example, failure to work out an adequate housing program.

Favors Better Housing.

"As a matter of fact," he said, "we have, for too long, neglected the housing problem for all our lower income groups. We have spent large sums of money on parks, on highways, on bridges, on museums, and for other projects of civic betterment.

"For the most part, that was money well spent. But we have not yet began adequately to spend money in order to help the families in the overcrowded sections of our cities to live as American citizens have a right to live."

The President recalled that the administration failed to put through a housing act at the last session of congress and concluded: "We who believe in housing have not yet been defeated. I am confident that the next congress will start us on our way with a sound housing policy.

"We shall certainly get it if on Nov. 3 you vote to send to Washington the kind of government which I am confident you want—a government which will continue to work for security of the home, for security of jobs, for security of savings, and for better homes in every part of the nation."

Rests at His Town House.

From the park Mr. Roosevelt drove to his 65th street town house, where he is to remain until about midnight, when he will reboard his special train for a one day foray into Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Delaware.

The special leaves New York at 2 o'clock tomorrow morning for Wilkesbarre and Harrisburg, Pa., where brief addresses will be given. The President will visit Philadelphia, but make no speech, as he is to motor to Camden, N. J., for another impromptu address.

TEXT OF PRESIDENT'S SPEECH AT STATUE OF LIBERTY

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(Special.)—President Roosevelt's speech at the 50th anniversary celebration at the Statue of Liberty today follows:

"Fifty years ago our old neighbor and friend from across the sea gave us this monument to stand at the principal eastern gateway to the new world. Grover Cleveland, president of the United States, accepted this gift with the pledge that 'we will not forget that liberty has here made her home; nor shall her chosen altar be neglected.'

"During those fifty years that covenant between ourselves and our most cherished convictions has not been broken.

Traces Rise of Freedom.

"Four hundred years ago, in Europe as well as in Asia, there was little hope of liberty for the average men of courage and good will. The ambitions of a ruling class and the times alike conspired against liberty of conscience, liberty of speech, liberty of the person, liberty of economic opportunity. Wars, dynastic and religious, had exhausted both the substance and the tolerance of the old world. There was neither economic nor political liberty—nor any hope for either.

"Then came one of the great ironies of history. Rulers needed to find gold to pay their armies and increase their power over the common men. The seamen they sent to find that gold found instead the way of escape for the common man from those rulers. What they found over the western horizon was not the silk and jewels of Cathay, but mankind's second chance—a chance to create a new world after he had almost spoiled an old one.

Time Set By Providence.

"And the Almighty seems purposefully to have withheld that second chance until the time when men would most need and appreciate liberty, the time when men would be enlightened enough to establish it on foundations sound enough to maintain it.

"For over three centuries, a steady stream of men, women and children followed the beacon of liberty which this light symbolizes. They brought to us strength and moral fibre developed in a civilization centuries old but fired anew by the dream of a better life in America. They brought to one new country the cultures of a hundred old ones.

"It has not been sufficiently emphasized in the teaching of our history that the overwhelming majority of those who came from the nations of the old world to our American shores were not the laggards, not the timorous, not the failures. They were men and women who had the supreme courage to strike out for themselves, to abandon language and relatives—to start at the bottom without influence, without money, and without knowledge of life in a very young civilization.

Repeats '49 Maxim.

"We can say for all America what the Californians say for the forty-niners, 'the cowards never started and the weak died by the way.'

"Perhaps providence did prepare this American continent to be a place of the second chance. Certainly millions of men and women have made it that. They adopted this homeland because in this land they found a home in which the things they most desired could be theirs—freedom of opportunity, freedom of thought, freedom to worship God. Here they found life because here there was freedom to live.

"It is the memory of all these eager seeking millions that makes this one of America's places of great romance. Looking down this great harbor, I like to think of the countless number of inbound vessels that have made this port. I like to think of the men and women who—with the break of dawn off Sandy Hook—have strained their eyes to the west for a first glimpse of the new world.

Many of Humble Origin.

"They came to us—most of them—in steerage. But they, in their humble quarters, saw things in these strange horizons which were denied to the eyes of those few who traveled in greater luxury.

"They came to us speaking many tongues—but a single language, the universal language of human aspiration.

"How well their hopes were justified is proved by the record of what they achieved. They not only found freedom in the new world, but by their effort and devotion they made the new world's freedom safer, richer, more far reaching, more capable of growth.

"Within this present generation, that stream from abroad has largely stopped. We have within our shores today the materials out of which we shall continue to build an even better home for liberty.

"We take satisfaction in the thought that those who have left their native land to join us may still retain here their affection for some things left behind—old customs, old language, old friends.

Faces a Common Destiny.

"Looking to the future, they wisely choose that their children shall live in the new language and in the new customs of this new people. And those children more and more realize their common destiny in America. That is true whether their forbears came past this place eight generations ago or only one.

"The realization that we are all bound together by hope of a common future rather than by reverence for a common past has helped us to build upon this continent a unity unapproached in any similar area or population in the whole world. For all our millions of square miles, for all our millions of people there is a unity in language and speech, in law and in economics, in education, and in general purpose which nowhere finds its match.

"It was the hope of those who gave us this statue and the hope of the American people in receiving it that the Goddess of Liberty and the Goddess of Peace were the same.

Unity in Democracy.

"The grandfather of my old friend, the French ambassador, and those who helped him make this gift possible, were citizens of a great sister republic established on the principle of the democratic form of government. Citizens of all democracies unite in their desire for peace. Grover Cleveland recognized this unity on this spot 50 years ago. He suggested that liberty enlightening the world would extend her rays from these shores to every other nation.

"Today the symbolism should be broadened. To the message of liberty, which America sends to all the world, must be added her message of peace.

"Even in times as troubled and uncertain as these, I still hold to the faith that a better civilization than any we have known is in store for America and by our example, perhaps, for the world.

Promises Fulfilled.

"Here destiny seems to have taken a long look. Into this continental reservoir there has been poured untold and untapped wealth of human resources. Out of that reservoir—out of the melting pot—the rich promise which the new world held out to those who came to it from many lands is finding fulfillment.

"The richness of the promise has not run out. If we keep the faith for our day as those who came before us kept the faith for theirs, then you and I can smile with confidence into the future.

"It is fitting, therefore, that this should be a service of rededication to the liberty and the peace which this statue symbolizes.

Rededicated to Liberty, Peace.

"Liberty and peace are living things. In each generation—if they are to be maintained—they must be guarded and vitalized anew.

"We do only a small part of our duty to America when we glory in the great past. Patriotism that stops with that is a too-easy patriotism—a patriotism out of step with the patriots. For each generation the more patriotic part is to carry forward American freedom and American peace by making them living facts in a living present.

"To that we can, we do, rededicate ourselves."

6,216,438 Are Registered in New York; Record Set

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Complete official figures compiled by the Associated Press disclosed today 6,216,438 registered voters in New York state, an increase of 16 per cent, an all-time record. The highest previous total was 5,350,822 registered in 1932. More than 500,000 more voters registered in New York City than in any previous year for a total registration of 2,899,123. Upstate the figures were 3,317,315 against 3,011,205 in 1932.

LANDON PASSES ROOSEVELT—ON PARK AVENUE, N.Y.

New York, Oct. 28.—[Special.]—The political paths of President Roosevelt and Gov. Alf M. Landon crossed on Park avenue at dusk today as this politically feverish city turned out to play host to the rival candidates for the White House.

Smack into a Landon gathering in front of the Murray Hill hotel as G. O. P. bands blared away with "Oh, Susanna" and sunflowers waved in the twilight came the Roosevelt entourage winding up the day long New Deal tour of the city.

The Roosevelt smile, which had beamed during the day from Governor's Island, through Brooklyn, at the Statue of Liberty, in the financial district and in the heart of the west side, broadened into a grin. The battered campaign hat came off for another lusty wave. The Landon bands roared the louder. The partisan shouts met in mid avenue.

A moment later the open car bearing the President, with Mayor F. H. La Guardia and Gov. Herbert Lehman, swung quickly up the ramp at the Grand Central terminal.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, lumbago, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

RACIAL LEADERS TELL WHY THEY FLOCK TO LANDON

Fight to Keep European Tyranny Out of U. S.

Members of various racial and foreign language groups are among the most ardent opponents of the New Deal in Chicago.

Outstanding men in these groups—none of them professional politicians—made it clear yesterday in a series of interviews that they want no more of the reckless spending, regimentation and interference with personal liberties and private property that have marked the Roosevelt administration.

Hold Landon Success Vital.

All of them agreed that the election of Gov. Alf M. Landon is essential for the salvation of America. Excerpts from some of the interviews follow:

SALMON O. LEVINSON, 4049 Lake Park avenue, lawyer—"The New Deal's greed for power tends to undermine and destroy our representative government. It would make a mere 'rubber stamp' of the congress. That destruction of parliamentary authority is always the first step of a Hitler. It is the beginning of individualistic, autocratic government. I also am opposed to the present administration's unheard of extravagance. In the name of starvation it has squandered enough money to feed the world. And talking of money—it has choked the banks with government bonds that are quasi-fiat money because they are not redeemable in gold or anything else. They are, in effect, mere promissory notes."

Fears a Godless Society.

THE REV. L. K. WILLIAMS, colored, pastor of the Olivet Baptist church, 3101 South Park way: "My chief charges against the New Deal are that it has corrupted free and independent suffrage and that it is seeking to build up a Godless society—both steps toward dictatorship. Relief rollers are afraid to announce their political views in public for fear that they may lose the little aid that is granted them. This New Deal is an insiduous mixture of communism and socialism. I believe that the American Negro needs to be emancipated from this thralldom as he was from slavery by Abraham Lincoln. And I believe, too, that the Republican party offers us a new Lincoln in Gov. Landon."

Opposes New Deal Meddling.

JOSEPH V. LA MANTIA, Italian, 7416 Indiana avenue, head of a large commission house in the South Water market: "The meddling policies of the present administration in Washington are not a good thing for the American citizen, be he a worker or a business man. I want to see an end to all that. And I am sure that most of the other citizens of Chicago who are of Italian extraction feel the same way. I am glad to support the candidacy of Gov. Landon—and that of C. Wayland Brooks for governor, too—because I believe that these men stand for real Americanism. They have fought for those policies and traditions which have made our country the most successful in the world."

JOHN RONASZKIEWICZ, Polish, 4019 Wellington avenue, a former banker and president of the Polish National Alliance: "I have been a Republican for 40 years, but if I had not been, the New Deal would have made me one. When it comes to politics, I cannot speak for my organization, but I can tell you that we Poles all believe that a nation, like a business or a family, should be kept on a solvent basis. We favor saving, not spending. That's why I say that the best thing that can happen for this country is the election of Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas as its next President."

Fear of Communism.

PAUL DEMOS, Greek, 1434 Estes avenue, lawyer and one of the four lay members of the supreme council of the Greek Orthodox archdiocese: "Minorities are always the greatest sufferers under communism. And the New Deal is headed straight for communism, if it isn't there already. The President has violated every pledge that he made in 1932. His schemes for the centralization of power are an attempt to change the form of our government. His administration has interfered in our homes and our business with utter disregard for the constitution. And the present relief policies have enslaved millions. They are creating a pauper class."

PROF. P. P. HAENSEL, Russian, professor of economics at Northwestern university: "We Russians, who have lost our fatherland, who have endured the suffering, hardships and humiliation following the radical schemes of the Russian 'New Dealers,' and we, who have found in this great America, our new motherland, the opportunity to work and live comfortably, we feel that it is our obligation and our duty to enlist in the ranks of the Republicans, the creators of this great country, and to help their cause to dislocate the New Dealers."

ANTON OLSZEWSKI, Lithuanian, 3249 South Halsted street, retired publisher of the first Lithuanian paper in Chicago and a former banker and real estate broker: "I am now 74 years old. I have been in this country for a long time. I have helped the people who came here from Lithuania to build up their community in Chicago. This new land has been good to us, and we have prospered. But never did I expect to see such a spending orgy as I have witnessed in my old age. The present administration in Washington is piling up debts at such a rate that if it is continued in power even this rich country will never be able to pay them. Gov. Landon will put an end to that. That's why I am for him."

PETER B. NELSON, Danish, 3800 Lake Shore drive lawyer and former mayor of Racine, Wis.: "The New Deal with its elements of dictatorship and burocracy is communism in its early stages. Its laws, the NRA and the AAA, brought disaster, and only their death at the hands of the Supreme court again restored the confidence necessary to start us on the road to recovery. To kill millions of pigs and cattle, to burn wheat and grain where children were crying for bread, to waste billions of dollars when men and women were economizing was inhuman and senseless. The time to kill the communistic snake is now."

SOVIET YOUTH TO MAKE 2,000 MILE GAS MASK MARCH

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

MOSCOW, Oct. 28.—A relay march in gas masks for more than 2,000 miles along the border of European Russia was announced today by Osoaviakhim, the civilian defense organization. Its purpose will be to check up on anti-aircraft and gas defenses in regions most likely to be attacked and to make the populace air and gas defense conscious.

Thousands of youths who have been trained in such defense tactics by Osoaviakhim will take part. Detachments of 50 to 200 youths will cover each leg of the march and then return homeward. As each group approaches a border town, air and gas alarm signals will be sounded, and thousands of local residents will be mobilized in gas masks and will accompany the regular marchers part of the way.

The march will begin at Baku on the Caspian sea, skirt the Persian border through Armenia, and then move northwest through the Caucasus, the Crimea, Odessa, Kieff, and Minsk, ending at Leningrad. It is scheduled to begin in February and end in July.

movement. He scuttled the Democratic party in Minnesota by causing the Democratic candidates for governor and senator to withdraw in favor of the Farmer-Labor candidates. He hamstrung the Democratic party in Wisconsin by transferring his favor to the La Follettes and their socialistic Farmer-Labor Progressive federation.

He thrust aside the regular Democratic candidate for senator, Terry Carpenter, in Nebraska and urged the reëlection of Senator George W. Norris, father of the socialistic TVA. He inspired the formation of the American Labor party in New York, in which radicals of all shades are being mobilized for his reëlection and whicn is viewed by the communists as the corner stone of the Farmer-Labor National party of 1940.

The Daily Worker, official organ of the Communist party, is filled with accounts of the organization of Farmer-Labor parties in various states.

"A National Farmer-Labor party will be in the making in this election," said a Daily Worker editorial today.

Final Push Is Urged.

"There is no doubt that with a final push in the last week of the campaign many of these candidates can be elected.

"Here is an opportunity for labor's Nonpartisan league. Though this organization is campaigning for President Roosevelt (and for Gov. Lehman in New York state), many of its leaders have indicated that they hope to build it into a genuine movement for independent political action.

"There is no better way of doing this than for Labor's Non-Partisan league to support the local and state Farmer-Labor candidates, and help swing as many trade unions as possible behind these candidates.

"In this way a firm foundation will be laid for launching a national movement after the elections."

William Z. Foster, chairman of the communist party, says that "it is the Republican party that carries the banner of the hosts of reaction," that "behind Landon stands every name that is hateful to the American people—Wall street and the chamber of commerce, Morgan, du Pont, and Hearst—the Klan and the Black Legion."

Tells Communists' Aims.

"The communist party," Foster continued, "is in this campaign to promote the unity of the working people and to defeat reaction in the persons of Landon, Hearst and the Liberty leaguers.

"It is campaigning to build the Farmer-Labor party. It is seeking to enroll the people of America to the cause of socialism. It points to the tremendous resources of this country which breathe promise of a life of plenty, but actually cast a shadow of exploitation and misery over the majority of the people. The communist party points ahead to that day when the vast majority of the people will be ready to put these resources to work for the benefit of mankind through the establishment of a great socialist commonwealth in America with abundance and enduring happiness for all."

The communist party issues a publibation, entitled "Twentieth Century Americanism," which is filled with abuse of Landon. It says that the election of Landon will usher in Fascism.

Make Attack on Landon.

Its caption of a picture of Landon reads:

"Hand picked by Fascist Hearst, the Kansan sunflower, Alfred M. Landon. The M. stands for Mossman; Uncle Bill Mossman, Pennsylvania political boss and notorious steel trust lobbyist, is vice president of Jones & Laughlin Steel corporation, which recently fired fourteen workers for joining the union in Aliquippa, Pa."

Communist headquarters exhibited every sign of elation today over the great Roosevelt rally staged at Madison Square Garden yesterday by the American Labor party. The radicals were particularly encouraged by the report of the party treasurer showing that more than 350,000 workingmen had contributed $80,000 to the party fund through union membership assessments. They believe that through the American Labor party 450,000 votes will be recorded in New York for Roosevelt Nov. 3.

Seagram's

Will "Life Begin at 40" for You?

Will you be able to tackle your biggest job between 40 and 50—and see it through? Your best guarantee of vigor in the "Middle Years" is "moderation" now. Train for the future by more sensible eating, drinking and exercise. If you would drink pleasantly and sensibly, choose a whiskey that AGREES with you.

Every man who enjoys whiskey wants fine, rich taste. But when Seagram announced that thorough research had proved Seagram's Crowns "a most wholesome form of whiskey", moderate men for the first time found that there was an important basis for choosing whiskey in addition to "finer taste". That basis is kindness. Your whiskey must agree with you.

From the exhaustive research instituted by the House of Seagram and conducted by an eminent group of impartial investigators, you now know that the "crown for kindness" rightfully belongs to Seagram's Crown Whiskies—because of the special Seagram method of blending them.

When you choose Seagram's Crowns at the bar, or when you serve them at home, you will find them kind, gentle and considerate. You are sure of getting finer taste, and your guests will compliment your good judgment. Won't you try them?

COURTNEY AND MAYOR PLEDGE HONEST VOTING

Promise Steps to Prevent Election Fraud.

State's Attorney Courtney and Mayor Kelly, who control the principal law enforcement agencies upon which depend the orderliness and the honesty of the election next Tuesday, said yesterday that they will do everything in their power to prevent and to punish fraud and violence in connection with the voting.

Mr. Courtney issued a statement on the subject. It said:

"It is a matter of great importance to all concerned that the election of next Tuesday be conducted free of fraud, violence and intimidation.

Prosecutor to Coöperate.

"With this in mind, the state's attorney's office will have men assigned under Capt. Gilbert and Capt. Schoemaker in various wards in the city to coöperate with the police department in protecting and safeguarding the polls.

"Also, assistant state's attorneys now assigned to the vote fraud department will coöperate with the county judge and the board of election commissioners to take prompt action in all cases where irregularities in the polling places are reported. These assistants have instructions to immediately institute proceedings to prosecute all offenders."

Statement from the Mayor.

Mayor Kelly's statement read:

"Chicago elections have been orderly for several years, and I see no reason to believe that disorder will crop out suddenly now.

"Under this city administration the police department has had explicit orders in connection with every election to enforce the law without fear or favor for anybody and to refrain from partisan activity of any sort.

"The same orders are to be issued for this election, and I have complete confidence that Commissioner Allman and the other officers of the department will see them carried out rigidly. Any infringement of the law will be taken care of promptly and effectively, whoever the offender and whatever his political party.

"The election machinery is in honest and competent hands. While the police department does not carry the primary responsibility for the prevention of fraud, it will act immediately if it is called upon for aid by any of the election officials."

Boy Robber Escapes from Policeman After Hearing

Since his arrest three weeks ago when he and a companion confessed 6 robberies, 46 burglaries, and 100 purse snatchings, Edward [Red] Barrett, 16 years old, 3356 Walnut street, has been held at the Juvenile detention home. Yesterday his case was continued in the Juvenile office until Nov. 16. Returning through a courtway to the Juvenile home, Barrett broke from the grasp of Policeman Edward Huger, ran to the street, jumped on a passing truck, and escaped. His accomplice, Edward Dobrovits is still held.

POLLS WATCHERS WARNED TO KEEP EYES ON BALLOTS

Municipal Judge McKinley Tells His Experience.

Charging that the Cook county Democratic machine is preparing to steal the Nov. 3 election, Municipal Judge Charles F. McKinley yesterday warned Republican watchers that they must not consider their jobs finished when the polls close, but must stay to see that an honest count of the ballots is made and recorded. He spoke before a 5th ward rally held at 5536 Indiana avenue.

Judge McKinley said the judgeship which he won in the 1930 election was stolen from him because watchers did not stay at the polling places to be sure the judges and clerks of election made honest counts. It was not until Aug. 7, 1934, almost four years after the election, that the judge was able to win his election contest.

Election Stolen, He Says.

"My case was a perfect example of how the machine can steal an election," Judge McKinley said. "As a matter of fact, I was elected by a majority of approximately 10,000 votes. The count of the returns, however, showed that I had lost to the late George V. McIntyre, a Democrat, by some 2,365 votes."

A contest was immediately filed by Judge McKinley before County Judge Jarecki, also a Democrat. Hearings were conducted at irregular intervals. Judge McKinley said there were more than 100 postponements in spite of protests and in spite of a section of the general election law which provides that such contests "shall have preference in the order of hearing to all other cases."

Eventually despairing of ever getting a final hearing before Judge Jarecki, Judge McKinley appealed to the Illinois Supreme court for a writ of mandamus to compel the County court to proceed with an immediate hearing.

McKinley Declared Winner.

Following the mandamus action Judge Jarecki began to hear evidence in the contest and in August, 1934, declared Judge McKinley the rightful winner by a margin of 79 votes. There were many other votes which would have increased this number, but the court held there was no need to examine them. Meanwhile McIntyre had died [July 15, 1934], and Judge McKinley immediately was inducted into office.

A year ago Judge McKinley brought suit against the city of Chicago to recover $37,286 in salary which was paid to McIntyre but which McKinley declares was rightfully his. The suit has not come to trial.

"That the story of what a machine can do," said Judge McKinley at yesterday's meeting. "In this election the machine will be trying every trick and fraud known. I don't doubt that they've invented a few new tricks. With all this New Deal money floating around they've had opportunity to work out some new ones."

Levish Freed from Jail.

Joshua Levish, 65 years old, 12 South Canal street, a Republican worker seized last Saturday after he had filed 98 suspect notices against voter registrations in the 27th ward, was released from the county jail yesterday when friends posted a $50 bond. He was charged with disorderly conduct at the instance of Democratic leaders in the ward in order to prevent his appearance before the election board to sustain his challenges.

Homer A. Dodge, chairman of the Cook county division of the Landon-Knox clubs, who is a member of a group of 50 lawyers pledged to aid Republican workers oppressed by the police and courts, said that he is preparing false arrest suits against several policemen and Democratic workers involved in the Levish case.

Adolph Kroch's Daughter Wins Divorce Decree

Mrs. Gretchen Mignon Gregertson, 21 years old, 3240 Lake Shore drive, daughter of Adolph Kroch of the Kroch book stores, was granted a divorce by Judge Oscar F. Nelson in the Superior court yesterday from William N. Gregertson, 27 years old, 7130 Jeffery avenue, owner of a chain of lending libraries. Mrs. Gregertson testified that on Sept. 18, about two months after their marriage, her husband slapped her, and on Oct. 10, the day she left him, he threw a book at her.

GETS 7 YEARS FOR 'BOND AND SHARE' FRAUDS

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Federal Judge E. Marvin Underwood today sentenced Benjamin R. Bradley, president of the defunct American Bond and Share corporation, to seven years in prison for mail fraud.

Bradley pleaded guilty last week to 38 counts of a long list of indictments. Investors in the company lost more than $600,000 when it collapsed early in 1935 and Bradley fled.

He eluded agents for more than 19 months and then walked into the office of District Attorney Lawrence A. Camp, saying he was "tired of being hunted."

During his absence his chief associate, Robert Lee, known as the "Earl of Pelham," was convicted and is serving a three year sentence.

"If ever this vast country is brought under a single government, it will be one of the most extensive corruption, indifferent and incapable of a wholesome care over so wide a spread of surface. This will not be borne, and you will have to choose between reformation and revolution."—Thomas Jefferson to William T. Barry.

MURDERED IN THE COMMUNISTIC SLAUGHTER HOUSE.

James A. Reed of Missouri, distinguished Democratic representative of that state in the United States senate for a long period of service, made the great speech of his brilliant career Tuesday night at the rally of the Volunteers in Chicago. Reed, a lifelong Democrat, who four years ago was campaigning for Mr. Roosevelt with all his vigor, spoke for Landon Tuesday night.

To see plainly the reason for this great Democrat's appearance at a Republican meeting, speaking for the Republican candidate for President, let's turn to a New York scene of the same evening.

"Roosevelt," said Reed in Chicago, "led the Democratic party into the communist slaughter house and there had it murdered."

There in Madison Square Garden was the slaughter house in full operation while the Democratic senator was speaking in Chicago. The Garden held a mobilization of the radicals, socialists, and communists of the Popular Front. They cheered for Roosevelt until they were hoarse. Arthur Henning, who was present, noted the prevalence of foreign languages, indicating the predominance of imported political ideas.

Gov. Lehman and Senator Wagner were there to give their countenance to the gathering, but the speakers who whipped the great crowd into a frenzy were John Lewis, the man who has split the American Federation of Labor in two; David Dubinsky, Mayor La Guardia, Luigi Antionini, and Max Zaritsky. Dubinsky is the American agent who receives and sends money to the Spanish Popular Front government of radicals, communists, socialists, and anarchists. Stalin is sending the same government ship after ship loaded with war material, guns and planes. The people of Europe view with horror the probability of another general war.

Dubinsky is also one of the three collectivist electors on Mr. Roosevelt's ticket in New York. All these Popular Front radicals were savage in their appeals to bitter class hatred, denouncing Gov. Landon and referring to him contemptuously as a headless American with his hat on his collar button, who had overreached his own intelligence when he became governor of a small state.

"A watermelon boiled in a washtub" was John Lewis' description of the Kansas governor, and the mobilized Rooseveltian Popular Fronters in Madison Square Garden squealed with delight at the phrase.

That meeting explains the activities in behalf of Gov. Landon of the most distinguished members of what was the Democratic party before it was led into the communistic slaughter house by Mr. Roosevelt and there murdered. The one howling scene is the reason offered by Smith and Davis, two former presidential nominees of the party; by Ely, Colby, Breckinridge, and tens of thousands of Democrats of the rank and file for their support of Gov. Landon.

They join the Republicans to save this country from Roosevelt, Dubinsky, Lewis, Tugwell, Ickes, Harry Hopkins, Antionini, Zaritsky, Benson, and the Russian-Spanish-Rooseveltian Popular Front which would destroy the free government Americans have known.

American politics never before presented such a spectacle and it never before contained such a danger.

THE MIDWEST BE DAMNED.

From July 1, 1921, to the end of the fiscal year 1936 the revenue received from Panama canal tolls has been seventeen millions less than would be necessary to cover interest at the rate of 3 per cent per annum paid by the United States on money borrowed to construct the canal. As a result no money has been available to permit the setting up of any sum for the ultimate amortization of the people's investment in the canal.

The capital investment under discussion does not include any amounts expended for fortification, military posts, naval bases, and other defense works.

Over a period of seventeen years vessels transiting the canal have paid 59 millions less than tarif tolls due to the defect in the Panama canal act. Of this amount foreign vessels have benefited by over 32 millions, while American ships have benefited to the extent of something less than 27 millions.

If the present inadequate tolls are to be continued on the theory that American shipping must be protected, it will constitute one of the most costly forms of ship subsidy that could be devised.

The above statements are brief highlights of testimony recently submitted by Mr. Arnold Bruckner, assistant controler and legal adviser of the canal governor, and, therefore, must be a true picture of the finances of a government enterprise usually regarded as "the single federal project that is being operated under business principles." The record further demonstrates that governors have been striving to live up to favorable public opinion, but have been prevented from doing so by congressional fiat.

Perhaps the most startling part of the testimony to most of us is the statement that foreign vessels have been subsidized to the extent of 32 millions in order to reduce the tolls paid by American vessels to the extent of 27 millions. To what purpose has the latter subvention been granted? With lower tolls American ships in intercoastal trade can quote lower rates on merchandise moving between Atlantic and Pacific coast states. Not only are the Atlantic coast merchants and manufacturers given an extremely unfair advantage over midwest producers in Pacific coast markets, but western railways are deprived of an opportunity to compete for transcontinental business on equal terms.

Now add to the picture the known fact that many of the boats that have been operated in the intercoastal trade were sold by the government to their present owners at ridiculously low figures and the necessity appears immediate for a middle west association to show congress that the United States consists of something more than two coastal plains.

SOCIAL SECURITY PROVIDED BY A TRUST FUND VIOLATOR.

Mr. Roosevelt's administration has demonstrated clearly that the government is not worthy of confidence as a depository of trust funds to provide against old age. The United States treasury held as trustee 4 billion dollars of gold, which was deposited with it solely to insure the redemption of paper money in the hands of the people. The government repudiated the trust, confiscated the gold, and even wrote up the value of it, referring to the increase as its profit. The gold redemption fund was safe as a trust until a man came to the office of President who believed that it was all right to use the gold for some other purpose. Two billion dollars of the so-called profit on the people's trust fund is now being used to stabilize the money of several foreign countries.

Although the sanctity of a trust had previously been preserved by the American government, there have been many similar violations of trusteeship by other governments. Germany, the only European country with contributory old age pensions to accumulate a substantial reserve, had 2 billion dollars in old age trust funds in its possession at the time of the war. This was completely wiped out in the inflation.

A government, pressed as the Roosevelt administration has been to find money to pay for its excesses, is just the one to offer to take charge of people's funds accumulated for old age. The following, describing an Italian experience, is from a footnote in Vol. IV. of "The Mind and Society," written before 1914 by the celebrated Italian sociologist, Vilfredé Pareto:

"The state is provided with an instrument for having considerable financial resources at its disposal for many years to come—the premiums that will be paid in by the insured, and which will not have to be paid back until many years hence when the policies mature. And then the state will or will not pay them back, according to the way the people then in power happen to feel and according to the surplus available in the budget. That aspect of the situation has not been advertised."

This is the aspect of the wage tax scheme which Mr. Roosevelt also has not advertised. What assurance is there that with another period of unemployment the government would not again violate a trust as a holder of funds by using the pension for relief activity? What would happen to the government's trust funds in the event of war? The problem of providing for the aged is a real one, but its existence should not be made the excuse for a half baked plan, like the Roosevelt wage tax scheme, which creates more problems than it solves—which subjects the aged to risks when they should have security. Mr. Landon is pledged to secure a repeal of the Roosevelt wage tax and to secure the enactment of a sane and workable plan providing for old age pensions.

WAITING FOR THE RETURNS.

The New York legislature now under New Deal party control has just passed an act to keep the polls open until 9 p. m. throughout the state. As Pennsylvania and the big midwestern states close at 6, the results will be known in New York in time to inform the Farley machine whether the electoral votes of New York state are essential to swing the election.

This looks very much as though the New Deal gang in New York wants to find out whether the New York electoral vote will be decisive of the election, in which case it plans to steal as many votes as may be necessary to carry that state.

The gang is afraid to take that chance if Landon is elected, as he can be, without New York.

WHISTLING FOR THE BRIDGE.

In the midst of the tumult and the shouting Ald. Rowan, chairman of the council committee on harbors, wharves, and bridges, has heard an appeal for less noise on the river and has called a conference to consider ways and means of abating this nuisance.

It ought not to be difficult to find them. Whistling for bridge raising is an anachronism in an age of modern communication. Its object is to notify the bridgetender that a boat seeks passage. There are other and better means of communicating in this age of electricity. Signals can be given for the whole trip from the harbor mouth or the point of departure on the out trip direct to each bridgetender by telephone or other device. The blast of a whistle is out of date. It is an injury to the thousands of workers in the neighborhood of the river, and it reaches some of the hotels. It is an unnecessary affliction and should be abolished.

Editorial of the Day

RULED OUT.

[Ottawa, Kas., Herald.]

A newspaper poll of Gov. Landon's classmates at K. U. show they are overwhelmingly for him, and another poll of President Roosevelt's classmates at Harvard reveals the unusual—if not significant—fact that they are three to one for Landon. But both of these polls should be ruled out, under the contention of some poll enthusiasts, because they do not reach the strata of society that really count.

HIS LOGIC!

Sonny sat on the lower step, his face resting in two chubby hands.

"What's the matter, Sonny?" asked a gentleman.

"Nothin', just thinkin'." replied sonny.

"What about?"

"So he will," said Snidders. "He's vurry, vurry affectionate."—Windsor Star.

AUTUMN MIDNIGHT HORSE.

A mount without a saddle—
With silver bridle straps:
I heard the steel shoes paddle
Between my midnight naps.

And now and then a sliver
I felt a hint of shiver—
I who was always brave.

A ghostly, headless rider—
A mist-maid on this steed;
A tiny gnome beside her
With all his magic freed.

They say that I was dreaming;
That I imagined all:
Ah, no! A mane was streaming
Like cobwebs in the fall.

Four fetlocked feet were churning
Like some daft poet's rhymes;
Two mare's eyes, madly burning—
How flesh can creep such times!

Ever since I read in an afternoon paper that description of a heroine, "She was one-third Chinese and two-thirds German," I have been torturing my brain about heredity. Isn't it, or is it, true that one's ancestors came in pairs and multiples of pairs, and that you can't trisect 'em?

The city has at last awakened to the necessity of employing a traffic policeman and the Mayor has given notice to the public that all speed and violations of the traffic laws will be thoroughly enforced. . . . Providence has been kind to the citizens of Belzoni in that no serious accidents have happened, caused by reckless speeding through our city streets by people driving at excessive rates of speed.

If the city will employ a traffic policeman who is not a resident of Belzoni that neither fears God nor loves man, we will probably have some traffic enforcement. Former traffic cops have been a failure.

Does she think to hide your love that seeks me,
When the world is all a-sigh with loving?

SHOCKING WHEATS.

As a constant reader and a gadding Chicagoan, I demand that you do something about the wheat cake situation in my home town. Most of my wretched life is spent traveling in 48 states and five Canadian provinces. In each of these I can steer my hungry chops to at least one lunch counter where even Mr. Rector would grow lyric over the breakfast stacks. But Chicago! The last time there I did extensive research in the Loop, and my stomach still believes (probably) that I am crazy.

In two restaurants I found the breakfast manna done in a manner not downright disgraceful. But in one the dose was homeopathic—the cakes three inches in diameter. In the other the sirup was as watery and not half so sweet as an alderman's speech to his constituents. We demand 'em four to the order, twelve inches in diameter, as thick as a nickel's worth of blotters, with a pint of sirup and a mess of butter. Let us bachelors know where they are, and the hell with the price! Will you save me, or must I marry just to get an edible stack of wheats? El Ericho.

WHEN THE GALL BLADDER MISBEHAVES.

THERE is scarcely a middle aged person who has not had some feeling of discomfort in the region of the gall bladder. This is true particularly of the individual who is a "good feeder" and who exercises but little. Every now and then we see a chap who is fat and 40 who will subconsciously give himself an occasional dig [massage] in this area.

The gall bladder, which is an offshoot from the main outward bound channel of the liver, holds just enough bile in its reservoir to start the process of digestion. As soon as the liver supply becomes adequate the flow from this source ceases.

Because of the close connection between this structure and the ducts of the liver, inflammation can reach the pouch either by traveling along the tubes or via the blood. As a result, we may find a greatly enlarged, pear shaped bladder filled with mucus, pus, or stones.

The most common difficulty is that which is characterized by inflammation—cholecystitis—which is rarely confined to the gall bladder alone. It is due to an infection and the liver channels are nearly always involved. If the irritation is extensive, the liver itself will be included.

Any obstruction or swelling in the main pipe, which leads from the liver to the bowel, may block the normal outflow of bile and thus force its absorption into the blood—the symptom known as jaundice. Liver disease of itself can give rise to this symptom. We can understand also that if the liver is unable to empty its secretion into the intestine it may back up into the gall bladder, thus distending that organ and causing pain.

If anything has occurred that interferes with the normal behavior of the gall pouch there is a feeling of fullness after eating, sometimes nausea and vomiting, loss of appetite, and a distinct dislike for fatty foods. The diagnosis is not difficult as tenderness is easily detected. In addition, by means of the injection of a special dye, an X-ray outline of the region may be obtained. If there is enlargement or greatly thickened walls the condition can be determined accurately.

Stones are found often without evidence of inflammation. In such cases they are usually of the cholesterol type, which means that this particular chemical, which occurs in fat and fatty foods, has existed in too high a concentration in the blood and, therefore, has been precipitated.

When mixed stones are present they indicate a previous infection; that is, enough irritation has existed in the mucous lining to bring about a deposit of some of the mineral matter from the bile. Pigmented stones are observed either with or without previous infection and are occasionally discovered in young children.

The pain of gall stones is due to an effort on the part of the bladder to expel them, as well as to mechanical pressure which they may exert upon its walls. Any one who has experienced this distress can testify as to its intense, colicky character. It starts beneath the ribs on the right side, travels toward the navel, and to the region of the right shoulder.

Those who have a tendency to gall bladder trouble should adopt a cholesterol-free diet. This means the omission of all animal fats, as well as such foods as liver, kidneys, sweetbreads, egg yolk, cream, etc. A large number of patients will be relieved by this plan alone. Overeating should be avoided and those who are overweight should make a decided effort to bring the avoirdupois within the range of the average. High vitamin feeding has been advocated, particularly vitamins A and C, and this may be accomplished through the use of green vegetables, carrots, milk, tomatoes, lemons, and oranges.

Surgery is a recourse that is always available and may be required in the presence of stones or of chronic infection. The operative attack on this part of the body has reached a high standard of excellence.

IODINE.

T. R. writes: Is tincture of iodine applied immediately to a cut or scratch a good disinfectant?

REPLY.

Tincture of iodine is rather generally regarded as a useful antiseptic, though some physicians are opposed to it. The chief objections are: its irritating qualities, the fact that repeated use may cause burns of the skin, and because the alcohol evaporates as the form becomes old and the concentrated solution is capable of causing irritation. I have no personal objection to the occasional use of iodine, but, as a routine antiseptic procedure, soap and water are preferred.

ANGINA PECTORIS.

S. G. writes: Some time ago I read an article on angina pectoris in which inhaling the fumes of some drug was advised. My mother now has angina, and I want to get this information if possible.

REPLY.

The standard remedies for an acute attack are nitroglycerin and amyl nitrite. Trichlorethylene has also been used. These drugs do not cure the condition, but relieve the pain. They should be given only under the direction of a physician.

IT CERTAINLY LOOKS SUSPICIOUS.

Oak Park, Ill., Oct. 25.—Is it true that the polls in New York state are to be held open until 9 p. m. Nov. 3? If so, why? Is it to afford a chance to run in extra New Deal votes in case Gov. Landon appears to be running too far ahead?

Since New York time is far ahead of that in the western parts of the country it looks suspiciously like something is brewing.

Can such action on the part of New York election officials be headed off? If not, why not? Why should one state be privileged to hold longer hours than other states hold in so important an election as this? Why cannot the other states keep the same hours, thus giving all an equal chance? M.

AUTHORITY ABUSED.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—In your excellent editorial, "Authority Abused," you neglected to state that while Father Coughlin was refused the use of Soldiers' field in Grant park communists were allowed by the park board to speak in the same park. Friends, as you state, wishing to escort former Gov. Smith from the station were refused permission to parade on Jackson boulevard. Park Superintendent Donoghue stated that a parade could not be allowed at 10 a. m. on Jackson boulevard as it would cause congestion in that rush hour; 10 a. m. is a nonrush hour. However, during the past four years communists have been permitted to parade each May day [May 1] on Michigan avenue at 5 p. m. in the rush hour, completely tying up trafic in the entire loop district. As you well state, the reasons given for refusal were bogus and the decisions show that official authority was used solely to aid the New Deal. A. F. R.

COMPETITION.

Chicago, Oct. 23.—In order to raise funds for helping the needy at Thanksgiving time the board of education has all the school teachers selling candy to their pupils until Thanksgiving.

Now, while this is a splendid idea to help the poor and the children are contributing [by buying candy from teachers] to a fine cause, what are we school stores to do? How are we to pay our rent if the candy business is being taken away from us for two months? How can we exist?

We do our utmost to coöperate with the board of education by refusing to sell dangerous toys, cigarets, cigars, etc., and handling all supplies the pupils are requested to purchase.

Isn't it possible just to get the kiddies to get donations of old clothes, money, etc.? In fact, the teachers are purchasing mostly quantity candy instead of quality candy. V. B.

HOLDING HANDS.

Delavan, Wis., Oct. 24.—I notice in today's TRIBUNE a "Beg Your Pardon" comment on the picture of King Edward and Mrs. Simpson.

Evidently you had previously printed that they were holding hands, and now you state that this was incorrect and admit that you have been cautioned against picture captions of the king. Which is certainly fair.

However, how can your paper repudiate such a minor statement as this and yet at the same time slander, abuse, damn and make such false accusations as you do against the President of the United States?

You say Roosevelt is a communist, a Red, and a dictator. You absolutely know that these statements are false. Because if he were a dictator your paper or no other paper would be allowed to print this false propaganda!

H. F. MOONEY.

EASTERN TIME.

Chicago, Oct. 26.—Six good reasons pertaining to children's betterment were given in yesterday's TRIBUNE for continuing eastern time in an article quoting Mr. William Johnson, head of Chicago's schools. Too bad the article found place on page 16. It deserved the front page.

I'm asking you to give place to two of his arguments in the Voice: [1] "Children and adults receive 210 more hours of daylight a year under eastern time. These hours come in the afternoon after school, when the children particularly can benefit by them. [2] Children do not go to school in darkness, with the exception of a few high school pupils, who will later in the winter go to school at dawn."

One who has children cannot but feel pleased these days to see an hour of outdoor play added to their day.

A MOTHER.

A MONOPOLY ON PATRIOTISM.

Chicago, Oct. 23.—The Republican subsidized press of the country informs us every day with great alarm of the growing menace of communism, and with great pride in their affected patriotism point the finger of hypocrisy toward our beloved President and yell "Red."

They are of the impression that the Republican party has a monopoly on patriotism and failure to think and feel as they do justifies the charge of radicalism.

If and when this liberty loving country of ours becomes subservient to Moscow [an impossibility], then this sin cannot be charged to our own F. D. R.; quite to the contrary, it will be traced and placed in the laps of the great Republican controled press, who have by their cartoons and editorials, by jibes, innuendo and otherwise, directed at our President, created a disrespect for all government.

And with Franklin D. Roosevelt in the White House what coöperation would Illinois be able to render him in his humanitarian efforts in our behalf if an agent of one of these prejudiced journals were in the statehouse in Springfield?

There is only one answer and that is "vote the straight Democratic ticket."

CHARLES S. WORTH.

FOR THE HARD OF HEARING.

Highland Park, Ill., Oct. 25.—There are a few people in Chicago who are bending every effort to help the lot of the hard of hearing. To us your reprint of McCutcheon's cartoon for Hard of Hearing week means more than we can tell. There is a callousness among the hearing population to deafness. Their cry is that there are too many noises, and it is a blessing to be spared a few. McCutcheon's cartoon shows some of our heart breaks. Many thanks for the reprinting.

Chicago has much to be proud of. We have the coöperation of the moving picture theaters with their wired seats, which are very popular; the telephone company with its amplifiers; but our big stumbling block is the theaters featuring stage productions. Why don't they put in wired seats so we can go to theater? The expense is small. They will repay the theater in a short time by increased patronage. What can we do to wake up theater owners to help Chicago's 300,000 deaf and hard of hearing theater conscious?

MRS. M. CLARENCE GOLDMAN.

GOSPEL.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—One of your contributors suggests in this morning's TRIBUNE that some one call Mr. Roosevelt's attention to the meaning of the word "gospel." Better that some one call your attention to its meaning, Mr. Ericson. "Gospel" is not confined to the meaning of "glad tidings" or "good news," as you believe. In a broader sense gospel is a doctrin of political or social philosophy advocated by its supporters. I ask you then: What's the matter with "gospel of fear"? [Grammatically speaking, of course.]

My! My! You indefatigable Republicans can't content yourselves with assailing Roosevelt the statesman; now it's Roosevelt the grammarian. I should advise your conserving some of that superfluous steam for the next presidential election. You're only wasting it now and your supply may run low in 1940.

CONSTANCE MEREDITH.

REPLY.

Chicago, Oct. 26.—Under the heading "He Sees No Difference," C. Lindstrom takes the Chicago-Cook County Retail Grocers and Butchers association to task for the article which appeared on page 12 of THE CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE, Oct. 8, 1936.

Mr. Lindstrom apparently read only those parts of this article which met with his approval. What he did not give consideration to is the following quotation from that article:

"We do not deny the right of any person or group to buy at the best price available, and as retailers we are perfectly willing to compete with any distributive system which observes the same license and tax basis upon which we operate. But we do object to any system which enjoys special privileges in the form of tax and license exemption in addition to governmental financial backing."

Let C. L. read this, which answers his question.

M. D. WEAVER,
Secretary, Chicago-Cook County Retail Grocers and Butchers Association.

HE DIDN'T TRY THEM AT ALL.

Chicago, Oct. 23.—If Al Smith promised his employers to do certain things to increase and hold the tenancy of the Empire State building, and discovered, after a year of doing those things, that they did not work, would he continue to do the things he promised or would he change his plans? And supposing his changed plans accomplished the things he set out to accomplish, would his employers fire him for not holding to his promises? H. F.

REAL ESTATE PURCHASE.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Can you tell me whether the buyer of a piece of real estate or the seller should pay the following fees: 1. Revenue stamps; [2] sewer certificate and interest; [3] abstract; [4] recording of affidavit; [5] notary fee.

The transaction referred to took place in Tampa, Fla. The agreement was that the property be deeded to seller clear of any debts. J. L.

1. The buyer.

2. The nature of this charge is not clear. If you mean a special assessment then the seller should pay it if he gave a waranty deed without expressly excepting this lien.

3. The seller should pay for bringing down the abstract to show title in him. The buyer should pay for any additional charges to show title in the buyer.

4 and 5. Depends on the nature of these items.

It is nearly always advisable for a purchaser of real estate to employ an attorney throughout, and we advise you to employ one now. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

ASK AMERICAN CONSUL.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A person passing away in Palestine leaves some money to people in the United States. Does the American government or the Palestine government take a share out of the estate, and if so, how much? T. S.

Depends on the size of the gift and the degree of relationship between the beneficiaries and the deceased. We suggest that you take the matter up with the consul at the nearest city in Palestine. As to the Illinois tax, there is an exemption of $20,000 worth to children of the deceased. There is no federal estate tax on estates of less than $40,000. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

'BLOW AT JAPAN' THROUGH SILVER TURNS OUT DUD

China Hard Hit; Neighbor Grows Rich.

BY CHESLY MANLY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 28.—[Special.]—In urging President Roosevelt to "do something for silver," Rene Leon, ex-international banker and New York speculator, who directed the barrage of propaganda resulting in the silver purchase act of 1934, predicted that it would do some incidental harm to the internal economy of China but would be a vital blow to Japan.

President Roosevelt, in his message to congress demanding the silver purchase act, took a different view, saying: "We can proceed with this program of increasing our store of silver for use as a part of the metallic reserves for our paper currency without seriously disturbing adjustments in world trade."

Subsequent developments proved that both were wrong.

Predicts "Inflation."

Writing to the President on May 28, 1934, Leon said that "the lifting of silver and, with it, of the Chinese exchange, will also raise the cost of production of all such industrial plants in China as represent a Japanese investment of some 25 million pounds sterling. It will bring about a serious inflation of values in the Chinese treaty ports and cause the Chinese to demand the immediate redemption of the local bank notes in silver coin.

"As a result, China will become a buyer of silver and seller of paper, more particularly a seller of the paper yen. With the crippling of the Japanese industrial plants in China, Japan will meet serious, if not insurmountable, difficulties in further flooding Manchukuo with the paper money utilized for the development of this area."

China's financial structure was wrecked, but instead of becoming a buyer of silver and a seller of the paper yen, as Leon predicted, she was forced to abandon her ancient silver standard and to adopt a managed currency tied to sterling under a plan devised by Sir Frederick Leith-Ross.

But Japan Gets Rich.

Japan, on the other hand, made enormous profits by smuggling silver out of China and selling it to the United States treasury, through London. Her operations in Manchukuo were enhanced by these profits, according to her own economic reviews, and it was the drain of silver out of China that enabled Japan to win autonomy of five northern Chinese provinces adjacent to her puppet state. When China nationalized silver a year ago and instituted the death penalty for smugglers, Japan had drained out more than 60 million ounces.

Besides the damage to China, Mexico, and other silver using countries, and the benefits to Japanese imperialism, the cost to American taxpayers, according to the treasury's own admission, has been 125 million dollars to date. This was on a purchase of approximately 1 billion 125 million ounces of silver at artificially high prices, on which the treasury has admitted an average loss of 10 cents an ounce.

Buys at 10 Cent Advance.

The treasury announced last December that the average cost of its silver acquisitions had been 57 cents an ounce. Purchases this year have reduced the average to about 55 cents, which is 10 cents above the current price. This present price in turn is exactly where it was in December, 1933, when President Roosevelt announced his original silver buying program under the Pittman silver agreement, the sole fruit of the London economic conference.

Thus the approach to a price of $1.29 for silver, one objective of the silver purchase act, has been exactly nil. The other objective is to increase the ratio of silver to gold in the monetary stock of 1 to 3, and if this is to be attained, another 933 million ounces of silver must be purchased on the basis of the present unprecedented gold supply.

Included in the 125 million dollar loss to date is a subsidy above the prevailing price of about 20 millions paid for newly mined domestic silver, which went to miners of seven western states with a population equal to that of the city of Chicago.

Delegate Pittman Benefits.

One of those who stood to benefit from this subsidy was Senator Key Pittman [Dem., Nev.], an administration leader who, as a delegate to the London economic conference of 1933, put over the agreement whereby the United States pledged itself to purchase its entire annual domestic output of about 25 million ounces. Mr. Pittman subsequently entered into a deal with Bernard M. Baruch, one of President Roosevelt's financial advisers, and John J. Raskob, former chairman of the Democratic national committee, to purchase for $300,000 a half interest in Sierra Consolidated Mines, Inc., the properties of which are on the Nevada-California line.

In addition to the 125 million dollar loss to the taxpayers, the loss to American business through the closing of the silver market, forced by the imposition of a 50 per cent silver profits tax, has been incalculable. Senator Pittman had predicted that the government would receive a profit of 25 million dollars a year from this tax on speculators, but the speculators fled to London and Montreal.

London Plays Broker.

London acted as the broker, or middle man, in substantially all purchases made by the treasury. William S. Murphy, a New York bullion broker, declared in Barron's, the national financial weekly, for Feb. 24, 1936, that the United States paid $400,000 in brokerage fees alone to four British firms.

After having played such a large part in the propaganda that put over the New Deal's monetary legislation in 1933 and 1934, Leon was not satisfied; he carried on his agitation in 1935 for further silver legislation, and this year he has been urging President Roosevelt to enter into an international "stabilization" agreement.

In a letter to the President on Oct. 22, 1934, Leon wrote:

"Having been one of those who initiated in this country the campaign for the remonetization of silver, I don't think that I properly could be accused of a change of heart if I now merely recognize the change which has taken place in actual conditions."

Writes to Senator Wheeler.

To Senator Burton K. Wheeler [Dem., Mont.], a 16 to 1 silverite, Leon wrote on Dec. 17, 1934:

"Viewed in the light of their effects since they were written on the statute books, I regard both the gold and the silver acts as extremely vicious. The former because it gives to incompetents [the treasury officials] powers which they do not know how to use, and the latter because its rigidity renders it impossible to meet changing world conditions."

In the summer of 1935 Senator Elmer Thomas [Dem., Okla.] was demanding a senate investigation of the "enthusiasm" with which Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau was carrying out the silver purchase act. To head him off, and obtain an investigation that would be favorable to the administration, Senator Pittman put over a resolution and became chairman of a committee of his own. Rene Leon revealed his complete knowledge of this situation in a letter to Sir Henri Deterding, director general of the Royal Dutch Petroleum company, on Aug. 21, 1935.

Tells of Senate Conflict.

"Senator Thomas of Oklahoma and his senate associates, whose interest in silver is limited to a desire to inflate the currency, has come into conflict with another senate group whose objective is much broader and much more sound," wrote Leon. "Beating him to the gun, Senator Key Pittman passed a resolution in the senate appointing a committee of five to inquire into the effects of the silver purchasing program on commercial and economic conditions at home and abroad. The committee is composed of Senators Borah, McCarran, King, Thomas, and has Pittman as its chairman. I conferred with the latter yesterday and was requested to draw up the agenda of the inquiry, which is scheduled to begin in about four weeks.

"The Thomas group of senators, whose outside advice I fear is not of the best nor most disinterested, has exhibited considerable impatience of late owing to the sharp break in silver prices, and this despite the gigantic purchases by our treasury.

Expects to Do "Well."

"I know all but one of the senators composing the committee; they all appear to like and trust me, and I think that we shall get along very well. Of course this inquiry will carry me into certain divisions of the state department and of the treasury for information of which I shall make very good use during the inquiry. For once I shall not be groping in the dark."

Since Senator Pittman had blocked Senator Thomas' demands for an inquiry which he would dominate, however, nothing ever came of the investigation. Leon next turned his attention to efforts to induce President Roosevelt to enter into a stabilization agreement. On Oct. 21, 1935, he wrote a letter agreeing whole heartedly with the President's action in refusing to stabilize at the London economic conference in 1933 but now thought the time was ripe.

"At times the greed of certain instinctively monopolistic Britons gets the better of their intelligence and causes them to blunder quite seriously; witness their attempt to induce us to stabilize [on their terms] during the conference of 1933," he said. "I was there and saw them function. They sold a bill of goods to the omniscient and very young Mr. Warburg, but they couldn't get it past the White House and so, to their grievous disappointment, the pound sterling went soaring back to $4.86—just where it belongs."

Warburg Pulls Away.

James P. Warburg, a delegate to the economic conference and a treasurer adviser, broke with the administration over its refusal to stabilize its gold and silver buying activities but has recently jumped back for Roosevelt.

Leon continued to bombard the White House with his proposals for stabilization and, incidentally, to give "Dear Mac" [Marvin H. McIntyre, the President's secretary], some political advice. On Sept. 15, 1936, he wrote to "Dear Mac" as follows:

"The tax conscious voter has yet to be told that his present taxes in large part constitute the unpaid cost of the old deal. The average man does not realize that when, on March 4, 1933, he transferred the presidency to Roosevelt, Hoover also handed him the unpaid bill for his maladministration. The 1929-'33 collapse of our economic structure necessarily involved the cost of restoration, yet no one has called the voters' attention to this fact."

"Dear Rene," replied "Dear Mac":

"Thank you very much for your letter of Sept. 15. I passed it along to the boss, and he was much interested in your comments."

He Writes to Oliphant.

At about this time Leon wrote to Herman Oliphant, general counsel of the treasury, with the first known suggestion that some pretense of stabilization might prove beneficial politically.

"The mere discussion of stabilization might well have a new and welcome orientation to public thought both at home and abroad," he declared.

On Sept. 25 Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau announced the so-called "gentlemen's agreement" with England and France whereby the pound and the dollar were to be held at their existing levels pending French devaluation. As a further gesture in the direction of stabilization, each of the three countries agreed to use its stabilization fund to prevent fluctuations of the currencies. This was done with the election six weeks off despite President Roosevelt's cablegram to the London economic conference of 1933 saying:

"The world will not long be lulled by the specious fallacy of achieving a temporary and probably artificial stability in foreign exchange on the part of a few large countries only.

"When the world works out concerted policies in the majority of nations to produce balanced budgets and living within their means we can properly discuss a better distribution of the world's gold and silver supply to act as a reserve base of national currencies."

FINE FOR KIDNEY AND BLADDER WEAKNESS

STOP GETTING UP NIGHTS LOOK AND FEEL YOUNGER

Keep your kidneys free from waste matter, poisons and acid, and put healthy activity into kidneys and bladder and you'll live a healthier, happier and longer life.

One most efficient and harmless way to do this is to get from your druggist a 35 cent box of Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules and take as directed—the swift results will surprise you.

Besides getting up nights, some symptoms of kidney trouble are backache, moist palms, leg cramps, and puffy eyes. If you want real results, be sure to get GOLD MEDAL—the original and genuine—a grand kidney stimulant and diuretic—right from Haarlem in Holland. Give your kidneys a good cleansing once in a while.

STOPPED-UP NOSTRILS due to colds.

Use Mentholatum to help open the nostrils and permit freer breathing.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

SHAVING "SCOOP"!

DISCOVERS LONG-SOUGHT "BEARD-SOFTENER" THAT WORKS WONDERS

● Laboratories everywhere have long been looking for a really efficient "beard-softener." A lone chemist while working on another problem unexpectedly found a beard softener that scooped the world. You'll find it only in Koolox Brushless Shaving Cream.

Now, the coat of razor-resisting oil which covers every bristle can no longer blockade your blade and make the going rough. The miraculous Koolox "beard-softener" instantly penetrates this oil, permits the blade to cut closely, smoothly and effortlessly—in a way you won't believe!

Koolox is different, too, because it isn't greasy—never clogs your razor—washes away instantly—leaves no bowl-scum. Use it without talc or lotion, if you wish. And count the extra days your blades last, because they have so much less to do.

●

Take Us Up On This:

Mister, before you decide that we're exaggerating or promising too much—do this:

Buy that big Half Pound Jar of Koolox—use it 2 weeks. Then if every promise we make doesn't come true, return it to us and, Mister, we'll (1) refund what you paid and (2) in addition send you with our compliments any other standard preparation you name!

TAVERN BALLOT STIRS UP FIGHT IN ROGERS PARK

Hyde Park Area Also to Vote Wet or Dry.

Wet and dry referendums to be held in Tuesday's election have stirred up vigorous fights in 155 precincts in 10 wards, especially in the Rogers Park and Hyde Park areas, which were traditionally dry in the days before prohibition.

In both these areas women's organizations and civic groups are conducting campaigns to drive out the taverns and liquor stores.

Howard street, which separates Chicago from dry Evanston, has in recent years blossomed forth with a gaudy array of taverns which are also scattered southward in the Rogers Park area.

Vote in These Precincts.

Voters will decide the liquor question in these wards and precincts of Rogers Park:

48TH WARD—Precincts 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 50.

49TH WARD—Precincts 3, 6, 7, 8, 9, 11, 12, 14, 15, 17, 18, 23, 24, 25, 33, 35, 36, 39, 40, 41, 42, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51.

50TH WARD—Precincts 9, 11, 25, 26, 27.

The Hyde Park, University of Chicago, and South Shore area where referendums will be held includes these wards and precincts:

5TH WARD—Precincts 28, 45, 46, 48, 49, 50, 51, 54, 56, 57, 58, 59, 61.

6TH WARD—Precincts 40, 41, 42, 43, 45, 46, 51, 52, 53, 55, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62.

Other wards and precincts where referendums will be held are:

7TH WARD—Precincts 20, 36, 52, 56, 57, 59, 71.

8TH WARD—Precincts 49, 50, 51.

10TH WARD—Precincts 13, 14.

17TH WARD—Precincts 47, 50.

41ST WARD—Precincts 16, 22.

Retain 1932 Boundaries.

The state liquor control act, which authorizes the precinct referendums, provides that the precinct boundaries as of Nov. 8, 1932 must be preserved in settling the liquor question. This provision was inserted, members of the legislature said, to prevent gerrymandering of precinct lines for the benefit of the liquor interests.

Under the terms of the act petitions calling for the abolition of taverns and liquor stores in 87 precincts were filed with the city clerk during the summer. These 87 precincts are now part of the 155 precincts created since Nov. 8, 1932.

As a result, one resident of a precinct may vote on abolishing taverns, while his neighbor across the street will not be handed a liquor referendum ballot. For example, voters in the 76th precinct of the 50th ward will receive a liquor ballot only if they live in part of the precinct which is north of Albion avenue. A study of the registration list will show whether each citizen is qualified by residence to vote in the referendum.

A. J. McKay, chairman of the election board has ordered that full instructions be printed on each ballot to insure that only residents of precincts as of 1932 will receive ballots.

FRANK LOESCH RAPS NEW DEAL DEBT; ASKS ELECTION OF LANDON

The New Deal has "introduced the serpent into the land of freedom, who by his wily ways and deceitful words, seeks to deprive us of our heritage." These were the warning words of Frank J. Loesch, president of the Chicago crime commission, last night at a Republican meeting in the Circle Masonic temple, Oak Park.

Mr. Loesch, veteran battler against the alliance of politics and crime, urged that "every real Democrat and every Republican should vote for the straight Republican ticket from Gov. Landon down."

The present federal debt, Mr. Loesch told his audience, is so great that if it were to be paid off at the rate of $1,000,000 a day, it would take a century to retire the principal alone; if, in addition, interest were paid at the rate of 3 per cent, the payments would have to continue for nearly 150 years.

"Mr. Roosevelt," he said, "proposed to pay this debt by soaking the rich. He could absorb all the wealth that the rich have, and it would make a very small dent in the payment of this debt. What, then, must the result be?

"A taxation to the death for the mass of the people. Everything they eat, drink, wear, or use must be taxed to the limit, not to pay this debt but to continue the extravagance. Let no one be deceived by this pussyfoot suggestion that Roosevelt is going to be more conservative in his second term.

"His reëlection will be assumed by him to be an approval of all that he has done and we may look for much less consideration, and that means national bankruptcy or inflation, until debts are wiped out by inflated money as was the case in Germany and most countries of Europe after the war."

JAILED FOR BAD CHECKS.

Mrs. Florence Feeney, 42 years old, 1236 Cornelia avenue, was sentenced to a year in the county jail yesterday by Judge Jay A. Schiller in Women's court for passing bogus checks in loop department stores.

HORNER LIQUOR BOARD TRIES TO SMEAR LANDON

Pay Rollers Mail Letters to Saloonkeepers.

Although prohibition is not a campaign issue and has been mentioned by neither Gov. Landon nor President Roosevelt, a circular letter seeking to portray Landon as a dry is being mailed out of the Chicago and Springfield offices of the Illinois Liquor commission, a state board dominated by the Horner administration.

This was learned yesterday when some of the letters, which are printed on the letter heads of the Retail Liquor Dealers' Protective Association of Illinois, made their appearance in Chicago. They are being mailed to about 20,000 saloonkeepers in the city and state.

Horner Helps Take Credit.

After quoting headlines and parts of speeches and legislative messages by Gov. Landon each letter concludes: "President Roosevelt, Gov. Horner and the Democratic administration repealed prohibition. You and I have a duty to perform on Nov. 3."

The name of E. A. Meyer, secretary of the protective association, is signed to the letter, but it was learned the circular was printed by the state printing department and it is being mailed by state employés.

Mr. Meyer, who occupies an office at 139 North Clark street, was asked about the letter yesterday.

"It isn't being sent out from here," he said. "It is being sent out from some place else. I can't tell you where it is being sent from. No, there isn't any secret about it. I'm just not going to tell you."

Mailing Place Is Found.

But the mailing place was found at the Chicago branch of the state liquor commission in the Morton building, 208 West Washington street, where girls were busy addressing envelopes and stuffing them with letters.

A man at the information desk had a basket of Horner buttons at his left hand and a stack of Horner pictures at his right. He said he didn't know anything about the letter, but after several questions it was learned that the commission offices here and in Springfield were the mailing points for the letters and that state employés were doing the work.

"I don't know who is mailing out the letters," said Frank Weber, a saloonkeeper at 6701 South Halsted street, who is treasurer of the association. "I suppose I'll get a bill for it sometime, but I haven't yet."

JAPAN TIGHTENS DANCE RULES TO STOP 'PINK LOVE'

TOKIO, Oct. 29.—[Thursday]—(AP)—Determined to prevent the spread of what the Japanese call "pink love" among dance-crazed Japanese youth, police today instituted a set of more strict regulations for control of dance halls throughout the country. These require:

1. Dance girls and their partners shall be allowed only a certain number of square yards in which to dance.
2. The number of patrons in each dance hall shall be limited.
3. The hours for dancing shall be shortened.
4. All dancing shall be under the supervision of the police.
5. Men shall not give their partners lessons on the floor.

King Carol Visits Prague; Cements Balkan Relations

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Close coöperation with Jugo-Slavia was advanced here today as the common aim of Czechoslovakia and Rumania after a conference between President Eduard Benes and King Carol. A communique issued after the conference said that "at the same time good will of the three states toward" the Italo-German European agreement was stressed. It was emphasized also that the Little Entente would not interfere in each other's internal affairs and would endeavor to harmonize its interests with efforts to keep peace in Europe.

"WORLD'S GREATEST MILEAGE TEST" NOW COMPLETED

RECORDS SUBMITTED BY THOUSANDS NOW BEING ANALYZED IN STANDARD OIL'S SEARCH FOR THE TRUTH ABOUT GASOLINE MILEAGE

LITTLE short of overwhelming was the response, last May, when Standard Oil Company invited motorists to take part in a gigantic road test to learn the truth about gasoline mileage. Car owners flocked to Standard Dealers for recording equipment, quickly exhausting the supply. And, when enrollment was closed, on July 5th, thousands of "test car drivers" in all parts of the Mid-West were busily engaged setting down their day-by-day driving experiences.

All summer long they've been hard at it. Naturally, not all who enrolled succeeded in keeping complete records. But many thousands did—and submitted these to Standard. The result is, the greatest mass of gasoline-mileage data ever assembled.

EXPERTS TO MAKE STUDY

The names of those who won special awards for their efforts were published last week. (Complete list of winners is posted at all Standard Dealer's stations.) And now the real job of "learning the truth about gasoline mileage" begins. Already a corps of statistical experts is at work collecting, sorting, sifting the data contained in these thousands of mileage record books. Another group will analyze the cold figures and translate them into warm, practical, usable facts. These facts will be added to the knowledge of gasoline and of motoring needs in general, which Standard Oil Company already possesses.

WHAT WILL BE THE RESULT?

This extensive study will, of course, require many months. What it will finally bring to light, no one knows as yet. But the fact remains that the Standard Oil Company is not content merely to make sure of motor fuel facts as proved in test tubes, in laboratory engines, or in professionally-driven test cars—important as those facts are. Rather, it is determined to know also what happens when gasoline is put into actual use by ordinary, every-day automobile drivers in all sorts of cars driven under all sorts of conditions.

The Standard Oil Company extends its thanks and sincere appreciation to the many thousands of test car drivers who cooperated in collecting this information. It is entirely possible that the "truth about gasoline mileage", thus disclosed, will result in important new benefits to users of gasoline in the future. Meanwhile, Standard is gratified to know that many thousands of motorists who kept records this summer, learned for themselves how to use gasoline more efficiently and discovered new ways to reduce their driving costs.

TRADE BALANCE LAST 9 MONTHS IS UNFAVORABLE

Foreign Products Flowing Into Country.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—With foreign products flooding into the country in ever increasing waves, the United States suffered an unfavorable balance of trade amounting to $33,136,000 for the first nine months of 1936, official figures of the department of commerce disclosed today.

The disadvantageous trade position directly reflected the plums to foreign exports resulting from letting the barriers down under the reciprocal trade agreements and the New Deal's farm scarcity program.

The 33 million dollar excess of imports over exports was in direct contrast with a favorable balance of $66,496,000 in the corresponding period of 1935. The United States is on the road to the first unfavorable balance of trade for any one year since 1893.

Roper Minimized Situation.

Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper minimized the situation, declaring that heavy exports of raw cotton, tobacco and automobiles would probably bring the trade balance more into line with previous years. Pressed for further explanation Roper insisted that "our government as such does not compete with other governments in the selling of goods," and this was the province of private business. On reciprocal trade agreements he was mum.

"We'd like to end the year with a favorable trade balance naturally," he said, "but we are going through a period of study and readjustment in world trade."

In fact, Roper found the increase in import trade to be "encouraging." He said that it showed our industries were buying raw materials abroad for expansion of their production in this country. Heavy increases in wheat and meats resulted from the drouth, according to Roper, rather than from the killing of 6 million pigs and nonraising of grain under the AAA.

Import More Farm Products.

However, it was the agricultural products that chalked up the rise in imports rather than any importation of raw materials which this country is unable to produce, a close scrutiny of the commerce department's report showed.

For example, foreign raisers of wheat in Canada and the Argentine sent nearly twice as much of the golden grain into this country during the first nine months of 1936 as they did for the comparable period of last year. The wheat importations absorb a substantial part of the market that hitherto went to the American farmer.

For the nine months of 1936 a total of 38,460,000 bushels of wheat valued at $32,681,000 came into the United States as compared with 21,645,000 bushels at $16,758,000 last year.

Meat Imports Increase.

Meat products for the nine months rose to 119,507,000 pounds valued at $18,970,000 as compared with 86,989,000 pounds at $14,737,000 last year. Hides and skins increased 13,095,000 pounds to 236,259,000. Lether, lether manufactures, and furs and manufactures also increased over last year.

For the month of September only exports of merchandise exceeded general imports by $4,442,000. Exports during the month gained 23 per cent over August. Imports, which usually decline during September, however, were 12 per cent larger than in August, the commerce department admitted in its report.

Exports, including reëxports, amounted to $219,967,000 in September, compared with $178,314,000 in August of 1936, and with $198,803,000 in September of 1935. Imports amounted to $215,525,000, compared with $192,376,000 in August, 1936, and with $161,647,000 in September of 1935.

Raw Cotton Big Item.

Compared with September of last year, according to the commerce department's report, approximately two thirds of the increase in exports was due to larger shipments of raw cotton, machinery and vehicles. Exports of unmanufactured cotton increased from 267,163,000 pounds, valued at $31,817,000, to 306,090,000 pounds, valued at $38,221,000.

In addition to increases in exports of electrical machinery, office appliances, printing, and bookbinding machinery and aircraft, exports of industrial machinery gained from $9,228,000 to $12,298,000 and exports of agricultural machinery, including implements, went up from $2,713,000 to $3,806,000.

Among the import gains during September as compared with August were crude rubber, sugar, paper manufactures, unmanufactured tobacco, wheat and paper base stock.

ORDER 823 ACCUSED N. Y. 'FLOATERS' TO PROVE VOTING RIGHT

New York, Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Supreme Court Justice Harmon Black granted an order today calling on 823 registered voters from lodging houses to show cause tomorrow why their names should not be stricken from the registration rolls on the ground that they are not bona fide residents, but are, in fact, public charges.

The order was granted on the petition of Charles Francis Coe, head of the Coe Vigilantes, who asserted that a majority of the alleged floaters are from Democratic districts. He said that if his organization had time it could point out at least 34,000 fraudulently registered voters.

Coe's petititon charged that those challenged are being kept by the emergency relief bureau.

David B. Costuma, a member of the board of elections, reported to Attorney General Bennett that 1,354 hotels and lodging houses which are believed to be sheltering large numbers of "floaters" had failed to comply with the election law by submitting lists of their residents to the board.

ICKES POURS OUT MORE CASH FOR DOUBTFUL AREAS

Makes PWA Grants of 7½ Millions.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes, administrator of the Public Works program, today poured another seven and one-half millions in outright grants into states regarded as lacking in loyalty to the Democratic cause.

In the last few days, Ickes has daily announced with a flourish the granting of from five to ten millions for PWA projects. In this last week before the election, activity in the huge clerical force of the PWA has been frenzied, with the clerks laboring to get out statements to the various states telling them of the government's generosity.

Publicity Staf Busy.

The publicity staf of the organization has worked overtime on the issuance of bulky documents revealing in what communities the money is to be spent.

The total of grants thus authorized reached $105,667,391 today. This sum is not to be repaid by the various states. It represents a direct gift from the New Deal and as such is expected to inspire gratitude in the voters.

The widely advertised rule of the PWA that local governments must supply 55 per cent of the cost of a project has been temporarily forgotten in the pre-election rush to award millions. Approximately $11,000,000 has been lent to municipalities unable to raise the 55 per cent. This sum is supposed to be repaid eventually by the borrowers.

$405,000 to Lansing, Mich.

While every one of the 48 states has benefited thus far from the grants, it is noteworthy that the bulk of the awards went to states where the outcome on Nov. 3 is doubtful.

One of the largest of today's allotments was a grant of $405,000 to Lansing, Mich., for construction of a garbage disposal system. Michigan is a state which the New Dealers have been striving desperately to wrest from the Republican column. Nebraska, another state leaning toward Landon, was given $414,000.

LAUNCH MICHIGAN INQUIRY ON VOTE COERCION CHARGE

Two Highway Employes Seized on Warants.

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—The attorney general's and state highway department offices today launched an investigation into the arrest in Clare county of two highway department officials on charges of intimidating voters.

The accused men, Fred Bingham, Clare county district highway superintendent, and Victor Finch, foreman, were arraigned at Harrison, the county seat, this afternoon and were bound over for hearing on Nov. 4 by Justice A. S. Young, who issued the warants for their arrest at the request of Theodore G. Bowler, Clare county prosecutor.

Bingham and Finch are accused in affidavits filed by Alvin Wells, Tom Shilling, and Glen Amy of having discharged them from jobs on highway projects because they refused to pledge allegiance to the Roosevelt administration, promise their support to the New Deal at the polls Nov. 3, and wear Democratic buttons.

Dismissal Threat Quoted.

Bingham was quoted by the men as having told them that "no one can work for the state highway department who will not entirely support Roosevelt and Murphy [Frank Murphy, Roosevelt favored nominee for governor and furloughed high commissioner of the Philippines]."

In the absence from Lansing of Murray D. Vanwagoner, Democratic state highway commissioner, G. Donald Kennedy, the department's business manager, declared that Bingham and Finch would themselves be discharged if convicted of the charges. He said the Lansing highway office does not approve such tactics and that the accused officials must have "acted on their own" if they are guilty of such attempted intimidation.

Investigators Assigned.

Kennedy said, however, that if investigation indicated the two were merely being "wrongfully accused in an eleventh hour Republican propaganda attack," the department would defend them.

VICTIM OF INDIANA CRASH DIES.

Logansport, Ind., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Arthur Deandrea, 48, died yesterday afternoon of injuries received Sunday in an auto collision.

PRINTED PRAISES OF WPA HANDED OUT FOR MAILING

Employes Say Move Is Political.

Works Progress administration employés complained yesterday that they are expected to take an active part in the campaign by sending to their friends signed copies of propaganda pamphlets extoling the WPA. This step represents the frankest departure here from WPA's asserted aloofness from politics, they said.

Purchased with federal work relief funds, the pamphlets have on the front covers a facsimile of script, which reads:

"Just to let you know what we have accomplished here in Illinois, I am sending you this little leaflet. I am proud to have helped in this work.

"Yours.............."

Cost Is Not Mentioned.

Inside, the recipient who reads for the sake of a friend will find an enumeration of "What WPA [Illinois] Has Accomplished." Everything from outhouses [5,239] to recreational facilities [9,494 acres] is listed. Nothing is mentioned about the cost, however, which is $125,000,000.

One misleading statement appears in large letters: "203,000 Unemployed Men and Women Provided with Employment." The records show that about 200,000 persons were briefly on WPA pay rolls at the program's peak last February, after which thousands were lopped off each week until about 152,000 remained. The figure is now 178,000.

A girl on the state headquarters staf here expressed resentment—privately—over the distribution of several of the leaflets to each employé.

So Cheap—in a Way!

"I'll feel like a fool sending these things around to my friends," she said. "It's so cheap—except to taxpayers. However, I suppose I'd better just do it as part of my job. I don't know how they would find out what I did with the pamphlets, but you never can tell. For the same reason I'm going to vote Democratic, to be on the safe side, although I'd rather vote for Landon."

C. E. Miner, deputy state administrator, declared that the leaflets were given to employés because they themselves had requested "a convenient means of telling friends about WPA." Dr. Martin H. Bickham, WPA propaganda chief, added that employés were given no specific instructions on what they should do with the leaflets.

No Move to Obey Law.

It was learned yesterday that WPA has not yet transmitted to relief authorities the proper orders to effectuate changes made by congress last spring in WPA legislation. The result is that persons who have come on the relief rolls recently have not been certified as eligible for WPA, as they should be under the revised provisions.

Asked about the four months' delay, Mr. Miner said there is no room on WPA for more workers anyway, so that it makes no difference. A high relief official, who declined to be quoted, said the delay is a serious obstacle to working out the whole relief problem here.

Lake Storm Sends Tug and 2 Barges Into Port

Harbor Springs, Mich., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—The tug Rae Powers of Boston, Mass., accompanied by coastwise barges Nos. 1 and 2, from Muskegon bound for New York, docked here for shelter this afternoon. Near the Manitou Islands a heavy sea was encountered and the crew feared to attempt passage through the Straits of Mackinac until the wind subsided.

Two Runaway Detroit Girls Are Found Here

Two girls hitch-hiking from their homes in Detroit were taken into custody by police yesterday who found them "thumbing" for a ride in front of 310 South Halsted street. They gave their names as Eleanor Manning, 15 years old, and Betty Fleck, 14 years old. The two had left home on Oct. 18.

"We don't think our parents will care much whether we're found or not," they told police. The girls were taken in custody by juvenile authorities and will be sent home.

107 Sue to Get $207,161 in City Pay Deductions

Suit was filed yesterday in the Superior court on behalf of 107 present and former employés of the city board of local improvements for the recovery of $207,161 which was deducted from their pay in 1932-'35.

CONSTIPATION SUFFERERS! Do As Doctors Do

Follow this pleasant method thousands of doctors have used and prescribed

Brings Relief in 1 Hour!

Yes—when you need a laxative DO AS DOCTORS DO—and take no chances. Dr. A. B. C. of Michigan says: "I found much good in the frequent use of Pluto Water." Dr. L. R. E. of Ohio says: "By taking Pluto in the morning with a full glass of water, I stay in good shape." With Pluto there are no hours of overnight waiting, which allow dangerous poisons to be absorbed by the system, often resulting in that tired feeling—dull headaches—too often causing pimples, boils, colds.

Simply mix 1/5 of a glass of Pluto Water with 4/5 of a glass of hot water. You'll find this mixture pleasant, gentle, quick and thorough. In 1 hour you'll feel like a new person.

Pluto Water is bottled at the famous French Lick Springs, Indiana. It is a non-habit-forming saline mineral water. Two hundred million bottles have already been used. Get Pluto from your druggist—either in the 25c size or the large 50c size which contains three times the quantity.

HAMILTON SAYS PRESIDENT ERRS ON SECURITY ACT

Contradicts Statement on Trust Fund.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—In tones dripping with irony, Chairman John Hamilton of the Republican national committee today addressed a statement to President Roosevelt in which he remarked that the President could not have read the social security law which he signed during the last session of congress.

"I cannot believe you read it or you could not have made the statement you did last Friday night when you said: 'Your dollars are held in a government trust fund solely for the social security of the workers,'" Hamilton said.

"Really, Mr. President, there is no such provision in the act. If you doubt me, ask your own attorney general. Or consult some good lawyer. Really, though, it does not require legal training to understand it, Mr. President. The language simply does not provide what you stated it did.

Provision Isn't There.

"It may be that you intended to protect the money of our wage earners—this fund which if untouched would finally reach 47 billion dollars. But your brain trusters either forgot to do it or they fooled you about what they put in it. It isn't there.

"The money taken from our workers' pay envelopes and taken from every employer of labor in addition, which starts off at 2 cents this January on every 99 cents the workers received and eventually reaches 9 cents for every 97 cents the worker receives goes into the general fund of the treasury.

"Once there it can be used for any purpose the politicians elected to congress decide. If you should ever succeed in balancing the budget it would eventually pay off the national debt so that the workers would have paid it and the rich you talk about taxing would escape that burden. More likely it would be spent for boondoggling, pork barreling, WPA helping Jim Farley Tammanyize the whole nation or anything the congressmen should decide.

Used for Current Bills.

"There is no protection in the law, Mr. President. There is none for the workers. Their money is not set aside. It is used to pay current treasury bills.

"It's already happening, Mr. President. Mr. Morgenthau could not have told you, or I am sure you would not have said what you did last Friday night.

"Under the unemployment insurance provisions of the same law, these states which do not have unemployment insurance must send the funds they have accumulated to Washington if said states are to participate in federal unemployment insurance.

"Three states have already sent their money to Washington. And what happened? They received nothing but IOU's from one of the undersecretaries. Their money went into the pot to pay current bills.

"Suppose a war should come along, Mr. President. Wouldn't every dollar our workers have paid in be spent? Suppose another depression should come along. Wouldn't the question, 'Would you let them starve,' be just as moving then?"

Green Defends Measure.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, tonight rushed to defend the security law.

Green said it would "enable workers to face old age with a feeling of security" and contended the pension funds would be "carefully administered and supervised by the federal government."

Meanwhile the social security board asked the justice department to investigate distribution of posters warning against the law's taxes, saying the board's name had been subjected to "fraudulent use" in the posters.

Milk Driver Robbed of $143 and Locked in His Truck

Carl Hartzell, 4114 Washington boulevard, driver for the Farmers' Cooperative Milk comany, was robbed of $143 yesterday and then locked in the rear compartment of his truck by a man in an alley at 1611 West 64th street. A nearby resident heard Hartzell pounding on the wall of the truck, and released him.

Deneen Cites New Deal Acts Which Retard U. S. Recovery

Jacksonville, Ill., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Obstacles thrown in the way of recovery by the New Deal are responsible for this country ranking fourteenth among great nations in the return to prosperity, Charles S. Deneen, former United States senator and former governor of Illinois, charged tonight.

The veteran Republican's speech before an overflow crowd at the Jacksonville High school auditorium closed his downstate campaign in behalf of his party's candidates. Mr. Deneen is not a candidate for any office.

Republicans from all parts of the Twentieth district attended the meeting here, several nearby cities sending large delegations.

Millions Still Idle.

"The Democrats based their campaign in 1932 on the fact ten million people were out of work," Deneen said. "There are more than nine million out of work now and twenty million on the dole—about one-sixth of our people—the largest number on the dole in the history of the country.

"The banks are full of money but they cannot extend long time credits to business because of the instability of the currency, the failure to balance the national budget, the spending of $2.50 by the government for every dollar collected, and unheard of national debts.

"The government has entered into business in competition with the citizens.

Uncertainty of Tax Whims.

"Enormous taxes and uncertainty about new taxes; the sole power in the President to change our economic system by reciprocal treaties; the schemes which were declared unconstitutional, but which have not been abandoned, giving the President power to regulate hours, days of labor, wages and prices, and to control all business activities as was done under the NRA and the AAA; the lack of stability of values for security for loans advanced, and the extravagant waste in the expenditure of government funds in useless works and which would yield no return.

"No one could foresee what would be next in the last three and one half years, and no one has an assurance as to what will happen in the next four years if President Roosevelt and his party are continued in power. Hence, business lags, investments lag, new enterprises lag."

Congress Abdicates Power.

The Republican ex-senator asserted that the slowness of recovery is due not only to the measures adopted by President Roosevelt, but also to the measures used in enacting them. He compared the President's "must" lgislation to the mandates of dictators in other countries.

"'Must' legislation," Deneen said, "is not submitted in political platforms to the people or discussed in campaigns, and the bills are not framed by members of the house or senate, but by the brain trusters.

"These bills are not fully discussed in the committees or debated on the floor of either branch of congress; a supine congress has abandoned its functions as a legislative body and yields to the orders from the executive.

More Cash than Any Dictator.

"And this is because the executive has back of him the power of appointment, the power to maintain an army of officeholders, and to spend millions of dollars in congressional districts and hundreds of millions of dollars in the states they represent.

"The President has larger funds to expend than any dictator at present in authority, or any who ever existed. The President himself realizes his unprecedented authority and has pointed out the danger of such power in a chief executive."

The people's lack of confidence in Roosevelt and his régime from the time of his election in November, 1932, has prevented normal recovery, Mr. Deneen said, from the depression "which well informed persons know was world wide, and was caused by the world war."

PAY REDUCTION NOTICE CAUSES ARREST OF IOWAN

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Municipal Court Bailif Harry Wright today arrested Albert Penn, Des Moines manufacturer, on a charge of violating state election laws by distributing in pay envelopes unsigned notices "tending to create sentiment against President Roosevelt."

President of the Penn Electric Switch company, Penn was arraigned in Municipal court immediately and pleaded innocent. The information against him was filed by J. C. Lewis, Iowa Federation of Labor president.

Attached to the information was a photostatic copy of one of the pay envelopes, which bore this statement:

"Pay reduction—Effective January, 1937, we are compelled by a Roosevelt [New Deal] law to make a 1 per cent reduction from your wages and turn it over to the government. Finally this may go as high as 3 per cent. You might get this money back in future years, but only if congress decides to make the appropriations for that purpose. There is no guarantee. Decide before Nov. 3—election day—whether or not you wish to take these chances."

The Iowa law under which the information was filed provides that all political advertisments or circulars must bear the name of the person or organization distributing them.

Penn told Carl Cook, Republican state chairman, he did not believe he was guilty of violating the state election law because each of the pay envelopes contained a check with the company's name on it. The men who received them, he said, had no doubt as to who distributed them.

Canadian Unemployment on Wane, Statistics Show

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 28.—The total number of persons on direct relief in Canada in July, the latest month tabulated, was 1,063,546, compared with 1,212,262 in December, a drop of 148,616 in six months. This was announced today. The year's peak, in March, was 1,398,410. The city of Montreal announced that it has spent nearly $1,000,000 less for direct relief in the first eight months of 1936, compared with a year ago.

PROF. GALE SEES MORE NEW DEAL AS PERIL TO U. S.

U. of C. Scientist Works to Elect Landon.

"The United States has recovered from the depression," said Prof. Henry G. Gale, dean of the division of physical sciences at the University of Chicago, yesterday, "but it will take it a long time to recover from the New Deal. And if we get four more years of that I'm not sure that we'll ever get over it."

Although he has avoided public participation in partisan politics throughout his long career on the Midway, Prof. Gale, who is known for his work with the late Prof. Albert A. Michelson in testing the Einstein theory, as well as for his brilliant world war record, said that he was impelled to take an open stand in behalf of the candidacy of Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas for the presidency.

Signs Faculty Statement.

He was one of 14 leading members of the university's faculty who issued a statement recently backing the Kansan, and one of the more than 300 who voted for him in the recent faculty poll.

"I have always felt," said Prof. Gale, "that a university teacher should take no part in partisan politics. And I am sure that the great majority of the faculty members of the University of Chicago have always been guided by that rule.

"But there have been a few men who have seen fit to make their views very vocal. As a result the university has a reputation of being a hotbed of radicalism. Wherever I go downtown I hear us described as a lot of 'Reds.' And that is not the case at all.

"So it is as much for the sake of the university as for the Republican cause that a number of us decided to take a strong and public stand on behalf of Gov. Landon," Prof. Gale continued.

"We want the public to know that the faculty is far from being 100 per cent communist. As a matter of fact the poll that was published recently revealed that there is not a single one of us down here who is going to vote for Browder. And it showed, too, that this intellectual community is no differently divided between Gov. Landon and President Roosevelt than the community at large."

But there is more behind Prof. Gale's espousal of the cause of the Republican presidential candidate than a mere desire to vindicate the reputation of the conservatives on the university's staf. He is an ardent Republican and he is thoroughly convinced that it is essential for the welfare of the nation that Gov. Landon be elected next Tuesday. And he means to do everything within his power to see that Gov. Landon is elected.

A Fighter All the Way.

That is typical of the man. Prof. Gale is no comic strip pedant involved in scientific abstractions and out of all touch with the world. He is a solid and practical person. And he is a fighter.

That was demonstrated long ago by his war record, a record that won him a citation from Gen. Pershing and election to the Legion of Honor by the French government.

Prof. Gale's war story is different. It's not the story of the hero who took an enemy machine gun nest single-handed. It's the even more important and thrilling story of the modern scientist at the front. But it is also a story about which you can't get the man to talk. He's too modest for that.

Trained at Fort Sheridan.

When the United States entered the war Prof. Gale, already a man of importance at the University of Chicago and author of a text book used in thousands of schools, dropped everything to enlist. He was sent to the Second Officers' Training Camp at Fort Sheridan, and came out of it as a captain of infantry.

But he remained there for only about two months. He was needed for more important work in France. There he was assigned to the Signal corps' meteorological service and became one of the small handful of men responsible for the deadly accuracy of the American artillery.

Prof. Gale—but it was Capt. Gale then, and, finally, Lieut. Col. Gale—helped to develop a method of studying the speed and the direction of the higher winds. That was done by sending small groups of soldier-scientists out with the batteries. And it is the one part of his war experience about which the professor will talk.

Can't Afford to Be Wrong.

"It was of the highest importance for us to know wind velocity and directions," he said, "especially when we were firing at long range.

"Knowing those conditions and making the proper allowance for them meant all the difference between a hit and a miss. And there were times when a miss with the first shell would have meant that you would never get a chance to fire a second. There were times when the enemy was waiting for only that one shell—just a little off the mark—to wipe you out."

This man is no New Dealer. Four more years of Roosevelt will mean the ruin of the nation, he is convinced. "Landon is the one man who can give us the administration we need," said Gale. "His record is a good demonstration of that."

CIVIC FEDERATION WARNS AGAINST TAX BOOST IN '37

A warning that taxpayers must be especially alert and active if they are to prevent increases in local taxes in 1937 is given in the annual report of the Civic Federation and Bureau of Public Efficiency which was issued yesterday. The report was signed by George B. McKibbin, president, and Douglas Sutherland, executive secretary. The report warns also that as the burden of poor relief is reduced there will be, on the basis of present state taxes, large surpluses in the state treasury.

'PRIVATE JOE' 96; FORGET POLITICS ON HIS BIRTHDAY

President, Landon Among Well Wishers.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—There was an Armistice day in this town which lasted from sunrose this morning to midnight and in which the President of the United States and his Republican opponent for the presidency, and the Democratic governor of Illinois, and a former Republican governor of Illinois all joined.

On his first round this morning the postman delivered this letter from Washington, D. C.:

"The White House, Washington, D. C., Oct. 26, 1936.

"My Dear Gov. Fifer:

"It has just come to my attention that on October twenty-eighth you will celebrate your ninety-sixth birthday anniversary. It gives me real pleasure to join your many friends in extending congratulations and very best wishes on this occasion.

"Very sincerely, yours,
"FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

"To Honorable Joseph W. Fifer:
"North McLean st., Bloomington, Ill."

Message from Landon.

Then the telegraph boys began to arrive at the historic old mansion that overlooks the autumnal glories of Franklin park and the first one delivered this message filed in Pittsburgh, Pa., last night.

"To Hon. Joseph Fifer,
"Bloomington, Ill.

"Dear Private Joe: My warmest congratulations on your ninety-sixth birthday. It is heartening to me to know you are beside me today in fighting again for freedom.

"ALF. M. LANDON."

In five minutes the bell rang again and this was delivered from the governor of Illinois:

"Chicago, Ill., Oct. 28.

"Honorable Joseph Fifer, Bloomington, Ill.:

"I enthusiastically join with your countless friends and admirers all over Illinois in wishing you a very happy birthday. Your fine citizenship both in and out of public office has been a great example to many thousands of younger citizens like myself. May an abundance of happiness and good health be yours on this birthday and every birthday to follow and every day between those birthdays. This you deserve and more, too, and this we heartily wish you.

"Your friend,
"HENRY HORNER."

Lowden Congratulates Him.

From the broad acres of Sinnissippi farm came this:

"Oregon, Ill., Oct. 27.

"Hon. Joseph W. Fifer, Bloomington, Ill.

"Mrs. Lowden joins me in heartiest congratulations and our very best wishes for many happy returns of the day. FRANK O. LOWDEN."

Another jingle, and this telegram, dearest of them all to Private Joe, was read to him while he murmured, "My old comrades," and brushed away the tears:

"Chicago, Ill., Oct. 28.

"Joseph W. Fifer, past commander Department of Illinois, G. A. R., Bloomington, Ill.

"Your comrades in the Department of Illinois Grand Army of the Republic cordially congratulate you on your ninety-six years in the service of your country. May good health and happiness attend you all your days.

"WILLIAM N. HODGE, Commander.
"J. C. THOMAS, Assnt. Adj. Gen."

So It Goes All Day

And so it went all day—loving telegrams, letters, birthday cards, and streams of visitors from many points in central Illinois.

In the late afternoon the McLean County Bar association, sixty strong was ushered in by its president, Fred Wollrath.

George Barr, former president of the board of trustees of the University of Illinois, and Edward Corlett of Joliet, who sat in the Constitutional convention of 1920 with Private Joe, traveled eighty miles to pay their respects to the hero of the political armistice.

Chicago industrial magnates, among them Benjamin F. Affleck, former president of the Union League club and great Illinois farmers, among them Eugene Funk, sent greetings.

McLean county housewives sent old fashioned dainties of their own making.

By mid afternoon mantelpieces and tabourets in the big house were loaded with flowers, books, boxes of cigars, and other gifts.

Sick people who could not come to the governor's residence were represented by messages and gifts.

Daughter Receives Guests.

Private Joe's daughter, Mrs. Florence Fifer Bohrer, former Illinois senator, and her daughter Gertrude received the hundreds of guests at the afternoon reception.

The governor spoke of one missing message thus:

"My old friend Dave Shanahan always sent me a message on my birthday. He never missed for these many years. But no greeting from him this year. That's a sad thought, but it's life—it's life.

"David was a man entirely honest and always fair. I never heard any man say he was unfair, and he was an honor to political life and a tower of strength in the constitutional convention. I sat with him in it."

Very interesting to medical men was Dr. Albert Myers' comment on the man who is his patient when he consents to be a patient. Dr. Myers said:

"Despite his terrific civil war wound which is still a cross to bear, Private Joe at 96 is a scientific marvel to us of the profession. His arteries are as soft and pliant as those of a young man and yet he defies us—smokes six or eight strong cigars a day and climbs many stairs twice a day."

Private Joe is a deep student of science and invention. Asked today what he thought might be the next great development in applied science, he said:

"Three-quarters of the earth's surface is covered with water and yet our corn burns up—did this summer—for lack of water. I believe that some day, perhaps not very far distant, science and invention will find some way to distribute that water when and where it is needed."

Gov. Fifer and Benijah Brigham of Bloomington are the last survivors of Company C, 33d Illinois infantry, but Mr. Brigham was too feeble to come to today's Armistice party. Like Private Joe, he was desperately wounded in the Vicksburg campaign. He is 95 years old.

"I must go to see Benijah in the morning," said Gov. Fifer tonight.

Santa with Bagful of Checks in Oklahoma 60 Days Early

Tulsa, Okla., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—A mysterious governmental Santa Claus with a bag full of United States treasury checks, was reported in four northern and eastern Oklahoma counties today by the Tulsa Tribune.

Farmers were puzzled but pleased when they received checks ranging from $5 to $20, drawn on relief funds in the federal reserve bank at Dallas.

The farmers were puzzled because they had made no applications for relief.

The federal largess was reported in Muskogee, Mayes, Wagoner, and Pawnee counties.

Officials Puzzled, Too.

Federal officials here, in counties involved and at Dallas, were just as puzzled as the farmers.

The checks have been arriving in Oklahoma since the first of the month. An accurate check could not be made, but one county reported that from one to eight checks had been delivered by mailmen daily since Oct. 1. A newspaper correspondent at Haskell, in Muskogee county, estimated eighty checks had been received in that farming community.

Seven recipients of the checks were listed by correspondents and bankers. Banks and stores in the counties said they had cashed many checks, so many that they had lost track of names and amounts.

Some of Recipients.

At Haskell lucky farmers and their payments included: Earl Hobbs, $10; Howard Martin, $7; Jay Martin, $5 and $14 in separate checks; R. S. Graves, $10, and J. H. Walker, colored, $20.

Frank Hudson, president of the Pawnee National bank, said Jim Garner walked into his bank waving a $15 "relief" check and asked what to do with it. Garner said he had applied for relief.

"Cash it," said Hudson.

The next day Fred Kolb, another farmer, came in with a $10 check. He cashed it but regretted that he did not get $15 like his neighbor.

The following day in came Kolb, beaming. He had a second check for $20. "Tell Jim I am $5 ahead of him," he told Banker Hudson.

"Explanations" Don't Fit.

Governmental officers had plenty of explanations but none would fit.

E. R. Martin, Muskogee, assistant rehabilitation director, said the checks might be emergency grants on applications for small drouth relief loans. The emergency grants, on applications of $50 to $100, are between $5 and $15, he said.

Two Muskogee county farmers who got checks denied that they had applied for loans. Farmer Graves said he asked for a WPA job last summer but made no request for a loan. Farmer Hobbs said he discussed a loan, dropped his request and never signed anything. Each, however, got money.

R. L. Turner, resettlement administrator for Tulsa county, where no checks have yet appeared, hazarded the guess the checks might be "for groceries." The government, he said, has bought groceries for some families.

But They Would Know.

Turner declared, however, that receivers of grocery checks certainly would know they were on the free grocery list. None of the farmers who got checks in the four counties were on any grocery lists.

Tulsa County Agent O. J. Moyer, close to farm relief work, said government checks were sent to some farmers for service on debt adjustment committees. He pointed out that a committeeman ought to know if he was serving on a committee. None of the farmers who got money from Dallas knew of being on any committees.

IMPERIAL YACHT CLUB, ONCE LED BY KAISER, QUITS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

KIEL, Germany, Oct. 28.—"The Imperial Yacht club is dissolved as from today," said the text of a resolution adopted at a special meeting of the members here tonight.

Thus ends the career of a club whose annual regatta in prewar days rivaled the brilliancy of that at Cowes, England. The club was founded in 1891 with former Kaiser Wilhelm II., as its first commodore. His brother, Grand Admiral Prince Heinrich of Prussia was vice commodore.

In those days every officer of the Germany navy was a member of the club. After the war an attempt was made to revive its former glory, but membership dwindled and although the resolution of disbandment does not disclose the reason, it is known to be at least partly due to financial troubles.

BE LIKE HITLER, EAT NO BUTTER OR MEAT, NAZIS TOLD

Goering Boasts of Loss of 22 Pounds Through Diet.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 28.—"We shall hack finger after finger off the foreign hand clutching at Germany's throat within the next four years," declared Col. Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, minister of air, at a vast Nazi rally here tonight.

Goering, launching his program to carry through the Nazi four year economic plan, brought cheers from his audience as he laid the blame for Germany's economic plight upon the unreasonableness of other countries.

"They blame us because we want raw materials and want a share in the world's wealth," the four year plan commissar said. "I tell them we do want our share and we are going to get it, too.

'World Should Be Thankful.'

"The world should be thankful that we seek to obtain what we want by peaceful methods. Our colonies were stolen from us after an unlucky war. They tell us to pay with gold, but our gold also was stolen through reparations, dues, and inflations. We answer, 'Give us back our gold and we will pay you with it.'"

Pledging he would lead Germany into the promised land in less than the alloted time, Goering outlined his task.

First, he declared, no German had starved, nor would starve. The high seas fishing fleet will be increased, he asserted, so the people can eat fish when meat is not available. Whale fishing will be developed for the margarine it can produce, he promised.

Urges Less Butter Eating.

Goering urged all Germans to follow the example of Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler who, he said, eats neither meat nor butter. The audience yelled with delight when the robust Goering told them he had lost 22 pounds by eating less butter.

Germany would prefer the old system of international exchange of wares, but this now is impossible in a mad world, so Germany will build her factories, produce her own synthetic rubber and her own substitutes for cotton and other materials for which she now must spend millions of dollars yearly, the general declared.

"There will doubtless be the usual opposition of the public to new substitutes," he said. "But just as the Nazi monarch, Frederick the Great, forced his people to grow and eat potatoes, so I will see to it that the people accept the novelty to their own benefit."

BANKER 'SHORT' $400,000; IS HELD IN $25,000 BOND

Uhrichsville, O., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Charles Wheland, 45 years old, president of the Union Bank of Uhrichsville, pleaded guilty in Justice court late today to charges of making false reports and false entries which he said amounted to about $400,000.

Justice of the Peace John Law at New Philadelphia, the county seat, ordered Wheland held to the grand jury under $25,000 bond.

Samuel H. Squire, state banking superintendent, who filed the charge, said the bank would be liquidated, with payment to depositors in full up to $5,000 each under the federal deposit insurance corporation. He said the $400,000 loss would wipe out the capital stock and surplus.

In addition to his banking interests Wheland is president of Robinson & Son Pipe company, president of the Gnadenhutten Building and Loan company, president of the Twin Cities Theater company, which operates four theaters, and president of the Tuscarawas County Aviation company of New Philadelphia.

FISHERMAN'S BODY RECOVERED.

Escanaba, Mich., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Searchers today recovered the body of Walter Brandao, 28, commercial fisherman, who with his father, Ludwig, 55, was drowned in Little Bay de Noquet last night. Their capsized boat, with the propeller tangled in the fishing nets, was found. Searching parties still are looking for the father.

Summerdale Police Move Into Their New Station

After spending several months in temporary quarters at 5256 Broadway, the Summerdale police moved yesterday into their new station at 1940 Foster avenue. The Summerdale station is one of several built by WPA labor. The Albany Park police expect to move into their new building at 4461 North Pulaski road tomorrow.

$18,000 ANNUITY IS 'PIN MONEY' TO GREEN'S WIDOW

She Denies Knowing of Estate Waiver.

New York, Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Mrs. Mabel Harlow Green, widow of Col. Edward H. R. Green, son of Hetty Green and heir to the vast estate left by her, testified at a hearing in the Bar Association building today that she considered the $18,000 life annuity provided for her by her husband as merely "pin money."

Continuing her fight for a share in the estate of Col. Green, the 66 year old widow was questioned closely about an agreement she signed before her marriage to Col. Green in 1917. Under that agreement she waived all rights to his estate in lieu of an $18,000 annuity for the rest of her life.

Sister Named in Will.

Mrs. Green is contesting the will of Col. Green, filed in Port Henry, N. Y., naming his sister, Mrs. Matthew Astor Wilks, as sole beneficiary. The hearing here today was a continuation of proceedings instituted before Surrogate Harry E. Owen of Essex county in Port Henry. The hearings were transferred to New York by consent of counsel because of the availability of certain records in the case.

The widow testified today that she kept the agreement she had signed in bank vault boxes with other papers and never referred to it "because it didn't mean anything to me." She said she knew nothing of its provisions.

Tells About "Surprise."

"You knew it provided a trust fund for you, didn't you?" she was asked by Timothy Pfeuffer, counsel to Mrs. Wilks.

"I knew it provided a trust fund for pin money," the widow replied.

She said it was a surprise to her when her attorney read the provisions of the agreement after her husband's death.

Mrs. Green testified that she had known Col. Green for at least twenty-five years before her marriage to him and that she had lived at a house he owned in West 90th street from 1910 to 1917. Prior to her residence in New York she said she lived in Dallas, Tex., under the name of Mrs. M. E. Staunton, for seventeen years.

"Did you live alone?" she was asked.

"No, Col. Green lived there," she replied.

MAYOR WARNS ON GANG INFLUX TO PHILADELPHIA

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Mayor S. Davis Wilson said today he had been "informed from an official source" that 100 Chicago "mobsters" were on their way to Philadelphia. Declaring he had drawn a "deadline" around the city, he warned "the racketeers and gunmen of the United States" not to cross.

"We have checked some Illinois license plates and learn that the Chicagoans were going to set up a headquarters here," he went on. "I now serve notice on them not to come. I will give them short shrift, a shorter shrift than they get in Chicago. God help any gunman who crosses the deadline."

The mayor voiced his warning as he commended four policemen involved in the capture of Steve Lekiots of Chicago, charged with two holdups here last night. Lekiots' bride of six months, a companion he named as J. H. Dale, and Dale's wife are being sought.

WOMAN SEIZED IN HOME AS HIT AND RUN DRIVER

Report Hospital Head in Critical Condition.

Miss Sylvia Davis, 25 years old, 712 Diversey parkway, was locked up at the detective bureau last night as the hit and run driver of the automobile which early in the day struck and injured Alfred C. Meyer, 53 years old, in front of his home in the Parkshore apartments at 1755 East 55th street.

Mr. Meyer, an insurance broker, was reported in critical condition at the Michael Reese hospital. He is president of the board of the hospital.

Also arrested was Albert Waldman, 5417 Cornell avenue, whose automobile Miss Davis was driving at the time of the accident. Waldman, who is married and the father of three children, is the owner of a restaurant and tavern at 164 North Michigan avenue.

Waldman was later released on a $50 bond. He will appear today before Judge Joseph A. Graber in Safety court.

Admits False Report of Theft.

Meyer was struck as he stepped from the auto of David B. Silverman, 4933 Ellis avenue, who had driven him home from a meeting of the hospital board. Silverman had stopped his car, facing west, on the south side of 55th street, the wrong side of the street.

Miss Davis stopped momentarily and then speeded away and abandoned the car in front of the Palm Grove Inn, 5500 South Shore drive. Police traced the car to Waldman who had reported his car stolen shortly after the accident.

Waldman was seized in his home and brought to the Hyde Park police station where he finally admitted the report of the theft was false. He named Miss Davis as the driver and said he had allowed her to use his car during the evening. Waldman said he had known Miss Davis, who was formerly employed in his tavern as the operator of the "26" dice game, for the last year and had frequently allowed her the use of the car.

Woman Admits Driving Car.

Waldman said Miss Davis had telephoned him after the accident and that later she met him at his tavern. There they decided to make the false report that the car was stolen, he asserted, because he "didn't want to get in a jam."

Miss Davis was arrested in her apartment and at first denied she was the driver of the car. Later, when faced by Waldman in the station, she admitted she was the driver. She said that she was alone in the car and was driving to meet Waldman in his tavern when the accident occurred.

"After the accident I became panic stricken," she told police. "I stopped for a minute and some man came up and said 'Hello, girlie, are you alone?', and I said yes. Then he told me to drive on."

Miss Davis was also identified as the driver by Mrs. Mabel Kaufman, 5520 South Shore drive, who with her husband witnessed the accident.

Miss Davis told police she was employed as a saleswoman in a loop millinery shop.

WIDOW KILLED IN ELGIN

Mrs. Mary Jasper, 75 years old, 5055 Windsor avenue, a widow, was killed when she was struck while walking in Villa street in Elgin by an automobile driven by Max Herrin, 509 Hammond avenue, Elgin. Herrin was not held.

Arlo J. Shirt, 25 years old, 1028 East Front street, Bloomington, Ill., died last night in the Berwyn hospital of injuries incurred Tuesday when his automobile collided with another car at Joliet and Mannheim roads, near La Grange. Three other persons were injured in the crash.

A coroner's jury ordered Harold Mazza, 534 North Leclaire avenue, held to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter at the inquest into the death of Waldo Hilyard, 24 years old, 1515 Monroe street. Hilyard was fatally injured Oct. 2 when he was struck by Mazza's car at Warren boulevard and Paulina street.

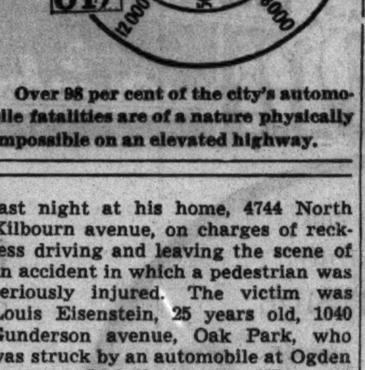
Pedestrian Hurt; Seize Driver.

William Adams, 27 years old, a gasoline station attendant, was arrested last night at his home, 4744 North Kilbourn avenue, on charges of reckless driving and leaving the scene of an accident in which a pedestrian was seriously injured. The victim was Louis Eisenstein, 25 years old, 1040 Gunderson avenue, Oak Park, who was struck by an automobile at Ogden avenue and Madison street. Witnesses asked the driver to follow them as they took the injured man to the County hospital. Adams followed for three blocks, then drove away, police said. Police traced his license number and he was locked up at the Des Plaines street station.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 810 persons had been killed in automobile accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 617 were killed in Chicago. In the same period 15,903 were injured in trafic accidents within the city.

THE MASSACRE

Chicago's 1936 Trafic Toll



Over 98 per cent of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

JITTERY AUTOIST GETS 10 DAYS FOR DRUNKEN DRIVING

Suffering from "jitters," Clarence Waldron, 37 years old, of Bensenville, pleaded guilty yesterday before Judge Joseph A. Graber in Safety court to driving his automobile while intoxicated Tuesday. He was sentenced to ten days in the county jail.

Waldron was arrested when he caused a trafic jam at Central avenue and Dakin street. Police said he was so intoxicated he was unable to walk.

William Olson, 37 years old, 1824 North Albany avenue, was sentenced to ten days in the county jail on a similar charge.

In Evanston Municipal court Judge James M. Corcoran sentenced James Hunt, 37 years old, 4821 Greenleaf avenue, Niles Center, to ten days in the county jail for driving while intoxicated as the result of an accident last Nov. 17.

As the result of a concerted campaign to prosecute some 1,800 trafic violators who have managed to ignore court summons in the last two years, twelve of the old offenders were brought before Judge John Gutknecht in Trafic court yesterday and fined.

GUNMEN USE GIRL AS DECOY IN TWO OFFICE HOLDUPS

Two robbers used a young woman as a decoy in two holdups last night. First, the woman entered the office of Dr. Michael C. Goy, 1574 Milwaukee avenue, and asked the physician for a heart stimulant. As he was examining her two gunmen entered. They tied the doctor on his examination table, took his watch and $5, and fled with the girl.

Soon afterward the same young woman entered the office of Dr. Emil Cornowski, a dentist, at 1605 West Chicago avenue. She complained of a toothache. The dentist was about to treat one of her teeth when the woman's pals arrived. They took $25 from Dr. Cornowski and escaped.

Wm. D. Sheahan, Veteran of Stock Exchange, Is Dead

William Drury Sheahan, 190 East Pearson street, one of the four oldest members of the Chicago Stock exchange, died early yesterday in St. Joseph's hospital. He was 74 years old. Born in Chicago, Mr. Sheahan was educated here and at Georgetown university, Washington, D. C. He joined the Chicago Stock exchange in 1894. A brother, John Samuel Sheahan of Springfield, and several nieces and nephews survive. The funeral will be held at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow from the chapel at 1158 North Clark street to Holy Name cathedral.

CITY ACTS TO END NOISY WHISTLING BY RIVER CRAFT

New Bridge Signal Method Sought.

Methods of abating the nuisance of boats whistling for opening of bridges in the Chicago river were discussed at a public hearing held yesterday by the city council committee on harbors, wharves, and bridges, headed by Ald. William A. Rowan [10th]. The committee, after hearing both condemnation and defense of the whistling, referred the matter to the city engineering department with instructions that a less noisy interbridge communication system be worked out.

Objections to the annoyance and loss caused in business offices through interruptions were presented by a group headed by Attorney Aribert Wild, representing the owners of ten large office buildings along the Chicago river.

Building Clients' Protest.

"My clients," Attorney Wild said, "complain that the whistles impair the efficiency of their workers, interrupt conversations and conferences, and interfere with such important business as long distance telephone calls.

"They take the position that this costly interference with their pursuits can be prevented simply by the installation of a signal system to notify each bridge tender that a boat seeks passage.

"The problem can be solved by the city, for Chicago has the power to regulate its bridges. It seems utterly silly for a boat bound up or down river to whistle for each bridge to open."

Companies Blame Tugs.

Navigation company representatives declared that much of the whistling is done by tugs, adding that this is the only present means of intercommunication between these service vessels.

Ald. John F. Healy [6th] declared that private yachts cause much inconvenience to trafic by passing up or down river during busy hours, instead of unstepping their masts to avoid bridge raisings or passing through with larger boats.

M. W. Ottoshagen, an engineer in the city's river and harbor division, pointed out also that private yachts moored in the river narrow the channel and are a source of anxiety to the officers of boats that must pass them.

OHIOAN KILLS WIFE, CHILDREN, THEN HIMSELF

Akron, O., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Relatives, paying a call to the home of William Harrison Slaybaugh, 46, of suburban Cuayhoga Falls, found the entire family of four wiped out by rifle fire tonight.

The dead were Slaybaugh; his wife, Josephine, 42; their son William Jr., 12, and daughter, Marilyn, 10.

County Prosecutor Harman E. Werner said Slaybaugh had shot his wife and his children, then himself. He was a draftsman at the B. F. Goodrich company plant here.

Werner said neighbors reported that Slaybaugh had complained of a severe headache for several days.

Harry Hartnett, Retired Police Sergeant, Is Dead

Harry J. Hartnett, 57 years old, 887 North La Salle street, retired city police sergeant, died at home yesterday after a long illness. Mr. Hartnett had been a member of the Chicago force for more than twenty-five years when he was pensioned in 1931. His sister, Katherine, survives. Funeral services will be held at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow in St. Gertrude's church. Burial will be in Calvary cemetery.

Fred C. Dickson, Indiana Business Leader, Is Dead

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Fred C. Dickson, 60, president of the Indiana Trust company here and one of the state's most prominent business men, died today of pneumonia.

KENTUCKIAN, MOURNED AS DEAD, VISITS OLD HOME AFTER 40 YEARS

Whitesburg, Ky., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Jack Hendricks, 60, came back to the Lookout section of Pike county yesterday after he had been mourned as dead for many years.

Hendricks left his home at Lookout nearly forty years ago, going west. At that time it was more than sixty miles downstate to the nearest railroad station.

He walked the distance and there boarded a train for the west—taking the advice of Horace Greeley. Hendricks landed in St. Louis penniless. He looked about for work for his willing hands. There was no work. He went further west. At length he got work on a ranch in Texas. From a little beginning Hendricks finally became wealthy. But he didn't write back, so relatives believed him dead. Two brothers were living when he returned, but they could not recognize him. Age had left its impress—he was gray, and bent. Father and mother were gone as well as brothers and sisters. After a few days' visit Hendricks will return to Texas—San Antonio—where he is one of the city's popular citizens.

PIONEER IN FIELD OF COMMERCIAL WIRELESS DIES

New York, Oct. 28.—(AP)—William J. Blenheim, 58, who established the first two commercially operated wireless telegraph circuits in the world, under British government contract, died here today at the broad Street hospital.

Blenheim was American trafic manager of the Western Union Telegraph company's cable system. He lived in Newark, N. J.

In 1897 and 1898 Blenheim was demonstrator in the London laboratory of Sir Oliver Lodge, physicist, who at that time was engaged in the early experiments which later produced the wireless telegraphy and radio of today. After the system had been brought to fruition by Marconi, Blenheim was the principal research and engineering officer of the Lodge-Muirhead Wireless Telegraph company.

In that capacity he established, under British government contract, the first commercially operated wireless telegraph circuits in the world between Rangoon and Andaman Island in the Indian ocean, and between Georgetown [Demerara], British Guiana, and Port of Spain, Trinidad, in the Caribbean sea.

Charles S. Wyckoff, 94, Is Dead; Civil War Veteran

Charles Stewart Wyckoff, 94 years old, a civil war veteran, died on Tuesday in his home at 3640 Lake Park avenue, where he had lived for the last 35 years. He was born in New Jersey and served with a regiment from that state in the civil war. Later he came west to make his home at Quincy, Ill., moving to Chicago in 1895. He was engaged in the wholesale shoe and woolen goods business until his retirement thirteen years ago. His daughter, Mrs. Jessie Wyckoff Marks, survives. The funeral will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow in the family home.

South Bend Man, 72, Falls 3 Feet from Ladder; Dies

South Bend., Ind., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—John Biedermann, 72, fell 3 feet to his death here this afternoon when stricken by a heart attack while at work on a ladder.

EFFA DAVIS, 73, DIES; PROMINENT AS OBSTETRICIAN

Dr. Effa V. Davis, obstetrician in chief and a member of the board of the Chicago Maternity hospital until her retirement early this year because of illness, died yesterday in her home at 512 Wrightwood avenue. She was 73 years old.

Born in Freedom, La Salle county, Ill., Dr. Davis was graduated from Northwestern university medical school in 1891. Since that time she had practiced in Chicago. Dr. Davis was assistant clinical professor of obstetrics at Rush Medical college. She was associated with the Womens and Children's hospital and the American hospital.

Dr. Davis was a director of the Medical Women's National association and a past president of the Chicago Council of Medical Women. She also was a member of the American, Illinois, and Chicago Medical societies. Surviving are a sister, Mrs. W. B. Hull of Morris, Ill., a niece, and a nephew.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Saturday in Graceland cemetery chapel.

WOMAN ACCUSED AS QUACK DENIES GUILT AT TRIAL

Mrs. Valerie Klinger, 35 years old, 6641 North Artesian avenue, on trial in the county court on a charge of giving medical treatment without a physician's license, faced a state investigator today and denied diagnosing or treating ailments for her. "In fact," she concluded, "I never saw her before."

The investigator, Mrs. Charlotte Hermes, who is employed by the state department of education and registration, had told the jury that Mrs. Kinger went into a trance, quivered and shook, then massaged her.

"She told me one of my arms might go out of joint, that there was something wrong with my stomach, back and neck and that she could cure me if I went to her frequently."

In her denial Mrs. Klinger declared that her "power" is purely spiritual. The case is being tried before County Judge Win G. Knock of Du Page county, who is sitting in the Cook county court.

Wife Asks Divorce from International Paper Head

Tucson, Ariz., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Records of the Pima county Superior court disclosed today that Mrs. Claire Patton Graustein filed suit for divorce yesterday against Archibald R. Graustein, New York City, president of the International Paper and Power company. Date of the hearing has not been set by Judge William G. Hall.

Mrs. Graustein, a native of Georgia, has been spending the winters in Tucson since 1926. She met Graustein in 1929 here and they were married March 13 of that year in El Paso, Tex. Graustein has two children by a former marriage.

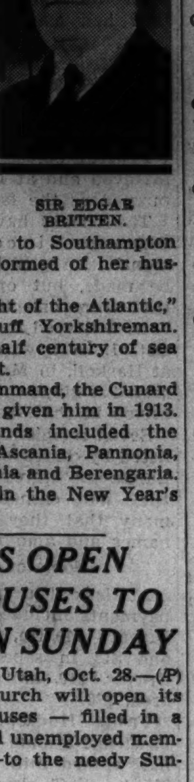
Edward Winchell, Artist and Newspaper Man, Dies

Mount Vernon, N. Y., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Edward Everett Winchell, 76, commercial artist and newspaper man, died yesterday at his home here. Mr. Winchell was one of the early users of halftones in the pages of the Buffalo Press. He traveled for many years for the Field Museum of Chicago in the interests of transportation and was with the American Bank Note company for ten years.

EDGAR BRITTEN, SKIPPER OF LINER QUEEN MARY, DIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Capt. Sir Edgar Britten, 62, commander of Great Britain's proudest ship, the Queen Mary, and commodore of the Cunard-White Star fleet, died today at Southampton. He was stricken by paralysis while in his cabin. The liner sailed on schedule, commanded by Capt. R. V. Peel, skipper of the Berengaria, who assumed command on two hours' notice.



SIR EDGAR BRITTEN.

Lady Britten was on her way to Southampton when she was informed of her husband's death.

Called the "knight of the Atlantic," Britten was a bluff Yorkshireman. He had nearly a half century of sea service to his credit.

Britten's first command, the Cunard liner Phrygia, was given him in 1913. Later his commands included the Carmania, Lycia, Ascania, Pannonia, Maurentia, Aquitania and Berengaria. He was knighted in the New Year's honors of 1934.

MORMONS OPEN STOREHOUSES TO NEEDY ON SUNDAY

Salt Lake City, Utah, Oct. 28.—(AP)—The Mormon church will open its bounteous storehouses — filled in a program to take all unemployed members "off relief"—to the needy Sunday.

The "budget system" will govern distribution of food, clothing, and medical supplies to about 15,000 persons reported eligible for aid, administrators said.

A dozen strategically located storehouses were crammed with preserved food and home-made clothing throughout the summer. The church created work projects and ward-farms, those employed receiving certificates redeemable in goods. A similar program is planned for next year.

DEATH NOTICES

In Memoriam.

GROSS—William Gross. In loving memory of our husband, father, and grandfather, who passed away one year ago today, Oct. 29, 1935.

The sun and moon are shining
On a lone and silent grave.
Beneath lies one we dearly loved
But whom we could not save.
Friends may think we have forgotten
When at times they see us smile.
Little do they know the heartaches
That our smile hides all the while.

Wife, Children, and Grandchildren.

Shirtwaist Takes to Plaids

MISS' FROCK.

Figures from 12 to 20 look demure and trim in this shirtwaist frock which adheres to tradition while partaking of several new style points. This is a practical frock, a joy in any active young woman's wardrobe. It may go to campus, classroom, business, club activities and games and be perfectly at home. It is the perfect winter dress, too, because it takes to woolens like a charm.

You have a choice in styling, and when you have arranged the details cleverly, no one will know that you have made two stunning frocks with one simple pattern. The larger sketch presents this dress in a small plaid. This version of the frock has a shirtwaist collar, the top "deck" of which is matched by the binding down the front. Buttons create a large share of the dash which this little dress possesses, and the shoulderline is attractive on slim silhouettes.

The smaller sketch shows the same frock restyled for sheer woolens in novelty weaves. The sleeves, in this case, are short. The shirtwaist collar has been left to the other frock, and a stand-up band has been substituted. Buttons extend only to below the waistline, although there is absolutely no reason under heaven why you cannot have them all the way down the front.

Silks are, or course, possibilities for this dress and velveteen is a definitly smart choice.

Style No. 2812 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20 years. Size 16 requires 3⅝ yards of 39 inch material, with ⅝ yard of 39 inch contrasting.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The high regard the party strategists have for radio oratory is better demonstrated in today's radio schedules than at any time up to now. Almost a score of broadcasts sponsored by the national parties will have outlets over Chicago stations today. There are still others which will be unavailable to local listeners. Gov. Landon will speak twice, at 5:45 p. m. over WMAQ from his New York hotel suite, and at 9:30 when he appears at Madison Square Garden with W-G-N and WBBM as outlets. The W-G-N report will be carried by direct wire from New York City.

Supporting Gov. Landon at various points on the dial during the evening will be ex-Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, and Alfalfa Bill Murray, former governor of Oklahoma. The Democrats are relying on Hugh S. Johnson, who will be speaking from Independence, Kas., Gov. Landon's home town, and Secretaries Cordell Hull, Henry Wallace, and Frances Perkins. Detailed listings may be found in adjoining columns.

All this broadcasting will cost the national parties a pretty penny. The NBC blue network, which has WENR or WLS as local outlets, appears to be getting the lion's share of this cash. That's probably because the blue network has fewer sponsored programs than the NBC red or Mutual and Columbia, and thus it is easier to clear the stations linked in on this chain. Tonight, for example, WLS and WENR are carrying major political addresses from 8 o'clock straight through to 11 o'clock with the exception of the half hour from 9 to 9:30. And Hugh Johnson had originally been spotted for this period, but was suddenly switched to the 8:30 to 9 spot on WMAQ-NBC. That puts him on at the same time Alfalfa Bill is speaking on WENR. At press time the Ballet Russe was to be aired over WENR from 9 to 9:30. But that can and may be canceled for politics in case another last minute call is made.

Gov. Landon is to make an additional broadcast from Charleston. W. Va., tomorrow at 6 p. m. over WBBM-CBS. This engagement was announced yesterday. On Saturday Gov. Landon will be on the air from St. Louis from 10:30 to 11 p. m. over W-G-N, WBBM, and WMAQ.

Gov. Landon is expected to make his final radio appeal on Monday evening, though the time and outlets have not yet been arranged.

President Roosevelt will be on the air from 9:30 to 10:30 p. m. Saturday evening from Madison Square Garden with both WBBM and WMAQ carrying his speech.

His final broadcast is to be made from 11 p. m. to midnight Monday, election eve. The origination point or points for this broadcast has not yet been announced because several other New Deal speakers may be heard on this broadcast. WBBM, WMAQ, and WENR will be outlets here.

"Halloween Menus," a brand new booklet of novel menus and recipes for Halloween parties, is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, for 5 cents; by mail, 8 cents. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

If you never have yielded to that impulse to jab with your dinner fork the table wit who, in passing something to you, remarks brightly "sweets to the sweet," "nuts to the nutty," or "have some honey, honey," then you can, perhaps, refrain from drowning him with your tumblerful of water when the bright remark is "how about a little date, huh?"

The "little dates," or the big fat ones you find occasionally, make exceedingly attractive table gear, served either stuffed and sugared as after dinner sweets, or in breads, cookies, puddings, and pies. And after the punster has been ignored or dumped out on to the back doorstep, these dates or date dishes may be eaten with zest. They're good energy food.

Date Pie.

1 baked pastry shell
1 package pasteurized dates
1 cup cold water
2 tablespoons orange juice
1 cup whipping cream
2 tablespoons confectioner's sugar

Cook the dates and water together to a thick paste. Remove from fire and add orange juice. Let the mixture stand until it is cool. Chill and fill the baked crust just before serving. Top with the whipped cream sweetened with the sugar.

CHEESE STUFFED DATES.

Use the large dates if possible. Remove pits and fill with cream or cottage cheese, moistened with heavy cream and seasoned with salt and cayenne pepper. Chopped almonds [blanched] may be added to the cheese mixture.

Uncooked Date Dessert.

[Serves 12.]

½ pound graham crackers, crushed
2 cups dates, cut into pieces
½ pound marshmallows, cut into pieces
1 cup chopped nut meats
1 cup whipping cream
1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine half the crushed crackers with the dates, marshmallows and nuts, and moisten with the whipped cream. Shape into a roll, roll in the remaining crums, and chill the loaf. Serve it in slices topped with whipped cream.

Quick Date Cake.

⅔ cup soft butter
1⅓ cups brown sugar
2 eggs
½ cup milk
1¾ cups sifted flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon grated nutmeg
½ pound dates, cut into pieces

Place all ingredients in a bowl and stir together vigorously with a wooden mixing spoon for 3 minutes. Pour into buttered and floured muffin tins and bake for about 35 minutes in a 350 degree oven.

Date Yeast Bread.

1 cup scalded milk
½ teaspoon salt
½ tablespoon shortening
2 teaspoons sugar
½ to 1 yeast cake
½ cup luke warm milk or water
4 to 4½ cups all purpose flour
1 package pasteurized dates

Pour scalded milk over the salt, shortening and sugar in a large mixing bowl. Cool to luke warm and add yeast which has been softened in luke warm milk or water. Stir in flour to form a soft dough. Knead lightly on a floured board until smooth and elastic. Place in a lightly oiled bowl, cover and allow to rise in a warm place until the dough has doubled in bulk. Cut dates into pieces and knead them into the dough. Shape into a loaf, place in oiled pan and let rise again until light. Bake in a hot oven [425 degrees] for 45 minutes or longer.

For Quick Cough Relief, Mix This Remedy, at Home
No Cooking. No Work. Real Saving

Here's an old home remedy your mother used, but, for real results, it is still the best thing ever known for coughs that start from colds. Try it once, and you'll swear by it.

It's no trouble at all. Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments until dissolved. No cooking is needed—a child could do it.

Now put 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of actually better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for four times the money. It keeps perfectly, tastes fine, and lasts a family a long time.

And there is positively nothing like it for quick action. You can feel it take hold instantly. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the inflamed membranes, and helps clear the air passages. No cough remedy, at any price, could be more effective.

Pinex is a concentrated compound of Norway Pine, famous for its prompt action on throat and bronchial membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Asserts Child Actors Spend Happy Youth

Anita Louise Recalls Her Girlhood Days.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Anita Louise, who used to be a child film star [she's only 19 now and she has been playing film ingénues for five years] and Sybil Jason were lunching together in the Warner studio lunch room. The chat grew confidential. Sybil, who will be seven next Tuesday, first discussed dolls and ponies. Then a studio photographer came by and took a picture of them and Sybil became very serious.

"Did people used to feel sorry for you, too?" she asked Anita.

Anita told the black haired child star that many people, in fact, did shake their heads over her when she worked in pictures as a child but that she had never understood just why.

"It's funny" said Sybil, "some people just don't seem to hear me when I tell them how much fun I have." She leaned over closer to Anita. "Did you have fun in pictures when you were 7 years old?" she asked in a stage whisper.

"Lots of fun," Anita agreed. "But people used to feel sorry for me anyhow. They just didn't understand."

"Well," said Sybil with great finality, "I'm having fun in spite of them."

"I've never seen a so-called 'motion picture child' who didn't look happy," Anita remarked to a couple of sideliners. "I've never heard of one who landed in the reform school or penitentiary.

"I think I'm more conscious of the reaction to child actresses than the average player because I was one for so many years. I know, in a way at least, what is ahead of Sybil and Shirley Temple and they can expect more happiness than unhappiness if my experience is a yardstick to figure by.

"I get much out of patience with all the people who say or think when they meet me, 'Poor Anita, you got cheated out of your childhood, didn't you? Poor Anita!'

"I haven't been cheated," says Anita. "I've been lucky. I would not change places with any one in the world. I don't believe any girl ever had a happier childhood than I had. I don't feel that I've been cheated out of anything or that I have missed any vital experiences that the average young person encounters while growing up to the ripe old age of twenty.

"I've had a wonderful time. I've had a happy childhood and my work in pictures never really was anything but fun. I've grown up now but I find no regrets."

Anita had one more objection to voice.

"I'm no longer a child. I'm almost 20. I dislike to see myself referred to as a 'fragile blonde.' I'm not fragile. I'm tall and strong and almost never sick. I like to swim and ride and dance and I enjoy 'being my age'."

Anita Louise was 10 years old before she knew that Santa Claus didn't come down the chimney. That's how carefully her mother, Mrs. Ann Beresford, protected her childhood and kept her a little girl.

She played a "grown up" rôle in Europe when she was 9. She was supposed to be a young woman of 15 in a story based on the life of Franz Schubert.

"Michael Brooke" has been chosen as the screen name for the 25 year old British earl of Warwick who has been imported by Metro to be made into a movie leading man. His lordship's real name is Charles Guy Fulke Greville.

Edward R. Small, producing at RKO-Radio, has signed Charlie MacArthur and Ben Hecht to do the screen treatment for "Gunga Din" and Howard Hawks who will direct it is in New York conferring prior to the playwrights' trip west for the chore.

Preston Foster helped rescue Martin Herstich, seaman first class, U. S. coast guard, when the later was burned by steam from the whistle of the coast guard cutter Tahoe during a shipboard scene for "Coast Patrol" yesterday. Seaman Hertich was on the funnel and hot steam scooted up his trouser leg.

Gladys Swarthout sang her songs for Paramount's "Champagne Waltz" in French, Spanish, Italian, and German as well as English for the foreign releases. The dialog will be dubbed in in the foreign countries.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Curtains Are Badly Needed.

From a caseworker in a north side district office. "Dear Miss Brown: Mr. and Mrs. Y. have been managing carefully, as Mr. Y. was earning so little that they had no money for household goods or for clothing. They were living in furnished rooms. He recently had an opportunity to move into an unfurnished apartment, as friends have given the most essential articles, but there are no curtains in the house. If any of your readers are discarding these, this couple would appreciate having them."

Woman Wishes Books in German.

"Dear Miss Brown: I am writing in behalf of an elderly German woman who lives next door to me. She often has expressed a wish for some story books written in her native language, and I wonder if you could help her. H. G."

This woman's name will be given to any reader who has books in that language.

2 MUSIC COPYRIGHT INFRINGEMENT CASES DECIDED IN COURT

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—One defendant was dismissed and the other assessed $150 damages today in federal court by Judge F. A. Geiger, who heard the first two of twenty-eight copyright infringement cases brought against tavernkeepers and dance hall operators by the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers.

Robert Hess, attorney for the siciety, charged that William Paul, operator of a tavern and night club in Sturgeon Bay, violated the license when he played copyrighted music in the café part of his establishment. The court held that the license covered the entire building and dismissed the case.

Joseph W. Becher of Green Bay was assessed $150 when it was shown he was operating two dance halls and possessed only one license.

Wis., will speak at luncheon.

William Allen White Wants Campus 'Revolt'

Boston, Mass., Oct. 28.—(AP)—William Allen White, editor of the Emporia [Kas.] Gazette, said tonight he would "like to see more riots on college campuses."

He made the remark during an interview, in which he asserted: "I wish we could develop in the prairie states west of the Mississippi something akin to the literary movement in the south."

"I envy the south its young voices," he said, "Faulkner, Tate, Basso, Margaret Mitchell, and Thomas Wolfe."

Asked why couldn't the west emulate the south, White retorted: "I don't know, lack of revolt, satisfaction with the present, perhaps. I'd like to see more riots on college campuses."

White, known as the sage of Kansas and one of the early supporters of Gov. Alf M. Landon, Republican candidate for President, declined to talk politics.

"All I'll say is that I have seen Landon only three times since last June, and I'm not a member of his board of strategy. I am not participating in this campaign."

Earlier, when he arrived for a Boston visit, White asserted:

"The Democratic national committee has conducted a campaign of pure fake on the Kansas common school system in order to smear Landon.

"It has a basis in the fact that we have 400, more or less, vacant school houses that once housed 8,000 children," he said, "but these closed schoolhouses represent a school union or consolidation movement."

Tonight White gave an informal talk before the Harvard club of Boston, but the meeting was limited to members, and his remarks were not reported.

Valparaiso President to Head Eastern College

New York, Oct. 28.—(AP)—The electoral college of the New York Lutheran Pastoral conference today selected Dr. Oscar Carl Kreinheder, president of Valparaiso [Ind.] university, to be the president of Concordia Lutheran college, at Bronxville, N. Y. Dr. Kreinheder has been president of Valparaiso since 1930.

Wife Foolish to Exaggerate Mate's Faults

For His Every Idiosyncrasy She Has One Herself.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Please advise me how to behave under the conditions I now relate.

"I have been married eighteen years and have three fine children. My husband is good in most respects, but when we have relatives staying with us for any length of time, he acts as if I were not present at all. He never adresses a remark to me. He talks over my head, and all around me but never mentions my name. I feel terribly hurt about it. It seems as if he were ashamed of me before his people. The same behavior is noticeable before my people. He is as nice to my people, I will admit in fairness, as he is to his own." Devoted.

Now, don't you think, Devoted, you are going out of your way to stir up trouble for yourself? The man probably is blissfully unaware that he is making you suffer. A small hint from you, perhaps, would iron your trouble out instantly. Or, even if he chose to continue in the attitude of which you complain, why not set it down to one of those peccadillos to which we are all subject, more or less? There isn't a doubt in our mind but that the man, if questioned, would have a complaint to make about you, too. That's married life for you, or any relationship between two intimates. For each offense, real or imagined on one side, the other side is just as likely to possess one, too.

After all, in this marraige business one simply has to count her blessings, and the things she would not enter into such a category, and be grateful if the blessings are so many that the faults do not rise to the surface through sheer force of numbers. There isn't a married woman living but who could work up a case of some kind against her man, and vice versa, if the spirit were willing. But some women are clever enough to overlook a minor fault in the realization that they, too, may be creating a discordant note themselves.

After all, in the particular case cited above, the man is good to the visiting in-laws and that is something worth consideration. "Devoted" undoubtedly yearns for praise before the relatives, so she manufactures a case of neglect when it was the last thing intended. For eighteen years, she admits, she has had a companion who is good and kind and, in this day and age of wandering and misbehaving men, that is a record for which to get down on the knees and be grateful. No doubt Devoted will argue: "O, but I have been a perfect wife nd mother!"

Don't argue. Learn to accept life without magnifying flaws into mountains of misunderstanding and neglect. Then you have success by the tail. Don't, above all, go around nursing a petty grudge over an idiosyncrasy that isn't going to upset the apple cart unless you nurse it into an ignoble obsession.

New York Station Crowd Welcomes Mary Pickford

New York, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Mary Pickford, still America's sweetheart, judging from the crowd that greeted her in Grand Central station, rolled in on the 20th Century Limited today, fancy free, looking for fun, and not interested, she says, in ever making another motion picture. In a blue suit, gray fur coat, and blue hat trimmed with "lipstick red pompons," Miss Pickford insisted she has no plans to wed Buddy Rogers, band leader. Miss Pickford is here on business.

Pack Horse Library to Serve Kentucky County

Whitesburg, Ky., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—A pack horse library is planned in Pulaski county. It is planned to start a horse route over the remote sections of the mountain country, where good highways have not been built—this horse to carry a lot of the best books obtainable and which are to be distributed to the poorer class of people who are unable to purchase books.

You Guess if They'll Wed

Robert Taylor and Barbara Stanwyck in a scene from a recent movie. Taylor yesterday told reporters in his home town to "guess" if they'll marry. Taylor's mother said she didn't expect Miss Stanwyck to become her daughter-in-law.

Home Towners Go Wild Over Robert Taylor

Beatrice, Neb., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Bands played and crowds cheered Robert Taylor, screen star, on his return to his home town today.

"You guess," was Taylor's reply to a question concerning whether he and Barbara Stanwyck, actress, would wed, but his mother added, "I don't expect to have her for a daughter-in-law."

Mrs. S. A. Brugh, mother of the actor, asserted: "There's nothing to reports of a serious affair between my son and Miss Stanwyck. He likes all the girls and goes around with a great many of them. Barbara Stanwyck is a lovely girl."

Motorcycle police, an American Legion color guard, bands, and a long procession of automobiles escorted Taylor through the city's streets. A banner stretched across the highway entering the city greeted him with "Beatrice welcomes you, Robert Taylor." He motored here from Lincoln, Neb., where he went by airplane from Hollywood.

Schools were dismissed, and the children joined the thousands of persons who caught a glimpse of the actor in the parade and later saw him at a theater in the only personal appearance to be made during his three day visit. He was graduated from Beatrice High school as Spangler Arlington Brugh, and had not been here for several years.

Actress Irene Dunne Plans to Adopt Baby from Cradle

Irene Dunne, film actress, visited the Cradle in Evanston recently with the intention of adopting a baby, it was learned yesterday. She departed without taking a child, but arranged to return later, when she will select one of the infants from the famous baby home. Miss Dunne is the wife of Dr. Francis Griffin, New York physician. She began her career on the stage after studying at a Chicago musical college. Other movie notables who have adopted Cradle babies are George Burns and Gracie Allen, Al Jolson and Ruby Keeler, and Miriam Hopkins.

Whirligig.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Whirligig" is the one piece pattern which was designed for an allover coverlet. It is not the kind to make one dizzy, but the pattern certainly succeeds in mystifying the beholder. With soft shades of rose, blue, and white, "Whirligig" presents a maze of merry-go-rounds destined to intrigue even the expert. The pieced blocks are surrounded by a two inch white border and a half inch binding of contrasting color.

Cut in Teachers' Annuity Upheld by Supreme Court

The Illinois Supreme court has upheld an amendment passed by the general assembly last year reducing the emeritus annuities to retired school teachers from $1,500 to $500, attorneys for the board of education were notified yesterday. The case was appealed after Judge Harry B. Miller of the Superior court refused an injunction to restrain the board from reducing the payments. In addition to the $500 paid from the board's educational fund, each retired teacher receives an additional $1,200 a year under the teachers' pension law.

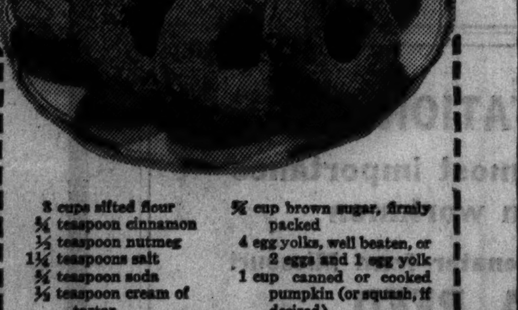
Dot's "surprise" recipe for FROSTY PUMPKIN DOUGHNUTS



3 cups sifted flour
¾ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1¼ teaspoons salt
¾ teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon cream of tartar
2 tablespoons Spry
¾ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
4 egg yolks, well beaten, or 2 eggs and 1 egg yolk
1 cup canned or cooked pumpkin (or squash, if desired)
¾ cup thick sour milk

Sift flour, spices, salt, soda and cream of tartar together 3 times. Cream Spry and brown sugar until well blended. Add egg yolks and mix well. Add pumpkin, then milk, and mix thoroughly. (Delicious made with squash, too.) Add sifted dry ingredients and mix until smooth.

With as little handling as possible, roll dough on floured board to ¼-inch thickness. Let dough stand 20 minutes. Cut with doughnut cutter.

Fry in deep Spry heated to 375°F, or until a doughnut center browns in one minute. Turn doughnuts when first crack appears. (Remember, no smoky, smelly kitchen when you fry with Spry.) Drain on absorbent paper. When doughnuts are cool, shake in a paper bag with granulated sugar. Makes 2 dozen 2½-inch doughnuts.

If sweet milk is used instead of sour milk, reduce milk to 3 tablespoons, omit soda and cream of tartar, and use 3½ teaspoons baking powder.

Want the best cakes, pies, fried foods you ever tasted? Try Spry!

... everything will be so digestible, too

Get ready for compliments. Spry cooks always get them! Spry cakes and biscuits are so light and delicate, Spry pastry so tender and flaky. And foods fried in Spry are marvelous—crisp, light, tender and as easy to digest as if baked or boiled. Just try them and see.

Spry is ALL-vegetable, purer, whiter, smooth as satin. It's triple-creamed, blends twice as fast, cuts cake-mixing time in half. Fries without smoke or unpleasant odor. Stays fresh right on the pantry shelf. No need to keep in the ice-box.

Spry saves you money, too. Just compare its modest price with the high cost of other shortenings used for cakes. Get Spry today. And be sure to make these delicious new doughnuts (recipe at right). The pumpkin gives them a delightfully different flavor. You'll love it!

In 1-lb. and 3-lb. cans

Asked About Wally Simpson

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mrs. Frederick L. Spencer had expected to be leaving soon to motor to Virginia with her sister, Mrs. Walter W. Crawford, but the latter is in the Passavant hospital with a broken leg, so their trip is postponed. They were going to visit their mother, Mrs. Ralph R. Richardson, who will remain in Virginia until about the first of December.

"Do you know Wallis Simpson?" is the question Mrs. Spencer is asked very often, for Mrs. Simpson's first husband was Lieut. Winfield Spencer, a brother of "Freddy" Spencer. Bluford Richardson did not enter the Spencer family until after the Winfield Spencers were divorced, however, so she never met the Baltimore born Wallis Warfield Spencer Simpson, who now lives in London.

Attack Stork Derby Will in Toronto Court

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 28.—(AP)—The "baby clause" of the Charles Vance Millar will was attacked in court late today by persons claiming to be next of kin and seeking the $500,000 fortune.

A writ filed on behalf of Alexander Butcher and Arabella West of Port Burwell, Ontario, called the "baby clause" "scandalous" and "contrary to public policy," and asked the court to declare it null and void.

The surprise attack on the will of the eccentric lawyer came a few hours after executors of the estate had called upon all claimants under the will to appear in court [illegible] with their proofs. The executors particularly asked for proof from mothers claiming the fortune by reason of having borne the most children in the last decade.

The announcement by the executors, and the subsequent court assault on the will, sent a sudden stab of fear into the hearts of a dozen mothers, for it carried a hint that their ten years of prodigious childbearing may, after all, have been financially in vain.

The executors—two trust companies and Roy Sproat, an attorney will ask Justice Middleton for answers to three questions:

1. Is clause 9 of Millar's "uncommon and capricious" will—the clause bequeathing approximately $500,000 to the bearer of the most children in a specified ten year period—valid?

2. If it is, what mother, or mothers, is entitled to the money?

3. If it isn't, what relatives of the late lawyer shall be declared the beneficiaries under intestacy?

The executors' announcement directed that all mothers believing themselves entitled to the legacy file their claims at once with the executors' attorney Andrew W. Hunter.

All claims by mothers must be in writing and must state the full names of all children born in the decade together with birth certificates and dates of birth registrations.

All other claimants, including any who challenge the validity of the "mothers' clause," must state in writing their grounds for such claims. This part of today's announcement is understood to refer to persons claiming a share of the Millar estate by reason of kinship.

Millar's will stated that he had "no dependents or near relations," and that "no duty rests upon me to leave any property at my death." Some distant relatives are known to live near his birthplace, Aylmer, Ont., and in London, England; and a Michigan man recently claimed kinship entitling him, he thought, to some of the money.

The leading childbearers were agreed tonight, with one exception, to have the money divided among them equally, as provided by the will in case of a tie. In agreeing to such settlement some of the other are abandoning claims to more babies than the others, preferring prompt settlement to a long court contest.

The lone dissenter is Mrs. Lily Kenny. She claims 12 births, but proof of only nine has been found at the bureau of vital statistics. Mrs. Kenny indicated she would press her claim as sole winner. Four other women are believed to have satisfactory proof of nine childbirths in the ten year period.

Stantons Will Show Portrait at Tea Sunday

Mrs. Francis Paints Her Sister-in-Law.

BY JUDITH CASS.

MR. AND MRS. EDGAR STANTON are proud of the wives of their two sons, Francis and Edgar Jr., and on Sunday at their home in Winnetka at a tea they are giving for Francis and his bride, the former Louise Parsons, they will show for the first time a portrait Mrs. Francis Stanton just has finished of her sister-in-law.

It is a lovely painting and it is to be the focal point in the decorative scheme for the living room of the new house Francis Stanton has designed for his brother and his wife.

The house, in Woodley road, Winnetka, across the street from the senior Stantons' house, is being built now and the junior Stantons hope to move into it in May.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanton Sr. are inviting only their Winnetka friends to the tea Sunday, for it is a party similar to the one they gave for Edgar and his bride, the former Rosamond Baker, three years ago.

Mrs. Francis Stanton chose a Tahitian bathing suit as her sister-in-law's costume for the portrait. It was a happy choice, for the deep blue suit splashed all over with huge white flowers is becoming to the sun tanned Mrs. Stanton Jr. The background of the picture is yellow and white, so the color scheme of the living room will be blue, yellow, and white.

The house is the first commission of Francis Stanton, a recent graduate of the Yale architectural school. The decorations and furnishings throughout will be most modern.

Junior Lester Knights Will Build New Home.

Another young couple who will be moving into a new house in the country, probably next spring, is Mr. and Mrs. Lester B. Knight Jr., who have bought some property in the Sunset Ridge district west of Winnetka and will build on it an early American house for which Peter Mayo has made the plans. Mr. and Mrs. Mayo and their two sons will be neighbors of the Knights eventually, for they own property in the same district and plan to build a house there within a year or two.

The Howard G. Smiths, who now live in Highland Park, will be Sunset Ridge residents, too, for they will move next May into an English type home that Mr. Mayo is building for them this winter.

Erskine Weds Girl from West Indies.

Legal regulations governing the marriage of a British subject to an American were straightened out more quickly than anticipated, so John B. Erskine and Miss Edith Henderson were married yesterday in St. John, N. B. The wedding took place at noon in the Centenary church, and a wedding breakfast was served afterward at the home of the bride's uncle, William A. Lockhart, which is just across the street from the church.

Mr. Lockhart gave his niece in marriage, but it is unlikely that there were any attendants unless some of the bride's relatives attended them. The bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert De Wolfe Erskine, heard the incompleted wedding plans over the telephone Tuesday night and they will not get the complete details until their son and his wife arrive in Chicago soon to make their home here.

Mr. Erskine and his bride became acquainted in January, 1934, when he was on a cruise to the West Indies and met the former Miss Henderson and her father, J. Clarence Henderson, who is a planter on the island of Antigua. The bride arrived in Boston by boat on Tuesday on her way to visit the Lockhart family. Surprising every one, Mr.

DANIEL J. McGRATH, Irish consul in Chicago, is back from a summer in Ireland and tells a tale of an elderly Irishman he and Mrs. McGrath encountered in a little town in the west of Ireland. They wanted to find out when they could get a bus to another town some miles distant. The first person they asked seemed to be nonplused by the request. As he struggled to dig up some information from his obviously slender store of knowledge he was abruptly interrupted by a wizened little old man who had overheard the question. He gave the required information with an air of triumph. Then looking sharply at Mr. and Mrs. McGrath he asked, "Are ye Yanks?"

Change—Luck—Birthplace—Info.

Mrs. McGrath assured him they were.

"I used to like Yanks," the old man said with a far-off look in his faded blue eyes, "but I married one o' them. Ah, sure, I was airy in them days!"

WE have a little story about State's Attorney Tom Courtney, too. He was waiting for a trafic light to change when a man approached him and inquired, "Would you be interested in a fur coat?" Mr. Courtney, curious, said he might, and followed the man to a parked car laden with fur coats. The sidewalk merchant quoted him a price on a handsome mink coat, and Mr. Courtney inquired how he could sell the garment so cheaply.

"They're hot," whispered the unfortunate man with a knowing wink.

"O, they are," repeated Mr. Courtney. "Do you happen to know who I am?" And added, when the man admitted he didn't, "My name's Courtney and I'm the state's attorney of Cook county."

"Just my luck, in a city of four million people, to pick out you to try to sell one of these coats to," retorted the fellow sadly.

THERE has been so much interest shown in connection with the item that speculated as to whether Sarah Bernhardt's birthplace was Rochester, Ia., we offer a letter from a native of Iowa, who insists Iowans believe the Divine Sarah was born there, instead of Paris, as is stated in the Encyclopedia Britannica.

"In fact, this town [Rochester], which had its beginning as a small French settlement, now bears a sign in greeting to the passing motorist saying it is the birthplace of Sarah Bernhardt. During the time of Miss Bernhardt's last visit to this country a richly dressed woman, heavily veiled, was driven through Rochester to the cemetery, where she stopped to decorate the grave of the woman who was reputed to be the mother of Sarah Bernhardt. She did not reveal her identity, but natives of the town were sure that the mysterious stranger could be none other than the Divine Sarah.

Finds Perfect Coat to Wear with Fur Piece

BY RHEA SEEGER.

The lucky owner of a handsome fur cape or still more exciting double fur piece seldom finds a good foundation coat as a proper background. After days of sleuthing for such important coats we almost arrived at the state where even one good model would have given us the urge to call out all the bands.

It seemed as though there was nothing between the heavily fur trimmed wools and the practical, tailored sports type things or the breezy big plaids and checked wools.

We hunted for sleek streamlines, for distinctive sleeves, a collarline that would accommodate the fur piece, and then look almost as smart without the furs. We tracked down unfurred coats of dark wool, preferably with a suedelike texture, coats with slender waistlines, with enough dash to a flare skirt to make them this winter's vintage, with sleeves that didn't puff too much or too little . . . in short, the perfect coat, the kind you find, well, just once in a couple of seasons anyway.

But we found it . . . some enterprising designer was a lap or two ahead of the demand, some under standing soul with an enthusiastic desire to help created the perfect black wool unfurred coat just to wear with all the stunning fur scarves, with sables, with baum martens, with the double scarf of two foxskins [blue or the frosty silver twins], or anything else you may own.

The wool is a sooty black with a glistening black hairy texture. The sleeves are slightly puffed at the shoulderlines; the waistline neat, narrow, and small; the skirt flares with just the correct amount of swing; and marching down the center to the hem is a row of gleaming jet buttons each the size of the elusive silver dollar and about twice as thick.

Two of the jet buttons keep each sleeve cuff snugly in position. The very small collar buttons tightly around the neckline, and going around the edge of the collar, the cuffs, and down the front closing are narrow bands of patent lether, winking discreetly in tune with the glitter of the buttons. This same coat can be ordered in beige with the jet buttons, or in stone gray. It's one of the best simple but swanky coats of the year!

Asserts Annot Offers 'It' of Modern Art

Critic Declares Exhibition Is Fascinating.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The most fascinating and bewitching of modern art is illustrated in the exhibition current in the Katharine Kuh gallery, Diana Court building, of water colors by Annot. Annot is a German artist who has recently come to the United States; she is a woman and the wife of the painter who calls himself Jacobi. He, too, is a German.

Jacobi is responsible for the extraordinary "Diana in America," with its hint of Velasquez in the Peke, that hangs prominently in the second large gallery of the Art institute in the American Painting and Sculpture exhibit.

Annot is represented in the American show, also. She has a canvas in red and pink showing two children on a bench. It is amusing but slight. One feels it as rather a shallow stroke.

The water colors in the Katharine Kuh gallery put her ability in a far different light. German as Annot may be, there is nothing Teutonic about her painting. It is the gayest of Gallic, the purest of French.

Annot uses water color as she might use oil. It is amazing the amount of paint she occasionally employs to bring parts of her compositions into focus. Look at the charming "Girl with Parasol." The face is a thin wash, but the fringe of the parasol is unique in its solid texture.

Her still lifes of flowers are entrancing. In color and composition and in the manner in which they are painted, delicately, whimsically, happily, they set a challenge.

From flowers to horses is something of a step but Annot makes it fluently and gives us a row of horses in the stable and a mare and colt in pasture. Both are intriguing. If there is anything in prophecy one sees Annot as the most talked-of and best-liked painter in the unconventional circle of modern art today.

Jacobi does not bring as quick a burst of enthusiasm to the pen. His modern art is more according to Hoyle and is reminiscent of Vlaminck. His landscapes have a definite beauty of color and a nice feeling for composition, but they miss the divine spark. The "it" that enlivens Annot's paintings is missing from her husband's more serious pictures.

This exhibition is to be followed by an unusual showing of photography by Ansel Adams.

Sixteen Students at N. U. Are Elected to Phi Beta Kappa

Sixteen Northwestern university students have been elected to Phi Beta Kappa, honorary scholastic fraternity. All but three of the nine men and seven women students are residents of Chicago or its northern suburbs.

Following is the list: Chicago—Frank Kottke, Fred Grodins, Julian Behrstock, Stanley Christol, Ralph Thayer, and Helen Patton; suburbs—Helen McKarahan, Robert Blodgett, Barbara Stults, Kathryn Rubens, and Helen Collins, all of Evanston; Jean Clayton, Winnetka, and Josephine McAllister, Highland Park; out of town—Elizabeth Hartberg, Marinette, Wis., Windsor Hackler, Omaha, Neb., and Everett Moulton, Fort Smith, Ark.

Through the Looking Glass

Happily fashionable is the head on which a smart ornament is poised. Kay Francis shows here how effective tiny white flowers can be with a distinguished evening coiffure. Other whims of fashion are for butterflies, tiny combs, jeweled or otherwise, and all manner of frivolous trifles.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—Hair ornaments for evening seem to be a fashion essential around here. They're beautiful, too, and somehow seem delightful with the elegant gowns and long, rich looking evening capes women wear.

The most difficult to wear, but by far the most effective with the right coiffure, the right kind of a face and the general picturesqueness that they demand are the extravagant and frivolous butterflies and bows. They're not tiny, and they're not to be perched on heads that aren't youthful. You see them most frequently worn by the bright young things, poised right in the center just a bit above the hairline and with a coiffure that has height. Some are of tulle, some jeweled and some of ribbon.

Another perfectly delightful whim for dolling up above the ears is the use of little combs. The Paris hairdresser who made a flying visit to Chicago last week brought a lot of little combs to this country.

For his coiffures of a certain type, featuring the effect of pompadour in front and of a chignon in the back he uses two or three or even four of the small combs, which have no more than nine or ten teeth. They match the color of the hair exactly and are unobtrusively effective in creating and preserving an unusual line.

But jeweled combs are used for contrast, too. At the theater recently we saw a woman with marvelous red hair who had cunningly chosen to use small combs studded with bright green stones. Later in a shop we saw some little beauties—turquoise, which looks grand against jet black hair; coral, green, and even some of dull black. This last may sound funny but looks heavenly against white or silvery blonde hair.

Flowers are still good, with gardenias still favorites. As a matter of fact, they're a little too popular to be really tops. Flowers carved in stone or composition are apt to be more interesting.

The Black Automatic

By William Byron Mowery

SYNOPSIS.

Inspector Noel Irving of the Canadian mounted dynamites the hideout of Frank Rocco, master criminal, not knowing two women were with him. Noel is discharged, disgraced, while Rocco becomes a glorified legend. Noel receives a midnight call in Winnipeg from a young stranger who calls himself Jimmy and asks Noel to be his partner in a secret enterprise and to help him outwit an unknown gang who are pursuing him. While they are talking Jimmy is shot dead. Noel sets out to clear his name and avenge Jimmy's murder. In Fort McMurray, where Noel flies in a monoplane which was Jimmy's, he introduces himself as Lanier, a prospector. He learns Jimmy's headquarters were at Manitou. Noel meets Harla De Long, a research worker for the Indian bureau and Jimmy's sister. Noel reluctantly flies her to Manitou. Harla recognizes the plane as Jimmy's and grows suspicious of Noel. Noel fears that Harla would be endangered if he told her the truth. On the trip to Manitou they are attacked by a mysterious plane and forced to land in the swampy wilderness. They are picked up by a river steamer bound for Manitou. On board is Raphael Flood, whose advances Harla resents, and whom Noel suspects to be the gang's leader. In Manitou, expecting an attack in the night from Flood, Noel rigs up a dummy in his bed and waits outside. Instead of Flood he sees Harla go into his cabin with a gun. She takes aim at the cot but is unable to fire. Noel is forced to tell her the truth. Tah-Gomaugh brings word of an outbreak of smallpox in a remote Indian village. Noel and Harla fly there with aid. Harla tells Noel that the Indian preserve is forbidden to prospectors. Tah-Gomaugh tells him of a plane sighted near there early that summer. The plane he describes was Jimmy's. Noel realizes Jimmy must have discovered gold on the forbidden territory, and that Flood killed Jimmy to get the gold himself. Harla disappears. Noel fears that Flood has abducted her.

INSTALMENT XXXIV.
HELD AS HOSTAGE.

Flood's lawless nature and his infatuation for Harla did not quite explain his move. Flood was no fool, no gambler, but a coward who played safe, always. He had captured Harla for some reason connected with his own safety.

Within ten minutes one of the Dinokui men came hurrying toward the hozgee. Noel went to meet him. The Indian took him up to the pine drogue, into the pines; began pointing here and there on the needle carpet and talking excitedly.

Noel could not understand a word of the talk, and of the rapid gestures he understood only one, repeated many times; four fingers; four men in that party. To his eyes that needle carpet was a blank; he saw no tracks, no signs. But to the Indian's eyes . . . with unerring precision the man led him on and on, through a thicket of deerbush, around a clump of thorny devil's club, to the bank of the river; and there, under a broad sweeping old pine that overhung the water, the Dinokui pointed out a sign which Noel did see and understand. In the silty gravel, the marks of a sharp keeled canoe—one mark where the craft had been grounded and lifted back into the shadows; another mark where the canoe had been slid to water again.

For several minutes he stood there by the pine, looking at those far blue mountains and trying to shake off his daze. Flood's move had neatly spiked all his plans. Flood was holding a fearful club over him now—Harla's safety.

"Why, hell," he breathed, "there it is! He grabbed her in order to stop me. He was out and out panicky. He's going to use her as his guarantee of immunity. As long as he's got her he's safe, and he knows it. If I can't get her away from him I'm done. I'm washed up."

He knew that Flood would not keep her at that headwaters camp, but would whisk her away to some distant and secure hiding place. In that swift gray plane he could take her anywhere, to any of his secret camps—anywhere in the two thousand mile length and breadth of the Three Rivers country.

With a swift estimate of time and distance he saw that he stood a good chance to free her if he worked fast. Flood's canoe party had not yet reached the moraine lake. The trip was thirty miles, upstream miles. A four paddle canoe would be ten or twelve hours making that trip. A plane could make it in twenty minutes.

To splash Flood's outfit he would need help, rifle help. That was coming, this police detail—due at any time now. With two planes and half a dozen seasoned men he could fly up there, land on that camp unexpectedly and clean it out.

He hated to break this case open precipitantly, before he was fully armed with knowledge of Flood's background. Above all, he hated to run any risk of killing Flood. If Flood should die in a rifle battle, with his past unknown and his crimes unrevealed, he, too, might be apotheosized, like Frank Rocco, by that million headed but thoughtless "man in the street."

But if he failed to lead a party up there he would be betraying Harla. It was he who had brought her into these mountains, and, therefore, he was responsible for her. An innocent girl, caught in this pitiless battle between Flood and himself, she had suffered tragedy enough already.

It was high noon that day before the mounted detail came. Strap's red Bellanca was followed by a large cabined biplane. Noel hurried up the river bank. The planes were hours overdue.

Without stopping the motor, Strap climbed down upon a float, ordered Thomkins to turn the plane around for an immediate take off, and came wading ashore, a letter in his hand.

"What's hit you, fellow?" Strap greeted. "You look sick."

Noel did not answer. He pointed at the letter. "That's for me, isn't it?"

"Why, how the devil did you know? Yes, it is. A bloke at Manitou—never saw the cuss before—gave it to me and said to hand it to you the minute I landed here. He talked like it was important. Better read it."

Noel took the letter. "Why're you swinging that Bellanca, Strap?"

"Got to hop to Aklavik. I'm under commission on that job, y'know."

As Noel slit the envelope the biplane came taxing into the shallows. He paid no attention to it or to the men preparing to disembark.

The note was twelve short lines of neatly printed charactery.

"Must be some sort of code," he thought. And then he saw that it was written in the F-R code which he and Spencer and the ranking eight of the intelligence had used during the past year.

With a pencil stub and the back of the envelope he broke the cipher down and wrote out the message.

> Her safety depends on what you do, and I'll be the judge. Don't lay her disappearance to me. Explain her disappearance any way you see fit.
>
> At McMurray, on your way out of the north, find letter of further instructions. Follow them, and no harm will come to her.

Noel read the note a second time, then tore the envelope to bits. The message, which he had expected, and which he had known was coming, told him little that he did not know already. He had interpreted Flood's move correctly. The man had seized Harla to make him drop the hunt and get out of the north altogether. To Flood's pledge of safety for Harla he pinned no faith.

Strap broke into his thoughts. "I've seen people pull some weird boners, but you, Noel, you've pulled the prize boner of all my born days." He glanced at Constable Brannigan, who had just finished a good dinner and was sauntering down to meet the mounted detail.

GASOLINE ALLEY--RARIN' TO GO

Tells How Women of 19th Century Avoided Word 'Leg'

Such words as "leg" and "bosom" were under ban and not to be uttered in mixed company in the 19th century, Dr. M. M. Mathews of the University of Chicago declared yesterday in an address on "Words Made in America." Dr. Mathews is assistant editor of the "Dictionary of American English" now being published by the University Press.

"Foreign critics pointed out that the American ladies performed all sorts of linguistic acrobats in order to avoid using the word leg," Dr. Mathews said. "At table they would ask for the 'first and second joint of the fowl' instead of asking outright for a chicken leg.

"Sometimes they asked for a 'trotter' of the chicken. One young lady spoke of her 'wires' when she referred to her legs. Even Longfellow in 1849 referred facetiously to this dread for the word leg when he wrote 'Young misses at boarding school are not allowed to cross their benders'."

Dr. Mathews spoke before the university branch of the Southern Women's Educational alliance at the home of Mrs. Jacob Viner, 5554 Kenwood avenue.

Mrs. Francis Paints Her Sister-in-Law.

Erskine joined her on board her ship and traveled to St. John with her. He took his car with him, and yesterday after the ceremony, they left by motor, bound for Chicago. They will visit Buffalo and Cooperstown, N. Y., en route to see his grandmother, Mrs. Albert Erskine, who lives in Cooperstown.

As soon as the newlyweds have picked out an apartment and the bride, who has never before visited the United States, has become a bit orientated, Mr. and Mrs. Erskine Sr. will give a tea to introduce their daughter-in-law to their Chicago friends.

Adeline Chase Peek Will Become Bride.

From Moline Mr. and Mrs. Burton Francis Peek send news of the engagement and approaching marriage of their youngest daughter, Adeline Chase Peek, to James Desmond Shevlin, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Shevlin of Locust Valley, N. Y. The wedding will take place in December. Miss Peek will be attended by her sister, Mrs. Richard Edwards III. [Eloise Peek], who lives here, and Mr. Shevlin will be attended by his brother, William Shevlin, who is an undergraduate at Dartmouth.

The bride-to-be is a graduate of Rosemary Hall, Conn., and Bryn Mawr college, where she was an honor student. She is a niece of George N. Peek, also of Moline. Mr. Shevlin prepared at the Deerfield academy for Dartmouth and took his law degree at Yale university.

Miss Gwendolyn Bowen and her fiancé, Jefferson D. Currier, and the unmarried members of their wedding party will be guests at dinner tonight of her cousin, Hubbard Phelps. Mr. Phelps is to be an usher for Mr. Currier on Nov. 14. After dinner the host will take his guests to see "Naughty Marietta."

Mr. Phelps' mother, Mrs. Louise de Koven Phelps, is giving a large dinner party at the Casino on Dec. 4 preceding the Assembly ball. Young Mr. Phelps will be a host again on Jan. 3 when he will give a dinner and hocky party for Miss Betty Keith, one of the season's debutantes. Mr. Phelps is studying radio in an aviation school here and will be at home at least until after the first of the year.

Mrs. Charles H. Chadwick Has Young Guest.

Miss Gillian Hansard arrived yesterday to visit Mrs. Charles Harrington Chadwick, whom she has known on the Riviera where Miss Hansard and her mother make their home in a literary colony, Mougins. Mrs. Chadwick's young guest is a niece of Jan Juta, the artist, and a granddaughter of the late Sir Henry Juta, who for thirty years was speaker of the house of parliament in Cape Town, South Africa. Mrs. Chadwick's acquaintance with the Juta family really extends back to the days when she lived in Cape Town.

Miss Hansard has come here from New York where she visited the Vincent Astors, brother-in-law and sister of her aunt, Mrs. Juta. Those Chicagoans who remember Mr. Juta when he was a dashing beau here several years ago are anxious to meet his niece. Mr. Juta just has received a commission to decorate a new house of parliament in South Africa, and he will sail soon to spend nine months in that country.

Miss Hansard will meet many of her hostess' friends on election night at the Tavern where the Chadwicks are entertaining at a late buffet supper. They have taken the Love Through the Ages room, and will receive friends from 11:30 o'clock on.

Capacity houses are expected at Orchestra hall tonight and tomorrow afternoon when Fritz Kreisler will be the soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

Mrs. Murry Nelson will act as hostess at the tea at the Cliff Dwellers tomorrow afternoon after the concert. Assisting her will be Mrs. Augustus A. Carpenter, Mrs. Tom Peete Cross, Mrs. John A. Holabird, Mrs. Alfred P. Shaw, Mrs. Van Ogden Vogt, Mrs. Henry Kitchell Webster, Mrs. Phelps Wilder, Miss Margot Atkin, Miss Phoebe Nelson, Miss Eleanor Wetten, and the Misses Cross.

The club is having a supper and dancing party election night.

Eli Bates Shop Will Hold Sale.

Mrs. Dexter Cummings and Mrs. Merrill Hubbard have invited guests for luncheon next Thursday at their homes in Lake Forest, intending to take their guests after luncheon on to Mrs. William H. Mitchell's home at 901 East Rosemary road where the Eli Bates shop will be holding a sale.

Gifts for the sportsman, wedding presents, travel sets, country linens and china, handkerchiefs, scarves, and various other articles suitable for Christmas gifts will be on sale from 10 until 6 o'clock that day.

Mrs. Clarence B. Mitchell, the former Marjorie King, arrived on Tuesday to spend a few days with her parents, the Charles Garfield Kings. Mrs. Mitchell left her new baby at home in California in the care of his nurse, and her visit here will be a pleasant little vacation. Mr. Mitchell is not coming to Chicago this time.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bernard Mack of Highland Park are being congratulated upon the birth of a son on Oct. 16. He is to be named for his father. Mrs. Mack is the former Katherine Eleanor Roberts of Highland Park. Mr. and Mrs. Mack have a two year old daughter, Suzanne.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Keith have returned to Chicago after a year's absence. They will be at home at the Seneca for several months.

Six attractive young women who are interested in the Children's Memorial hospital will lend their services to the White Elephant Rummage shop next Monday afternoon when the shop will give a tea at the Casino. They are Mrs. George F. McLaughlin, Mrs. Herbert McLaughlin, Mrs. Dexter Cummings, Mrs. John P. Wilson Jr., Miss Cornelia Ranney and Miss Katherine McLennan.

Admission to the tea will be a gift for the rummage shop which is conducted for the benefit of the hospital. The directors of the shop have planned a little play as a surprise for their guests.

Mrs. L. Hamilton McCormick, president of the Conseil d'Administration of the Alliance Française, will preside at the club's first causerie of the season this afternoon. Henri David will speak on "Souvenirs of France in Arkansas."

Mrs. Thomas W. Hinde and Miss Gertrude McCarthy will assist Mrs. Moise Dreyfus, who will be hostess for the day. Mrs. Charles Kilbourne and Miss Harriet Stuart will pour. Mrs. Allen C. Howes is chairman of the causeries.

Mrs. Hayden B. Harris, Mrs. Townsend McKeever, Mrs. William E. Vogelback and Mrs. Carl W. Defebaugh will pour at the tea the Chicago Drama league is giving in the Crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel for members of the "Pride and Prejudice" company and Harold Ehrensperger. Mr. Ehrensperger will speak before the tea on "International Playgoing."

Sadao Iguchi, consul of Japan, and Mrs. Iguchi, who are leaving Chicago next Tuesday, are giving a farewell cocktail party today at 4 o'clock at the Edgewater Beach hotel. Vice Consul Kaoru Hayashi will be in charge of the consulate until Mr. Iguchi's as yet unnamed successor arrives.

The Iguchis who have been here about three years, will be among the especial guests at a luncheon the Japan-America Society of Chicago is giving tomorrow at the Lake Shore Athletic club.

Silver paper envelopes were delivered in the mail yesterday to friends of the Sunbeam league, in which were announcements of the league's silver anniversary dinner dance to be given in the Continental room of the Stevens hotel on Friday, Nov. 6.

ENGAGEMENTS

Mr. and Mrs. George Irwin Orr of Glencoe announce the engagement of their daughter, Jane Isabelle, to Hollis Farley Peck of Sioux Falls, S. D., and New Orleans, La. Miss Orr and Mr. Peck both are graduates of Northwestern university. She was a member of Mortar Board and was the only woman in the history of the university to edit the Syllabus, university year book.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Felsenthal of 5658 Blackstone avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Karolyn Frances, to Sidney J. Feltenstein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Moses Feltenstein of 115 Central Park West, New York City.

'Parent' Should Mean 'Dad' as Well as Mother

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"I liked the name of the Mothers' and Fathers' Litany which you published in your column, as much as I did the contents of it," writes a reader. "I mean I liked the "Fathers'" part of it. Don't you think we too often exclude poor dad when thinking of 'parent'?"

I do indeed. I think there would be a much better balance in a great many homes if dad were glorified a little, if he were made much of, if his homecoming were a sort of event, if his presents at Christmas were as carefully thought out as any one else's, with the children saving and planning for them, and if his birthday always were remembered.

I think mothers allow fathers to be thought of far too often [as children grow older, especially, and want so much], as the source of money for everybody and everything.

I think mothers unwittingly too often stand between the children and the children's father, except when they want him to act as policeman. Too often also at the beginning, when the children are very little, they won't let him do a thing for the baby, just because he's a man. They think he'll be clumsy or hurt the cherub!

They're wrong. I know several men who are, if anything, more adept with their tiny sons and daughters than the mothers are. You should see a swanky naval officer of our acquaintance change baby's diaper, and a romantic actor I know get up at 6 to prepare the baby's bottle expertly.

So I think far too many women put dad too much in the background. Some of them drift into that attitude. Some—a few—do it purposely because they want to come first with the children, or because they're the masterful sort. But, whatever their reason may be, they make a serious mistake. And the fathers who allow it also make a serious mistake.

Every woman should try to draw her husband within the charmed circle of mother, father, child, and keep him there. Each one in that trinity needs the other.

The litany referred to is written for both parents. It is called "The Mothers' and Fathers' Litany" and is sent on receipt of a 3 cent stamp. No envelope in this case, please.

WEDDINGS

Miss Betty Kreuscher, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Philip H. Kreuscher of Blackstone avenue, will be married to John J. Bohnen Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Bohnen of Euclid avenue, at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Msgr. Thomas D. Shannon will read the service in the chapel of the Church of St. Thomas the Apostle in the presence of the families. Miss Jane Kreuscher is coming from Vassar college to be her sister's only attendant and Robert Bohnen will serve as his brother's best man.

Amos G. Allen Jr., William Freideman, George R. Rose Jr., and Philip H. Kreuscher III. will usher. Following the ceremony there will be a reception and dinner at the Blackstone hotel. The couple will be at home after Dec. 1 in Middletown, O.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Mrs. Cathrine Rochetto, daughter of Mrs. Martha Britten, 2949 Normal avenue, to Alfred P. Nichels on Oct. 24 at All Saints church in Oak Park. Mr. Nichels and his bride will live in Oak Park after a motor trip south.

Culbertson's "Gold Book of Bidding and Play"

Herewith is presented another portion of Mr. Culbertson's latest work on contract, the "Gold Book of Bidding and Play," which is being reproduced in this column in daily instalments.

THE RAISE FROM ONE NO TRUMP TO THREE NO TRUMP.

When a hand justifies a raise of an opening one no trump bid it should be given whether the responder's suit is a major or a minor. At this point the reader probably will explode. During all his life, to him and to millions of others, including all experts, the five card major suit headed by the A-K or A-Q was sacred. And now he is asked to reverse his life-long habit, and by the very man whose "attacks" on the no trump bid are notorious.

This is one of the most attractive features in our theory of distributional no trumps, for experience tells us that thousands of hands are butchered when apparently no one is to blame, but when the real reason is failure to follow this principle of insufficient distributional values. Hence the apparently insane jumps to three no trump with a perfectly solid major suit.

TODAY'S HAND.

Occasions arise in which the baffling question of whether or not to return partner's lead can be solved only by clairvoyance, but these are extremely rare. In today's hand a defender should have found the vital clew in the declarer's first play.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 heart	Pass	1 no tr'p	Pass
2 no trp	Pass	3 no tr'p [final bid]

West opened the ten of spades from his interior sequence. Dummy played low, as did East, and declarer's queen won the trick. The ten of hearts then was played, ducked by West and dummy, and won by East with the jack.

Influenced, no doubt, by the fact that he had seen his partner make a great many short suit leads, East concluded this was another instance and, therefore, decided to attempt the establishment of his own anemic diamond suit. He laid down the diamond king, and fro that point on the declarer never gave him a chance to recover. Dummy's ace won and the ten of diamonds was promptly returned. East ducked, but a diamond continuation made the contract a laydown.

Aside from the general consideration that East could not afford to lead any other suit except spades, he should have been in little doubt as to the true spade situation. If declarer had held both the king and queen of spades with at least one guard [which was East's diagnosis] it is almost inconceivable that he would have played to the opening lead as he did. Declarer's play of the ten of hearts had been evidence that he did not hold the queen and East could see that possible entries in declarer's hand were limited to the ace of clubs. That being so, declarer certainly would have put up dummy's spade ace immediately rather than block the suit. And even had he failed to do so for any reason it would have been a remarkable coincidence for him also to have failed to false-card by winning the first trick with the king instead of the queen of spades. By all the rules of logic, therefore, East should have seen that declarer did not have the spade king.

Obviously, on a spade return declarer could not have come close to fulfilling his contract.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: I opened the bidding with one heart. Partner responded with one no trump. [Opponents made no bid.] What should be my next bid with ♠K 3 ♥A K J 5 ♦8 6 4 3 ♣A 8 5?

Hair May Be Washed Often as Necessary

Keeping Tresses Clean Is Important to Beauty.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Today's answer to the shampoo query, "How often," is answered with "as often as it is necessary to keep hair clean and shining." The old principle that hair can be washed too often is definitly discarded in favor of perpetually clean hair at any cost. But there isn't any cost if the hair is dried thoroughly after the washing. You may wash the hair every week and have nothing more disastrous happen than a cleaner, healthier scalp.

We have been rather silly, on the whole, about this shampooing business. We know that a face won't prosper on an infrequent washing schedule. The scalp won't either, now it is known. Scalp cleanliness has become exceedingly urgent of late, with the long spell of disorderly scalp conditions created by fear of ruining a wave. You can't know the reports I have received on sick scalps, attributable to this lack of toning up that you must get by frequent enough shampoos and brushing. Of course, you can do worlds of cleanliness work with the regular brushing, but the same women who refuse to shampoo on grounds of wave preservation, won't brush.

The semi-monthly shampoo suffices admirably if the hair is brushed vigorously in the interim. But if hair is oily it can take shampoo punishment twice a week with only good accruing. The rinsing in quantities of water has an invigorating effect on the scalp, as well as the vigorous scalp massage you give with the soap lathering and scalp scrubbing. If you can train yourself to take cold water as the final rinse you're helping a great deal to correct the faulty oil gland mechanics in the scalp. But many women find it too shocking to the system. But if oiliness is accompanied by falling hair and heavy dandruff the shampooing can't be overdone. The market affords a whole range of remarkably good shampoo products for both dry and oily hair.

Basically, hair beauty depends upon scalp massage. Circulation must be provided the hair papilla. If women would massage the scalp all over every night before retiring and brush for a few minutes they'd eliminate all kinds of scalp disorder.

DUCE HAILS 14TH YEAR OF FASCISM AS JOY FOR ITALY

Pledges Strong Defense of New Empire.

ROME, Oct. 28.—(AP)—The ringing voice of Premier Mussolini tonight promised the world Italy would defend her empire "with her last drop of blood."

In a brief speech to 50,000 in Piazza Venezia and broadcast to 44,000,000 Italians, Il Duce hailed the 14th anniversary of his Fascists' "history making" march on Rome.

"The Italian people," he proclaimed, "today are ready and determined to defend as never before—with all their force right up to the last drop of blood—victory and empire."

Burns Its Bridges.

As for Fascism, he said, "When it finds obstacles in its path, it throws itself against them and burns its bridges behind it.

"The 14th year of Fascism was a happy one.

"But the fifteenth year will not be less happy because such is our faith and our will—an adult will, as tempered as the blades of your swords."

Thunderous applause rolled over the plaza as Il Duce stood silently after his speech, his hand raised high in the Fascist salute, and his chest and chin thrust out.

He spent the rest of the day of Italian celebration in characteristic fashion. He went about busily inaugurating new sections of public works projects planned to employ 252,000 men.

Cements in Map of Ethiopia.

These included a system of irrigation canals through reclaimed land areas; construction of several new roads through the Roman countryside.

Thousands of Blackshirts cheered wildly as a new black marble map, showing Ethiopia as part of the new Roman empire was cemented into the walls of the Basilica of Maxentius alongside four others showing the territorial conquests of the ancient Roman empire under the Caesars.

Yet all was not work and speechmaking for happy Il Duce today.

He found time to do a bit of fencing with students, and managed to win all of his matches.

PREDICTS WAR PLANES OF POWERS WILL SOON CARRY 'TROOPS OF AIR'

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Just as the American navy carries marines for landing duty, so every powerful air force in Europe may soon have its "troops of the air" to be dropped behind enemy lines in time of war.

This prediction was made tonight by Maj. Lester Gardner, secretary of the American Institute of Aeronautical Sciences, who has just completed an inspection of the feverish air rearmament going on in Europe. Maj. Gardner, guest of honor at a dinner given jointly by the Royal Aeronautical society, the Royal Aero club, and the Society of British Aircraft Constructors, was especially impressed by his observations in Russia.

"Heretofore," said Gardner, "it has been claimed that aircraft could only observe, bombard, and destroy other aircraft and not hold any territory. Now can be seen the first evidences of utilization of troops of the air that can be landed or be dropped behind front lines in sufficient numbers and with adequate equipment to maintain their positions."

BRITISH VESSEL CALLS FOR HELP IN HEAVY STORM

New York, Oct. 28.—[Special.]—The 5,000 ton British freighter Afghanistan was tossing helplessly in a gale tonight half way across the North Atlantic and far above the regular ship routes. There was little hope that immediate aid could reach the vessel.

A brief wireless message, picked up here by Mackay Radio from the ship, reported that her rudder had been swept away by high winds and that her exact position could not be determined. An approximate position, reported by wireless, placed the ship near the center of a northerly great circle course which curves on an arc below Greenland between the northern tip of Newfoundland and Glasgow, Scotland.

The vessel, which is owned by the Hindustan Steam Shipping company, Ltd., of London, has been plying between Montreal and British ports. The number of persons on board was not revealed in the message. Her course is about 500 miles above the paths of trans-Atlantic liners and is not generally followed by many steamers.

BIG FLEET OF 108 WARSHIPS VIEWED BY JAP EMPEROR

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

TOKIO, Oct. 29.—[Thursday.]—The mightiest fleet ever floated in Asiatic waters is being reviewed today by its supreme chief, Emperor Hirohito. One hundred and eight warships, aggregating nearly 700,000 tons and manned by 40,000 men, are participating, and convoys of aircraft are waiting to join in.

A novel feature is the "march past" of warships in two columns. This spectacular evolution is made possible by the fleet's rendezvous on the almost landlocked expanse of Osaka bay.

The emperor, on the bridge in full dress uniform, took his first salute from the flagship Nagato and then his ship steamed southward between the advancing columns for nearly an hour. Bluejackets manned the rails of each vessel and gave three "Banzais," while guns barked the imperial salute.

AIR MINISTRY OF BRITAIN IS HIT BY SCANDAL CHARGE

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Members of parliament reconvene tomorrow after a three months' holiday to sit for two days before being prorogued to make way for a state opening of the new session, the first such ceremony under King Edward VIII. of England.

The Spanish civil war situation, with its high explosive possibilities, will be one issue hotly debated.

Charges Against Air Ministry.

Lord Nuffield has added a new worry by sensational charges that a ring of manufacturers was allowed to monopolize government aircraft orders to the detriment of the nation's defense, which have been the object of the greatest attention and effort for months past.

Nuffield's charges were answered today in a white paper [government report] which will be in the hands of members tomorrow. The air ministry is said to be confident of vindication, but the charges, if sustained, would mean a scandal. The peer visited Prime Minister Baldwin this afternoon in connection with the matter.

Nuffield asserts that a "shadow industry" plan was adopted by the government in the interests of manufacturers, though unsuited to Royal Air force needs.

The plan provides for the production of different parts of aircraft engines by different factories, each making only a single part. According to Nuffield, one of Britain's most successful producers of internal combustion engines, the plan has serious weaknesses, one being that the failure of a single factory to produce its quota cuts down production regardless of what the others do.

Fifty-four questions left over from the last session will open the program tomorrow.

The Program.

Maj. C. R. Attlee, Laborite leader, then will put a private notice question to the government on the Nuffield controversy. Sir Philip Sassoon, undersecretary of the air ministry, is expected to reply, but it is believed possible, in view of the importance of the question, that Sir Thomas Inskip, defense minister, or even Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin will present the government side of the dispute.

The affair cannot be debated, as available time already is earmarked for discussion on the Spanish civil war.

The cabinet held its weekly meeting today to consider the legislative program for the new session of parliament.

It is expected to include announcement of a drive "for an A1 nation." Worry over the state of the nation's health has been increasingly evident and the move to remedy the situation has gained great momentum.

The announcement of the drive is forecast for the king's speech from the throne next Tuesday.

HEMINOVER WINS IN KANE COUNTY HUSKING FINALS

George Heminover of Elgin township husked 31.39 bushels of corn in the 80 minute contest period yesterday, winning the Kane county husking championship. The county finals were held before 1,500 spectators at the Robert Muirhead farm, six miles west of Elgin.

Following are the winners in other Illinois counties where contests recently were held: Macon, Chester Wells; Henry, Harold Holmes; Douglas, George Christman; Piatt, Orville Fry; Vermilion, Elmer Martin; Livingston, John Cottingham; Tazwell, Donald Henderson; Stephenson, Franklin Ross; Woodford, Simon Oltman; Iroquois, Smith Gillins, and Knox, Carl Seiler, former state and national winner.

The ten highest ranking county winners will compete in the state contest to be held on the Jake Berkes farm, two miles north of Maple Park in De Kalb county, next Wednesday.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Frank Ridgway

Sign of Winter.

October 28, 1936.

IT is the time of year when men at the Tribune farms are scattered about, doing odd jobs and preparing for winter.

One of the odd jobs this week has been the setting up of two elevators used in lifting the ear corn into the cribs as it comes from the fields at the Yorkville farm. The cribs have been cleaned and everything is ready for the task of picking corn. A one row mechanical picker may be started this week or the first of next, according to present plans. A new two row corn picker has been bought and the farm manager expects it to be delivered soon.

Workers completed the cutting and shocking of about 25 acres of corn yesterday. It will be fed as roughage to beef steers this winter.

Home Feed for Catle.

The farm manager is continuing to shift the live stock around, changing the feeding schedules to utilize home grown feed in the most economic way. The first of this week the farm flock of 53 breeding ewes was turned into a 12 acre field of volunteer oats. These oats came up in a field where oats were grown this season. The plants are 8 to 10 inches high and are furnishing excellent grazing for the sheep. The ewes also are allowed to run in a pasture of tall native grass, but they are showing a preference for the volunteer oats.

A shift is being made in the ration given the 60 steers in feed yard No. 1. This week the cattle feeders have started increasing the allowance of crushed corn and cutting down on the amount of silage given the steers. Corn will be increased gradually until the steers are on full feed.

No End to Odd Jobs.

There seems to be no end to the so-called odd jobs that are always biding for a farmer's time, especially in the fall.

This week it was necessary to put the carpenters to work nailing on loose boards to prevent the wind from whistling through the cracks this winter. They have replaced the end in one of the main tool sheds.

Pigs Take Medicine.

Yorkville farm pigs had to take their medicine this week. The manager believes in the old saying, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." One hundred and ninety-eight fall pigs were rounded up by the men and given a dose of medicine that is expected to free them from internal parasites.

To protect the pigs from parasites that are often picked up in muddy feed lots, the workers have covered the pens with a layer of gravel.

Workers at the farm yesterday completed the installation of a pump in a 100 foot well which recently was drilled at the Yorkville farm. A windmill will be used in furnishing power for the pump.

WOMAN AND MAN SEIZED BY U. S. IN RUM HIJACKING

United States Commissioner Walker yesterday ordered Attell E. Quirk, 28 years old, and Helen Dorothy held in bonds of $5,000 each for removal to Peoria to stand trial there for complicity in the hijacking of a liquor truck last Dec. 11 near Lincoln, Ill. The two were arrested earlier in the day by federal agents in a flat at 4335 Greenwood avenue. Quirk, according to the agents, admitted receiving $200 for "lining up" the robbery, which was committed by five men. Two of the robbers are in custody at Peoria. Miss Keller, agents said, is charged with acting as go-between for Quirk and other members of the band.

LISTEN: TO THE MOST SOLID SOUND IN 1937 CARS!

Slam those bigger doors. Hear it? Your ears, as well as your eyes, detect the welcome difference which now Glorifies THE STEEL BODY

Bank workers hear it—whenever a steel vault is closed. Housewives hear it—every time they shut their modern steel refrigerators.

It's that unmistakable sound of solid steel meeting solid steel through an air-tight rubber cushion.

And if you walk into any General Motors showroom you'll hear it, too—as salesmen and visitors thud home the doors in the new UNISTEEL TURRET TOP BODY BY FISHER!

This solid substantial sound—without a trace of tinniness—is to the safety-wise and value-wise car buyer enough to make him say, "That's the car I want!"

For, simple as it is, it yet expresses the new luxury and security that this advanced kind of steel body assures on the highway and throughout the years of its use.

Here is more than just an improved steel body. It is the first steel body of its kind—the only steel body that is all-of-a-piece with top, sides, bottom and floor in one solid steel unit.

Here is one-piece steel-on-steel rigidity . . . from the arched and crowned steel Turret Top . . . down over the drawn steel side panels to the steel underbody structure and solid steel floor.

Behind this stronger steel exterior, even the steel cross-bows under the steel top . . . the steel pillars that support the steel panels and steel doors . . . the "U"-shaped steel cross-members and lengthwise steel rockers that reinforce the steel floor . . . are fused-in integral parts of the entire Unisteel Body, not individual steel units bolted together.

Here is steel armor without one vulnerable spot. Here is luxurious safety without the usual "ifs," and "ands."

And you can't miss the attention that has been given to make the new Unisteel Body completely comfortable.

It is roomier, front and back. Floors are lower for increased leg room. Doors are wider and deeper. There is a new two-way adjustable front seat.

Your first glance tells you what an improvement in streamlining style Unisteel construction now makes possible!

Be among the first to examine this progressive development in motor car body construction and design. Every General Motors dealer in your vicinity will have the new 1937 cars with Unisteel Turret Top Body by Fisher—a major feature available only on General Motors cars.

The inside story of Unisteel construction

ONLY BODY BY FISHER HAS ALL THESE SAFETY AND COMFORT FEATURES:

1. Improved visibility, front and rear
2. Streamline style—roominess for greater comfort
3. Saftiseal floor—protects against exhaust fumes
4. Improved No Draft Ventilation with Safety Plate Glass all around
5. Giant luggage compartments "flowed" integral with body
6. Wider seats and larger door openings
7. Turret Top for extra safety and durability
8. New two-way adjustable front seat

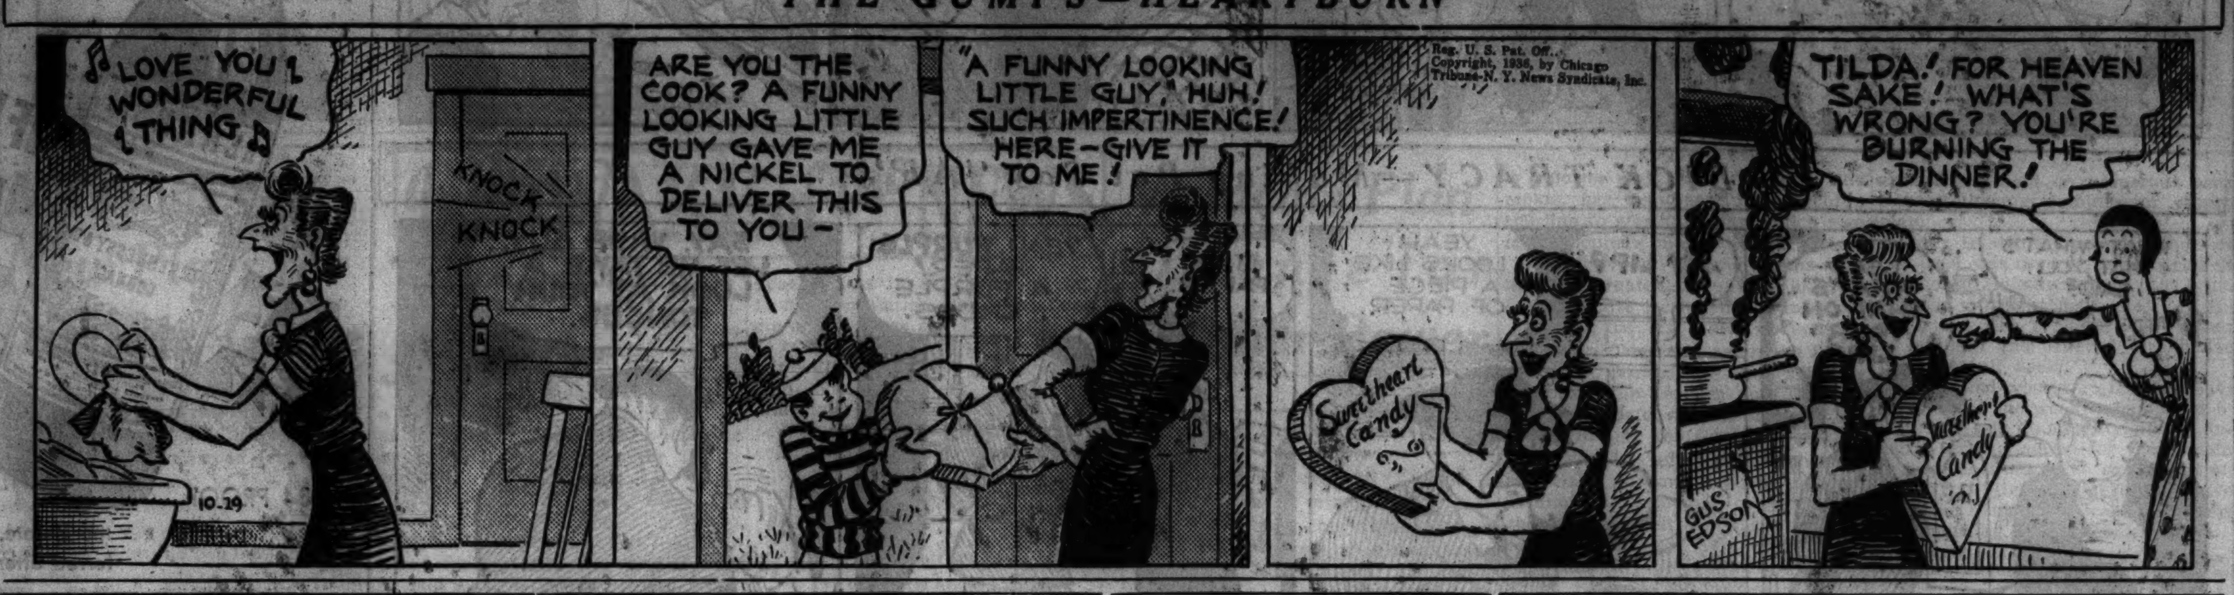
DIZZY DEAN DEMANDS $50,000 CONTRACT

THE GUMPS—HEARTBURN



WILDCATS PLAN DEFENSE FOR GOPHER POWER

Weak Side Play Is Big Worry.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Thousands of words have been written in praise of Minnesota's mighty men, who on Saturday hope to whip Northwestern at Dyche stadium to continue their unbroken record of victory which now dates from the last game of the 1932 campaign. Power, speed, passing, blocking have been favorite subjects.

Northwestern's Wildcats, themselves unbeaten this fall, know of these Minnesota virtues. They lost last year to these Gophers, 21 to 13, after a brilliant first half during which they paced Minnesota, 13 to 7.

Squad strength also has been a topic for discussion. But the most important consideration for this battle of unbeaten elevens, which will be seen by a capacity throng of 47,000, is the consistent mechanical superiority of the Gophers.

Gopher Mistakes Few.

Minnesota makes few mistakes. Her backs fumble on occasion. But the Gophers, always alert, have not broken under pressure. It has been the other fellow who has been worn down by the constant hammer of the Minnesota line until he erred and by his mistake opened the path for a Minnesota triumph.

Can Northwestern match this consistency? Will the Wildcats finally crack the spirit of the Minnesota men? These questions will be answered Saturday afternoon.

Thousands will be unable to see this game. But they will have opportunity to listen to it. Ten radio stations will carry accounts. Northwestern does not sell its radio rights. Thus three stations from Minneapolis and St. Paul, four from Chicago, one from St. Louis, and two national chains, NBC and Columbia, will report the game.

Hundreds of newspapers will be represented. The facilities of the press box have been exhausted, as have the temporary seats in the stadium.

Tickets All Gone.

The last ticket has been sold and yesterday Ted Payseur, ticket manager, was busy explaining to long distance callers as he wrote telegrams which carried the same message. "There are no seats left." Several of yesterday's long distance calls were from California, Washington, Philadelphia, Detroit, Kansas City, St. Louis and, of course, Minneapolis, which already has purchased 14,000 tickets.

Five games in the past three seasons serve to emphasize Minnesota's relentless pressure on opponents and the calm confidence which prevailed as the Gophers checked opponents' rallies.

At Pittsburgh in 1934, Minnesota first proved its greatness. The Gophers hurled back the first Pitt thrust, stopping four line plays from Minnesota's 6 yard line. Most important, this opportunity for Pitt was the result of a fumble by Pug Lund of a bad pass from center by Dale Rennebohm, but the Gophers held. Later, Pitt scored and led 7 to 0 at the half. But Minnesota was waiting its own opportunity. Ten times Lund kicked in the first half, five times on second down and five times on third down, absolute evidence that Minnesota did not fear Pitt's attack and was merely waiting for a break.

Hard Tackle Makes Break.

That break came when Butch Larson's vicious tackle caused Miller Munjas to fumble in midfield. This misplay in the third period was signal for a Gopher advance to the goal. The score came at the start of the fourth period. Lund, Alfonse, Seidel, and Beise were the back field marchers, and Pitt now tied, collapsed before the power of Stan Kostka, who ripped the line and set up the fake plunge lateral from Seidel to Lund and Lund's forward pass for the winning touchdown.

Against Nebraska last year Minnesota led 12 to 7 with a few minutes to play, a fumble and the Cornhuskers had the ball. Three yards to go for a touchdown. A lesser team than last year's champions might have cracked. Minnesota held and won.

Again at Iowa, tied 6 to 6, Minnesota's power failed to smash the Hawkeyes line defense, bolstered by one and sometimes two backs. Passes didn't work because of Simmons' alertness. But eventually Babe Levoir found the open spot and once within Iowa' 20 yard line, Minnesota power hammered through for a 13 to 6 victory.

This year's record is too recent for review. Nebraska thought it had a scoreless tie. Minnesota, still fighting, capitalized on Uram's speed and Wilkinson's quick thinking and with one minute left Uram ran back Douglas' punt for a touchdown.

Purdue outplayed Minnesota last week for a half, but the Boilermakers, notwithstanding their superiority, didn't score and the Minnesota machine rolled on to smash Purdue's aspirations, 33 to 0.

Northwestern may accomplish the victory denied Minnesota's last 21 opponents, but Northwestern's line and

Gaels Hope to Get Even in Friday's Game

When St. Mary's, one of the outstanding football teams of the Pacific coast, was held to a scoreless tie by San Francisco, the Gael's dignity was somewhat ruffled. Then, when unbeaten Fordham, an eastern team—one of the best in the east perhaps, but still an eastern team—scored a touchdown and extra point and clung to a slender lead to win, 7 to 6, last Saturday, the Gael was more than slightly irked.

St. Mary's will meet a representative of midwestern football at Soldiers' field tomorrow night when it engages Marquette university and Coach Slip Madigan and his squad are preparing what they hope will be a proper Halloween potion for a worthy representative of the section that plays some of the best football in the United States.

Gaels Are Big.

St. Mary's wants to and expects to lick Marquette, not only for the sake of winning that game, but, by beating one of the midwest's outstanding elevens, to erase the memory of those earlier jolts to their pride.

The Gaels have Les Groux, 205 pound junior half back who can throw forward passes 70 or 80 yards—so they say—as their chief gunner and Jerry Dennerlein, 6 foot 4 inch, 220 pound tackle as the No. 1 man in a 205 pound line that will dwarf the Hilltoppers' forwards.

Work Out Under Lights.

The squad worked out on lighted Soldiers' field last night, then retired again to the Olympia Fields Country club where they are housed. They will work out at the field again today.

Marquette will take over the field tonight, Coach Frank Murray's plans being to bring his squad down from Milwaukee during the day.

Officials of the Chicago Park district, whose welfare association is to receive one-third of the net receipts, said yesterday that more than 40,000 tickets already had been sold.

The Marquette Club of Illinois, composed of local alumni of Marquette university, gathered last night at the Como inn for a dinner to mark the Hilltoppers' football battle with St. Mary's. Conrad Jennings, athletic director of the Milwaukee school; Evan Kelly of the Chicago park district, and a number of former Marquette sports stars spoke. The club approved a plan to make an annual Chicago game between Marquette and another outstanding team a fixture.

MADIGAN TO STICK.

Coach Slip Madigan of St. Mary's last night denied rumors that he would quit because of reports that stadium bondholders would foreclose.

"I have a two year contract," he said, then added the only thing that might cause his resignation would be another attempt to have an efficiency expect installed in his department. Such an attempt was made last winter.

Death Takes Mack Garner, Famed Jocky

Covington, Ky., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Mack Garner, 36 years old, for years one of the best known jockies on the American turf, died late tonight following a heart attack.

Garner, one of four brothers, all of whom won acclaim as jockies, rode four mounts today at River Downs, formerly Coney Island, and won the first race on Slant Eye.

He was up on Cavalcade when that horse won the Kentucky Derby in 1934; won the Latonia Derby with Brother Batch in 1921, and the rich Belmont stakes aboard Blue Larkspur in 1929.

Complains After Race.

Garner was a native of Centerville, Ia., and had been a jocky for 20 years. Members of his family, with whom he resided here, said he complained of being ill when he returned from the track late today.

He took a turn for the worse several hours later and collapsed about 10:20 o'clock. Members of the Covington life saving squad were summoned and administered restoratives. He was placed in an ambulance but was dead upon arrival at a hospital.

Leaves Four Children.

Garner's brothers, Guy, Lambert and Skeets, all wore jocky's silks, but have since retired. Willie Garner, also widely known as a rider, is a nephew.

Garner's wife, a Covington girl, and his four children were with him when he died.

Ambers Is Beaten by Cool in Nontitle Bout

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Eddie Cool, Philadelphia, won a ten round decision over Lou Ambers, lightweight champion, in a nontitle fight tonight. Ambers weighed 136½; Cool, 139.

Cooper, Star Half Back at Michigan, Hurt

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—The injury jinx which has dogged the football career of Bob Cooper, Michigan's triple threat half back, caught up with him again today.

The brilliant young Wolverine back, who incurred a broken collar bone in scrimmage, will be lost to the team for the rest of the year, Dr. George Hammond, team physician, said tonight.

Was Main Offensive Threat.

The absence from the squad of Cooper, who carried the burden of the Michigan attack in the early part of the season, dealt the football hopes of the Wolverines a severe blow as they prepared for the invasion next Saturday of Illinois.

Cooper's passing, running, and punting was a chief weapon of Michigan's offense. His removal from the squad left the punting assignment to the veteran Cedric Sweet and the passing to Johnny Smithers. Coach Harry Kipke said that Wally Hook, the East Grand Rapids sophomore, who made such a brilliant showing in the Columbia game last Saturday, and Stark Ritchie of Battle Creek would alternate in filling Cooper's position. It also enhanced the chances of Norman Purucker, another half back.

An injury last year—a broken ankle before the start of the season—kept Cooper, a former Cooley High school star of Detroit, from participating in a game. He remained in school, however, and this year is a junior.

ILLINI HOLD SCRIMMAGE.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Bob Zuppke today put the Illini through their first hard scrimmage of the week in preparation for the Michigan game. Tomorrow night the Illini will taper off, then depart Friday morning for Ann Arbor.

The Illinois band of 180 pieces will follow Saturday, paying its first visit to the Wolverine stronghold since 1922.

Zuppke's belief that the contest is anybody's is generally shared in the Illinois camp but there is hope that the Illini can win their first Big Ten game.

Jay Wardley, who has been bothered by an infected leg, definitly will be back in the lineup. Frank Bell, sophomore end, who started against Iowa, came to the front today as a possibility for service as an understudy of Ken Nelson at left wing.

After stopping cold the local freshmen edition of the Michigan offense for the second successive day, the Illini looked with renewed confidence toward their trip to Ann Arbor. Both teams will be aiming for the first conference victory.

Chicago 6 Day Bike Rider Is Injured at Des Moines

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Mike Clarizzio, Chicago, was rushed to a hospital with a ruptured kidney after a bad spill in the six day bicycle races here tonight. His condition was serious. Archie Bollaert and Eddie Triest, popular Belgian team, gained the lead tonight, with Cecil Yates and Eddie Zach only one lap behind.

REAPING REWARD, MRS. MARS' COLT, WINS FUTURITY

Victory Puts Her at Top of Winning Owners.

Pawtucket, R. I., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Reaping Reward, owned by Mrs. Ethel V. Mars of Chicago, won the New England Futurity at Narragansett Park today. The slick brown colt, son of Sickle-Dustwhirl, defeated Pompoon, the 1 to 4 favorite, to earn for Mrs. Mars' Milky Way stable $36,850.

Reaping Reward's victory put Mrs. Mars at the head of the list of money winners on the American turf this year. Her horses have won $193,860. She passed Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, who was topping the field with $158,050.

Juveniles Big Winners.

Most of the purses won by the Milky Way stable have been accounted for by 2 year olds. Important stakes her juveniles have won include the Hyde Park at Arlington Park, won by Nation's Pride; the Arlington Futurity, won by Case Ace; the Selima stakes in Maryland, won last Saturday by Talma Dee; the Bashford Manor stakes in Kentucky, won by Murph, and the Hawthorne Juvenile handicap, won by Dogaway.

Mrs. Mars bought these yearings at the Saratoga sales in 1935 for slightly more than $100,000, startling the country by her heavy bidding. She paid $5,000 for Reaping Reward.

Pompoon is acknowledged 2 year old champion of the year, but he found the mile and seventy yards today a trifle too far. The long striding colt, which will be groomed for the Kentucky Derby, swept into the lead at the half mile post and held it to the stretch, where he began faltering. Reaping Reward, off last in the seven horse field, had improved his position steadily and overhauled Pompoon to win by a neck.

Flies Through Stretch.

The winner was smartly handled by Charlie Stevenson, who did not put any pressure on his mount until the half mile pole was reached. The Mars colt was fairly flying when entered into the stretch and was clocked at the wire in 1:41 3-5, just a second behind the world record.

Twenty lengths behind the beaten Pompoon came Ocean Roll, owned by Carey T. Grayson, four lengths in front of L. H. Ward's Prince Sador. Dogaway, coupled with Reaping Reward, was fifth. Jewell Dorsett and Rudie trailed the field in the order named.

Reaping Reward's mutual prices were $25.20, $3.30, and $2.40. Pompoon paid $2.30 to place and Ocean Roll's show price was $2.60.

RISKO THRASHES HARRY BALSAMO IN RING UPSET

New York, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Eddie [Babe] Risko, former middleweight champion, turned in the prize upset of the indoor boxing season tonight by administering a ten round thrashing to young Harry Balsamo, highly touted knockout specialist from the New York subway. Risko weighed 161 to Balsamo's 160¼.

A capacity crowd of nearly 6,000 crowded into the New York Hippodrome to see the Syracuse youth, recently dethroned by Freddie Steele, take a long step along the comeback trail by winning every round but one from Balsamo, called the hardest hitting middleweight since Bob Fitzsimmons campaigned among the 160 pounders.

PACKERS RELEASE CAL HUBBARD TO N. Y. GIANTS

New York, Oct. 28.—(AP)—The New York Giants of the National Professional Football league today obtained Cal Hubbard, 255 pound tackle and American league baseball umpire, from the Green Bay Packers.

Hubbard was a regular with the Packers last season, but his baseball duties kept him from reporting to Green Bay when the 1936 season opened and he was on the inactive list.

Chicagoans Win $125,000 in Irish Sweepstake Prizes

One Chicagoan, L. P. Ryan, 131 Germania place, and a resident of Cicero, John Thermos, 1836 South 50th avenue, were among the Americans who won heavily in the Irish sweepstakes, which was decided on the running of the Cambridgeshire handicap at Newmarket, England, yesterday.

Ryan, who only last May won $2,215 in the sweepstakes, captured a prize of $75,000 when the horse he drew, Daytona, finished second to Dan Bulger. Thermos, owner of a small restaurant at 206 North Homan avenue, won $50,000 when Laureat II. took third place.

Thermos, however, will share his huge prize with Sid Freeman, a New York broker. Last week when Thermos drew Laureat II., Freeman wired him an offer of $5,000 for a half interest in the ticket. Thermos sadly told a reporter that he had accepted the $5,000.

Mortgage—Then Europe.

"Anyway, I'm going to pay the mortgage on my home in Cicero and the whole family is going on a swell European trip," Thermos said.

Thermos, 46 years old, was born in Paliahoreso, Greece, near Sparta. He is the father of six children, Mary, 18; Helen, 17; Nicholas, 16; Beatrice, 14; Ann, 13, and James, 11. Ann and James attend Sterling Morton High school, while Mary is studying at Morgan Park Junior college.

GIRLS WIN $15,000 EACH

New York, Oct. 28.—[Special.]—A horse named Dan Bulger won the Cambridgeshire stakes at Newmarket, England, today, and "The Ten Girls," pressers in Phil Cooper's cleaning plant in Edgewater, N. J., found themselves the winners of $15,000 each in the Irish Hospitals' sweepstakes.

Theirs was one of the two tickets on the favorite held in the metropolitan area. "The Ten Girls" had spurned offers of as high as $25,000 for their precious scrap of paper, holding on to the bitter end for a grand prize of $150,000.

Brooklyn Woman Wins.

Mrs. Margaret Cunneen of Brooklyn, who had the other ticket on Dan Bulger, stands to cash in for $86,000, having sold a half interest in her chance to speculators for $11,000.

When the news that Dan Bulger had won reached the Cooper plant in Edgewater, all business was suspended. Seventy-five employés quit their work, all machinery was stopped, and everybody gathered in the main workroom.

It was impossible to get any idea of what anybody was talking about. Mr. Cooper dashed into his private office and dragged out a case of liquor, setting up a bar on what had been a work table. Mrs. Sarah Cooper dashed around as happy as if she had won.

Original Sponsor Absent.

Miss Tekla Mandell, 28, on whose idea the fifteen dollar a week pressers bought the ticket for 25 cents apiece, was absent, as was Mrs. Maria Schwandner, but each of the remaining eight girls had something definite to say about their good fortune.

"Whoopee!" screamed Mrs. Sarah Wills, a Negress. "I'm so happy I can't talk. I love beautiful clothes and the first thing I'll do is buy a lot of them. And I'll send them all over here to be cleaned."

Mrs. Margaret Hanusek: "I'm going to spend every cent of it on my family. I have three children and I'm going to spend it on them."

Mrs. Elsie Ring: "I was married two weeks ago and this is my birthday.

RICKEY'S TALK OF TRADE IRKS CARDINAL STAR

Will Sign for Less Anywhere Else.

Bradenton, Fla., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Dizzy Dean said today he will demand $50,000 to pitch for the St. Louis Cardinals next year.

"I would sign with any other club for less," he declared after reading dispatches quoting Branch Rickey, vice president and general manager of the Cardinals, to the effect Dean was on the block if terms were right.

"I'd hate to give up the St. Louis fans," Dean asserted, "but I don't care if I never work for Rickey again."

Rickey was said to have valued Dean at $400,000.

Rickey Irks Dean.

"Since he's got that kind of tag on me," Dizzy exclaimed, "I ought to be worth $50,000 to him next year, and that's what I'm asking from now on.

"Rickey has been doing a lot of popping off. All I got to say is that he doesn't have to worry about me, and I don't have to worry about him. Rickey's trouble is too much running off at the mouth. It looks like jealousy on his part because his name doesn't get on the front pages as often as mine."

Dean said New York sports writers believe a deal for him already has been made.

"If that's the case," Dizzy added, "Rickey apparently is trying to throw up a smoke screen, sour the St. Louis fans on me and soften them up for the announcement that I have been traded.

Diz Told Rickey.

"Rickey is always bragging about the ball players on his farms, but he hasn't brought any of 'em up to help the Cards. If he expects to win next year's pennant, with or without me, he's gonna have to make some deals with major league clubs for major league ball players because he can't find any real ball players on his farm.

"If he had kept the ball players he has sold he could win pennants for the St. Louis fans for the next ten years. He sold Bill Lee, Tex Carleton, Paul Derringer, Burgess Whitehead, Ivan Goodman, and Gus Mancuso, to mention a few. We could have used Mancuso behind the plate.

"I told Rickey last season what we needed was some infielders and a catching staf, and the season's records prove it. Why, they had to call in a minor league catcher [Mike Ryba] near the close of the year."

LIGHTS FOR CARDS, BROWNS

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 28.—(AP)—St. Louis may have major league baseball under floodlights in 1937.

The board of directors of the St. Louis Cardinals at a special meeting today authorized President Sam Breadon to take whatever steps he deemed advisable in the matter of lights in Sportsman's park. Breadon is enthusiastic about night baseball but has been unable to convince a realty holding company which operates the park that it was practical.

"It all depends on the contract I can get," said Breadon at the meeting. "I have been in favor of night baseball for years and if any city ought to have it we should in St. Louis."

The park is owned by the Phil Ball estate which also owns the St. Louis Browns, American league club. The Cardinals pay a rental for its use.

William O. DeWitt, now an official of the Cardinals but mentioned as one of a group of St. Louisans who may buy the Browns, also favors night baseball, and it is possible both clubs will play after dark next season. A decision on disposal of the Browns' franchise may be made this week.

GUNNERS BEAT CALUMET PRO ELEVEN, 15 TO 0

The Chicago Gunners last night beat the Calumet All-Stars, 15 to 0, in a professional league football game at the 124th Field Artillery armory. Wally Cruice, Al Lind and Hugh Duvall, all three of whom are former Northwestern players, were instrumental in scoring all the points. Cruice scored the two touchdowns, one in the first period after catching a 45 yard forward pass by Lind in the end zone, and the other in the second quarter on a line plunge. Duvall accounted for the other points on a field goal from the 40 yard line in the last quarter.

HALAS ROUSES HIS BEARS FROM THAT LION SNOOZE

Uses Packers' Imminence to Wake 'Em Up.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

A few pertinent references to the records by Coach George Halas yesterday was sufficient to clear away the rose colored fog in the Bears' camp as the squad began intensive preparations for the Green Bay game at Wrigley field Sunday.

There was a tendency to see nothing but silver linings after the Bears turned back the Detroit Lions last week for their sixth consecutive victory. Green Bay, the next major test, had already been humbled, 30 to 3, in an earlier game. The road to a championship appeared short, straight, and wide open.

Halas Wakes 'Em Up.

But Halas, a politic gent with a talent for persuasion, quickly cured all astigmatism by reading the official release from the National league statistic bureau. It was unnecessary to dwell on the importance of Sunday's game. The Bears are fully aware that it holds the key to all their title hopes. The object was to impress on these usually alert young men, some of whom are not so young any more, that this week's assignment is even more difficult than the one they passed, not without some luck, against the Lions last week.

In an outburst of eloquence entitled "There's Trouble in the Air," he stressed the Packers' pass attack. Although Detroit is regarded as the Bears' only rival in offense, it is the Packers who are pressing them for the lead in total yards gained and who have displaced the Bears as the leading scoring team in the league.

Packers Gain 1,652 Yards.

The Packers have gained 1,652 ds in six games, seven less than the Bears in a like number of contests. The Bears piled up 1,152 of their 1,659 yards by rushing and only 490 by passing. The Packers' total is almost evenly divided, 864 yards by rushing and 788 by passing.

With 52 completions in 128 attempts, the Packers have an average gain of 15 yards per pass. The average is an indication of the Packers' improved passing attack. Last year they specialized on 50 yard aerials, with Arnie Herber passing to Don Hutson, Johnny Blood, and Bob Monnett. One for 87 yards, Herber to Hutson, beat the Bears, 7 to 0, in the first game at Green Bay, and another, Herber to Hutson for 67 yards, led to the Bears' defeat, 17 to 14, in the final minutes of the second game at Wrigley field.

Stress Short Passes.

This year the Packers are throwing short passes to Gantenbein and Bruder while panicky secondary defenders cover Blood, Hutson and Monnett far down the field. Mr. Halas made quite an issue of this. It was somewhat unnecessary, however, for it was quite obvious to his young men that if they covered Gantenbein and Bruden, Monnett, Blood and Hutson would go for touchdowns with passes over the secondary's head.

Outstanding among the Packers' 52 completions have beeen the following passes:

AGAINST DETROIT.

Herber to Gantenbein, 22 yards for touchdown.
Herber to Blood, 46 yards to touchdown.

AGAINST BOSTON.

Herber to Hutson, 33 yards for touchdown.
Monnett to Blood, 38 yards for touchdown.
Herber to Hutson, 36 yards.

AGAINST PITTSBURGH.

Herber to Hutson, 22 yards for touchdown.
Herber to Hutson, 12 yards for touchdown.
Monnett to Laws, 12 yards for touchdown.
Blood to Miller, 7 yards for touchdown.
Herber to Hutson, 36 yards.

AGAINST CARDINALS.

Herber to Monnett, 25 yards [interference]
Herber to Bruder, 23 yards.
Herber to Gantenbein, 24 yards.
Herber to Miller, 34 yards [interference].

AGAINST BEARS.

Herber to Gantenbein, 28 yards.
Herber to Monnett, 27 yards [interference].

RODMAN, YATES TO FORM CHICAGO BIKE RACE TEAM

Jerry Rodman from the west side and Cecil Yates from the south side will make up the Chicago team in the six day bicycle race which starts a week from Sunday night in the Stadium.

Yates and Rodman have trained together all summer. Yates has won four six day races, finished second in two, third in one, and fourth in one. Rodman has won one race, been second five times, third four times, and fourth five times.

Manager Harry Mandel has also announced that Bobby Thomas and Norman Hill would make up the American team in the race and wear the American colors. Thomas hails from Kenosha, while Hill comes from San José, Cal.

DICK TRACY—Making Pat Say "Ah"

Harvard Team Revamped for Tiger Contest

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Indications today were that Harvard's starting football eleven would be revamped in at least four positions for the Princeton game Saturday. In a 40 minute scrimmage, Coach Dick Harlow had new men at right end, center and both halfbacks. Defensive scrimmage against Princeton plays featured the drill.

SCRIMMAGE FOR YALE.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Yale hehersed new plays today for the Dartmouth game, scrimmaging for the third straight day. Yale A. A. officials said a crowd of between 55,000 to 60,000 would witness the game.

ARMY FEARS PASSES.

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Army today held its last scrimmage before Saturday's game with Colgate. The varsity stressed pass defense, fearing the tricky Colgate overhead attack may catch them off guard as did Columbia three weeks ago. Light drills will make up practice sessions the rest of the week.

DARTMOUTH BACKS RUN WELL.

Hanover, N. H., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Bob MacLeod and Fred Hollingworth, Dartmouth backs, ran well in practice today, giving the high scoring Indian machine new hopes for the Yale game Saturday. MacLeod tore off long gains through the scrubs, and Hollingworth showed considerable pass throwing form, tossing six long completed aerials to the ends.

CORNELL LINEUP IN DOUBT.

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Coach Carl Snavely indicated today that he may revamp Cornell's starting lineup for the Columbia game. Left end and tackle, right guard and right half back posts are still uncertain.

FORDHAM USES KOCHEL.

New York, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Coach Jim Crowley inserted Mike Kochel at right guard in the Fordham lineup today during a long contact drill for the Pitt game.

PENN BACK INJURED.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 28.—(AP)—The possibility that Ed Warwick, injured half back, may not be ready for the Navy game forced Coach Harvey Harman to use Bill Miller at the position in Penn's practice today.

Chicagoans Win $125,000 in Sweepstake

"Pay Off the Mortgage."

Mrs. Adeline Clauwers: "The first thing I want to do is help a couple of poor families I know. Then there's my sister, who needs help, and we have a mortgage to pay off on our home. After that we'll enjoy ourselves."

Mrs. Margaret Morrell: "Just leave it blank for me. I haven't the faintest idea what I'll do. Just leave it blank."

Mrs. Lucy Bauman confessed she was "still in a daze," while Mrs. Catherine Hanley and Mrs. Julia Sakewitz stammered something about having a good time and travel and money in the bank.

Four on Daytona.

There were four tickets in the metropolitan area on Daytona, the 28 to 1 shot that ran second at Newmarket, and four more tickets on Laureat II., 18 to 1, which ran third. The tickets on Daytona are worth $75,000 each, those on Laureat $50,000.

The big race poured approximately $800,000 into the pockets of residents of metropolitan New York.

TAXED UNDER INCOME LAWS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—American winners in the Irish hospital sweepstakes will turn over a good portion of their winnings to the government, but treasury experts today declined to guess the total income the government will receive on the $3,800,000 won by United States residents.

Taxes on the winnings will be paid under the income tax laws, they said. The aggregate federal levies will depend on the winners' other income, the number of their dependents and the amount of their individual winnings.

A winner of $10,000 who was married, had no dependents besides his wife and no other income would pay $443, the experts said. The same person, if he won $25,000, would pay $2,533.

Science Discovers the Thief of Havana Flavor and Taste

Scientists have learned that light rays steal away Havana flavor and taste.

Keep out light and you protect the flavor, aroma and mellow taste of Havana cigars.

LABORATORY tests and scientific study have proven that harshness and poor flavor in fine cigars are a direct result of light rays. To overcome this destructive light action, Bering Cigars are individually wrapped in heavy metal foil, complete protection from light rays and an accurate control of tobacco humidity. When you smoke a Bering you are assured of expertly selected pure Havana tobaccos—all Havana wrapper and filler—brought to you at the peak of condition. Oldtime cigar smokers taste the difference immediately; occasional cigar smokers find a new smoking pleasure. Try a Bering for yourself—today.

IRISH SEE MOVIES OF SELVES BEING BEATEN BY PITT

Then Sharpen Weapons for Use Against Ohio.

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Coach Elmer Layden today showed his Notre Dame football squad pictures of Saturday's 26 to 0 defeat by Pittsburgh, then sent them through a snappy drill on fundamentals followed by dummy scrimmage.

The shadow scrimmage was devoted largely to stopping Ohio State's hocus pocus, but some time was spent on offensive maneuvers in anticipation of Saturday's game here before a sell-out gathering of 56,000 fans.

Injured Men Work Out.

Six injured regulars, five of whom were hurt in the Pitt game, were kept out of contact work, but all of them, with the exception of Capt. John Lautar, left guard, came in for their brief share of dummy scrimmage.

A comparison of statistics for both teams made today shows Ohio State to be superior in almost every department of play, although the Buckeyes probably met stiffer competition than did Notre Dame in the first four games for the respective teams. The Bucks won from N. Y. U. and Indiana while losing to Pittsburgh and Northwestern by a total margin of seven points. Notre Dame won from Carnegie Tech, Washington U. and Wisconsin, while losing to Pitt.

Showing Against Pitt Tipoff.

The most logical argument so far advanced for an Ohio State victory, is the fact that Pitt could win by only 6 to 0 from Ohio State, after the game had been a scoreless standoff for 57 minutes, while Notre Dame dropped a 26 to 0 decision to the Panthers.

Last year Notre Dame had met stiffer competition than Ohio State before the Columbus game, and the final score 18 to 13 for the Irish bore out previous claims that this seasoning had favored the Irish. This advantage should accrue to the Buckeyes this year.

BUCKEYES SEE 1935 MOVIES.

Columbus, O., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Ohio State is bound to be pepped up and in the proper frame of mind for the game with Notre Dame Saturday if Coach Francis Schmidt has anything to do with it. Before practice today the Buckeyes saw motion pictures of every play in their 18 to 13 defeat by the Irish last year.

Practice today consisted of a hard scrimmage session with freshmen who were armed with Notre Dame plays. Two varsity teams and a reserve team were lined up against freshmen who used passes, punts, running plays, and line bucks.

Schmidt plans to send in an entire new team a la Notre Dame to relieve his regulars. The Bucks looked efficient against the Notre Dame plays today and their passing attack was functioning with regularity. The squad will leave for South Bend Friday morning.

IOWA BADLY CRIPPLED.

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—A hard defensive scrimmage against the freshmen, using Indiana plays, brought out many glaring weaknesses in the University of Iowa football team here this afternoon as Coach Ossie Solem pointed the Hawkeyes for the Indiana game at Bloomington Saturday.

Seven of the Hawkeye linemen were out with injuries. Heading the list was Bob Lannon, star end, who has not recovered from a shoulder injury received in the Illinois game.

Never strong at the tackles, the Iowa squad was further weakened by the loss of three men for those positions, namely Frank Gallagher, who has a torn side muscle; Jack Wheaton, with a broken nose, and Fred Lindenmeyer, who is also suffering from a charley horse. Another tackle, Dean Krouch, is nursing a bad shoulder.

HOOSIERS DRILL SECRETLY.

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—In a secret drill in Memorial stadium this afternoon the Indiana university football squad worked on new plays to use against Iowa in the annual homecoming battle here Saturday afternoon. Added replacement strength was injected into the back field, with the return of Half Back Don Heistand of Muncie, who was kept out of the Ohio State game because of an injury received in the Nebraska battle a fortnight ago.

Coach Bo McMillin stressed blocking and tackling, departments in which weakness was shown at Columbus last week-end.

PURDUE SEEKS ENDS.

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Things began to look up in Purdue's football camp this evening, the three days of rest given the players by Coach Kizer seemingly boosting their spirits. The desperate hunt for ends continued this evening as the Boilermakers worked in dummy scrimmage against the freshmen who were using Carnegie Tech pass plays. However, Don Powell and George Spehn worked for a while at the wing posts and it appears that this pair will be ready for action against Carnegie Tech by Saturday.

Harry Krause, reserve tackle who has been out for two weeks with a leg infection, also reported today, but is not yet in shape to play.

The squad will take another short workout here tomorrow afternoon and entrain for Pittsburgh tomorrow night, the final drill being scheduled at Shadyside Academy in Pittsburgh.

DE PAUL DEFENSE AGAINST TEACHER PASSES IS WEAK

Freshmen, fortified with Western State Teacher plays, gave the De Paul university varsity a busy afternoon yesterday. At the conclusion of the drill Coach Jim Kelly announced that another hard scrimmage will be held today.

The Blue Demons were especially weak in pass defense. Yearling half backs representing Eddie Husbeck, brilliant State half back, completed aerials for long gains.

A number of the De Paul sophomores remember Husbeck, who last year threw a 55 yard touchdown pass against the frosh squad. Eight of the Western State starters in that game are expected to open Saturday at Wrigley Field.

Willie Phillips, who sprained an ankle in the first five minutes of play against Dayton three weeks ago, and who has been on the sidelines ever since, practiced yesterday. Pat Howlett has been named by Kelly as the starting left half, but Phililps is sure to see some action.

Maroons Get New Plays for Badger Game

Saturday's game at Madison may have no bearing on any title but it will nevertheless mean a good deal to Chicago's Maroons and to the Badgers who will be celebrating homecoming. Added to the long and colorful rivalry between the two institutions is the chance each has of winning a Big Ten game.

Chicago, after three days of defensive scrimmage, switched back to offense yesterday, concentrating on several new plays for which hign hopes are held. With the return of Lehnhardt to action Coach Shaughnessy now has eight backs from whom to select a starting unit, five of them sophomores. Yesterday's workout indicated that Hamity will start at quarter, Fareed or Sherman at left half, Skoning at full back, and Valorz or Lehnhardt at right half. Fitzgerald may be shifted back to left end.

Wright Is Injured.

The line, already weakened by the loss of Dick Wheeler, reserve center, was hit again yesterday when Clarence Wright, first string guard, was injured. Wright may be unable to play Saturday. Meigs will start in his place at right guard, and Johnson will move back to first string tackle. The Maroon line may have trouble coping with the Badger forwards. Last year they found Golemgeske, big Wisconsin tackle, particularly annoying, although Chicago won, 13 to 7, for its first victory over a Badger team in eight years.

The Maroons will not leave for Madison until Saturday morning. The traveling squad will not be named until tomorrow afternoon. Some 300 midway students will make the trip.

BADGERS WORK ON PASSES.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Realizing that against Chicago it has its best, if not its only, chance to win a Big Ten game this season, Wisconsin is prepared to shoot the works when the Maroons come to Camp Randall Saturday afternoon.

Today's drill indicated again that the Badgers, while not completely overlooking Chicago's superior back field strength, are going to throw caution to the winds and attempt o outscore their opponents, relying principally on passes and the hard running of Full Backs Eddie Jankowski and Howie Weiss.

Scrimmage Against Frosh.

The Badgers took their last look at Chicago plays in a dummy scrimmage session with the frosh this afternoon. Tomorrow's and Friday's drills will be limited to a review of offensive and defensive maneuvers.

Wisconsin will be at full strength for the first time in nearly three weeks for the Chicago battle, scheduled to be played before a homecoming crowd of about 25,000.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

HERE AND THERE.

JOE TINKER, famous Cub shortstop of the "Tinker to Evers to Chance" era, has reëntered the real estate business in Florida. This information is conveyed in a letter from Joe at Orlando, scene of his former operations, where he has formed the Joe Tinker Realty company.

Tinker went into big money at the time of Florida's boom of 1925-'26. At one time he was reputed to be in the seven figure class. Joe himself said he had such potentialities, but never made the figures in actual cash. Part of his accumulated fortune dwindled with the collapse of land values. Part went with his faith in amusement enterprises, including a race track association of which he became president.

The former Cub now expresses the opinion that the present improvement in the southland will not be a boom in the sense of the former one, but a slower and more permanent appreciation in value of residential and business property.

The Wake learns with great regret of the passing last week of Attorney Reuben R. Tiffany of Freeport, Ill. Mr. Tiffany for many years contributed 'Way Back Whens to this column. Through the years we had exchanged many interesting letters with him.

Northwestern university, according to eastern analysts, has played the hardest football schedule in the country for the last three years. That he has a tough schedule in 1936 hardly is news to Coach Lynn Waldorf. O well, he has a "breathing spell" Saturday against Minnesota before tackling Wisconsin, Michigan, and Notre Dame.

Purdue, so completely subdued by Minnesota, has only a few days' rest before tackling Carnegie Tech at Pittsburgh Saturday.

Purdue still is a strong eleven despite the 33 to 0 scored against it, which in our opinion does not reflect its real rating. Several players are not at full physical condition, but we give the Boilermakers an excellent chance against the Scots.

It long has been a truism that "anything can happen in football," as per example: Pittsburgh defeated West Virginia, 34-0; West Virginia defeated West Virginia Wesleyan, 15-0; West Virginia Wesleyan defeated Duquesne, 2-0; Duquesne defeated Pittsburgh, 7-0.

Wildcats Plan Defense for Gopher Power

Northwestern backs must wage a stern fight for 60 minutes.

"We're taking this game as any other on our schedule," Coach Lynn Waldorf said last night. "I wasn't satisfied with our downfield blocking at Illinois. We're trying to better it. The boys will give their best and that may be sufficient to win."

Gophers Are Favorites.

This nonchalant attitude probably is best calculated to keep the Wildcats from breaking under the strain of the fight. It is also certain that Waldorf, whose best offensive weapon is a power play inside the weak side tackle, has been carefully coaching the line to stop this play, which also is the Gophers' most powerful attack.

The first and second teams last night alternated on offense and defense against freshmen elevens.

It was the last hard workout of the week. Time and again the freshmen went through the Minnesota formations. The coaches continued to stress the defensive tactics they believe will stop the Gopher attack.

The Wildcats' offensive, which must materially improve if victory is won, is another problem. In number of speedy, hard hitting backs and in execution of plays, Minnesota has a wide margin of superiority. This is prime reason why Minnesota today is favored to win its 22d victory Saturday afternoon.

BIERMAN PICKS SQUAD.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Coach Bernie Bierman today selected a squad of thirty-six Minnesota players to make the trip to Evanston for the Northwestern game Saturday. During today's long workout Bierman was in a caustic mood as he sent all three teams jogging around the field on numerous occasions following fumbles or sloppy play.

Larry Buhler, 205 pound sophomore full back, was used at three back field positions. He alternated with Julius Alfonse at right half most of the time, but also replaced Andy Uram at left half and relieved Vic Spadaccinni at full back.

The squad wound up its last heavy workout of the week unhampered by injuries. Only dummy scrimmage and signal drill is slated for the remainder of the week. The squad will entrain from Minneapolis Thursday evening, arriving in Chicago early Friday morning. It includes:

ENDS—Ray Antil, Ray King, Dwight Reed, Dominick Krezowski, Bruce Berryman, Frank Warner.

TACKLES—Co-captain Ed Widseth, Lou Midler, Bob Johnson, Warren Kilbourne, Bob Hoel, Marvin Levoir.

GUARDS—Bob Weld, Francis Twedell, Horace Bell, Charlie Schultz, Frank Barle, Allan Rork.

CENTERS—Bud Svendsen, Dan Elmer, John Kulbitski, Stan Hanson.

QUARTER BACKS—Bud Wilkinson, Sam Hunt, Harvey Ring.

FULL BACKS—George Faust, Whitman Rork, Vic Spadaccini, Larry Buhler.

HALF BACKS—Andy Uram, Co-captain Julius Alfonse, Clarence Thompson, Bill Matheny, Rudy Gmitro, Wilbur Moore, Ray Bates.

WHY BUY CIGARS YOU THROW AWAY half-smoked?

What is it you find most displeasing in your cigar? Is it a harsh, bitter, bitey taste that gets worse and worse as you near the end of your smoke?

Millions of smokers—tired of this waste of cigar enjoyment—have switched to Bayuk PHILLIES. Why? Because it's not bitter—not bitey—not raspy. It's mild and smooth all through.

WHAT MAKES PHILLIES SO DIFFERENT?

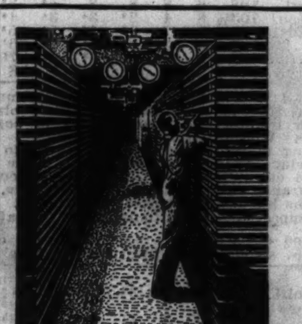
Just this. Bayuk invented a curing process that does two important things to cigar tobaccos. 1. Removes the bitter oils and harsh impurities. (These are in all tobaccos.) 2. Mellows and improves the real tobacco flavor.

Ordinary curing methods haven't done, and can't do, these two all-important jobs. That's why you men have been throwing away millions of cigars only half-smoked.

ONE PHILLIES WILL CONVINCE YOU

If you want a new pleasure and satisfaction from smoking—make PHILLIES your next cigar. Note how every puff is mild, smooth, and full of rich, mellow tobacco flavor. Not a sign of bitterness, harshness nor bitey taste.

More men smoke PHILLIES than any other cigar in America. Isn't that proof that PHILLIES is a different and better cigar?



BAYUK'S EXCLUSIVE PROCESS
This picture shows a unit in the exclusive Bayuk Process for extracting the bitter oils and other harsh elements from the fine tobaccos used in PHILLIES. No other cigar manufacturer has it. Bayuk invites every person interested in cigars to visit the factory and see this process in actual operation.

BATTLE SECOND ROUND TONIGHT IN C.Y.O. TOURNEY

About Forty Fights Are on South Side Card.

The second round of competition in the Catholic Youth organization amateur boxing tournament will be held tonight at the 124th Field Artillery armory gymnasium, 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue. About forty contests will be held in the six lighter weight classes, with fighting in the light heavyweight and heavyweight divisions scheduled tomorrow when the sectional finals out south will be held.

George Runge, sandy haired St. Joseph boxer, and Eugene Smith, colored Corpus Christi puncher, both of whom won impressively in opening matches Tuesday, will be back for more action tonight. So will most of the other winners in this division and in the flyweight, lightweight, welterweight and middleweight ranks. These battlers include Jimmy Carey, lightweight representing St. Barnabas parish, and John Paulauskis, St. Cecelia middleweight.

Boys in the bantamweight class will make their debut tonight and include Jessie Garcia, hard hitting Mexican fighter.

Nick Scialaba, 1931 Chicago Golden Gloves bantamweight champion, tonight will present the second of a series of amateur shows at Peoples' auditorium, 2457 Chicago avenue. Barney Ross, 1929 Golden Gloves featherweight king, and Davey Day, who reached the south sectional finals in the 1931 Golden Gloves tournament, will referee two of the nine contests scheduled. Jack Janis and Phil O'Neil, local welterweight boxers, meet in one of two encounters at five rounds which will head the program.

Cowboy Frankie Edgren, Denver, Colo., heavyweight, and Roscoe Toles of Detroit, yesterday were matched for ten rounds at Detroit Gardens Nov. 10. . . . Owen Woods, south side 147 pound boxer, anticipates a clash with Barney Peterson of Franklin Park in the semi-final to the five round amateur windup involving Tony Musto and Webster Epperson at Madison Athletic club tomorrow . . . Ali Baba is due in the loop one week before his scheduled heavyweight wrestling bout with Everett Marshall, title claimant, at Chicago Stadium Nov. 20. F. M.

IMPRIMIS [C.Crowhurst]	112	2	5	4½	2½	Lost rider		Mrs.C.H.Cherry	28.00-1

Time, :24 1-5, :50, 1:04 3-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Rapid Bells, $2.80 straight, $2.60 place, $2.40 show; Hydromella, $14.80 place, $6.80 show; Verna T., $4.20 show. Winner trained by V. Carmichael. Went to post at 2:16. At post 3½ minutes. Start good from Bahr gate. Won driving; place same.

RAPID BELLS, away fast and under pressure to draw clear in the opening quarter, shook off SHERIFF EUGENE after a half mile and then held HYDROMELLA safe. HYDROMELLA, a factor from the start and on the outside, was lucky to escape interference approaching the stretch turn and, closing with good courage, was getting to the winner. VERNA T., close up from the beginning and on the outside, responded well to pressure in the final quarter.

SECOND RACE—Five furlongs out of chute. Claiming. Purse $600. Net value to winner, $475; second, $75; third, $30; fourth, $20.

MISS MASCARA [T.Wilson]	112	3	9	9	9	9	9	A.Balmer	79.90-1

Time, :23 2-5, :49, 1:04. Two dollar mutuels paid: Color Bell, $8.80 straight, $4.20 place, $2.80 show; Jockana, $4.40 place, $3.60 show; Jere, $2.60 show. Winner trained by A. Foster. Went to post at 2:47. At post 4 minutes. Start good from Bahr gate. Won driving; place same.

COLOR BELL moved up fast to take command approaching the first turn, lost the lead briefly while racing wide and, responding to good urging in the final sixteenth, wore down JOCKANA. The latter, away fast, took a short lead on the inside when COLOR BELL went wide and though failing to withstand the winner held on stubbornly. JERE, a factor from the start, saved ground, responded well to urging in the final sixteenth, and closed resolutely.

THIRD RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Claiming. Purse $600. Net value to winner, $475; second, $75; third, $30; fourth, $20.

JAMES SINGS HIS SWAN SONG TO CHICAGO RACING

Leading Rider Departs for Churchill Downs.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Jocky Basil James, the brightest star of Chicago's long racing season, sang his swan song to Chicago race-goers for the year at Sportsman's Park yesterday afternoon.

It was a very harmonious swan song for he won two races in six attempts. His backers cheered him in a way to indicate they got even for the year.

James rode Color Bell, 3 year old son of Color Sergeant-Rosabella, to victory in the five furlongs second race. He had missed with Sherif Eugene in the first and later on failed to click on the red hot favorite Mibs in the third, on stoutly backed Margaret G in the fourth and on Odd Blue in the fifth.

Rides Second Winner.

In the seventh race, his last of the year in Chicago, James paraded out on the Chappel Brothers' horse Chrysostle. A great cheer went up for him. A still greater ovation awaited him when he drove home in front on Chrysostle, the winner by a length and a half from Teenie R., Sister Ikie, and seven other $1,000 selling platers. With all the James backers down hook, line, and sinker, Chrysostle paid $7.60 for a $2 ticket.

Then James packed his tack. He said good-by to the other kids in the jocky room, waved farewell to a lot of his admirers and departed for the Churchill Downs track in Kentucky. He will ride there during the short eight day fall season, then will go back to California, where he started his meteroic riding career, a little more than a year ago.

James left for Kentucky with a division of the Tranquillity Farm stable horses that was sent there. Another big division of this extensive stable pulled out from Sportsman's Park bound for California yesterday.

To Rank with Greats.

The victory James scored on Chrysostle was his 209th of the year. He is well out in front in the race for the American riding championship.

Most Chicagoans see in James one of the greatest riders that has been developed since the days of Earl Sande. Some of them say he's the best since Tod Sloan's time. They must know about him in other parts of the country also, for a $15,000 offer for his contract was turned down during the week. The offer came from a wealthy eastern turfman.

The best race on the program on which James was trying so hard to make a great ferewell showing was the Joliet handicap at 6½ furlongs.

Cardarrone, which broke into the stake winning class at Lincoln Fields a month ago, was installed as the short priced favorite. After leading until he was within shouting distance of the judges in the payoff station, Cardarrone shortened his strides. Morning Mail came along on the outside and beat him to the line of finish by a neck. Countess Ann staged a rally in the stretch and got up in time to be third.

Morning Mail paid $9.20 for a $2 ticket. He was ridden by Jocky H. Hauer, who was the big star of the day while James was saying his good-bys.

CHRYSLER FINED FOR VIOLATING U. S. GAME LAWS

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Walter P. Chrysler, automobile manufacturer, paid fines totaling $11 in the United States District court today for violating the federal regulation on duck hunting. Chrysler and William T. Pritchett, superintendent of Chrysler's Maryland estate, also was fined on a similar charge. Both pleaded guilty to using automatic shotguns that had not been plugged to limit them to three shells.

Close Competition Marks Events in Stadium Rodeo

With the finals in the Chicago Stadium rodeo scheduled to begin Saturday, 100 cowboys who have not as yet qualified for the $15,000 prize awards are battling it out in unusually close competition.

In the calf roping last night there were six contestants less than four seconds apart, Jim Sniveley of Pawhuska, Okla., winning with a time of :21 1-5.

Last night's wild steer wrestling brought the closest competition of the week, Tom Hogan of Tulsa, Okla., Breezy Cox of Pinetop, Ariz., and Homer Pettigrew of Clovis, N. M., finishing only four-fifths of a second apart. Hogan won in :08.

BAREBACK BRONC RIDING—Won by Sonny Bender, Trail City, S. D.; Ed Collins, Sisseton, S. D., second; Fritz Becker, Alamosa, Colo., third.

CALF ROPING—Won by Jim Snively, Pawhuska, Okla., time :21 1-5; Billy Wilkinson, Cheyenne, Wyo., second, time :22 1-5; Allen Holder, Sheffield, Tex., third, time :23 3-5.

SADDLE BRONC RIDING—Won by Lonnie Rooney, Wilson, Okla.; Bob Askins, Ismay, Mont., second; Curley Kelley, Sheridan, Wyo., third.

COWGIRLS BRONC RIDING—Won by Thelma Warner, Clancy, Mont.; Margie Greenough, Red Lodge, Mont., second; Vaughan Kreig, Fort Towson, Ariz., third.

WILD STEER WRESTLING—Won by Tom Hogan, Tulsa, Okla., time :08; Breezy Cox, Pinetop, Ariz., second, time :08 2-5; Homer Pettigrew, Clovis, N. M., third, time :08 4-5.

WILD COW MILKING—Won by Buck Stanhiford, Olton, Tex., time :38; Jim Wilkinson, Cheyenne, Wyo., second, time :39 4-5; Homer Pettigrew, Clovis, N. M., third, time :45.

WILD STEER RIDING—Won by Ken Roberts, [illegible] City, Kan.; Ted Bushbaum, [illegible]; Don Thompson, Cal[illegible], third.

[illegible] HOLDS BANQUET.

The Knights of Columbus Soft Ball league will hold its fourth annual banquet this evening in the Gold Room of the Congress hotel.

Ellinwood Forsakes U. of C. for Philosophy in a Cabin

Raymond Ellinwood, brilliant University of Chicago track star and equally brilliant student of philosophy, chugged out of Chicago in a 1929 automobile Tuesday, bound for a woodland retreat in California and several years' study of his favorite philosophers, his astonished fellow students learned yesterday.

The slim, thick chested star broke into the headlines last year when, in his first collegiate meet, he set a new indoor world record of :49 for the quarter mile run. In the Big Ten indoor meet he lowered this record, and the conference record, to :48.9. Undefeated in the conference in the quarter and half mile runs, he captured the Big Ten outdoor 440 yard title, placed fourth in the 220, and was elected captain of the Maroons for this year.

Regarded as Brilliant Scholar.

Fraternity brothers of Ellinwood at the Alpha Delta Phi house, who described Ellinwood as "the most phenomenal analytical mind" they knew, reported yesterday that track has been a poor second to philosophy among Ellinwood's interests.

He told his friends that he could live more cheaply in a California cabin than in Chicago, and could devote more time to his studies. At the Midway he would have to work several valuable hours a day in order to make financial ends meet. The cabin, recommended to him by a Chicago alumnus, is north of Pasadena.

To Spend Three Years on Coast.

Ellinwood was accompanied by Leonard Olsen, a fraternity brother. Together they plan to devote two years to study of the works of St. Thomas Aquinas, with reference to Aristotle and possibly Plato. Mathematics and other natural sciences will be a side interest. A third year they hope to devote to study of Aquinas' writings with respect to modern philosophers. Then they expect to return to the Midway to prepare for doctor's degrees.

Ellinwood, who is 21, spent most of last summer at a cabin in Michigan, where he made detailed notes on ten volumes of Aquinas' masterpiece, the "Summa Theologica." Last year he surprised the campus by publishing a letter in the Daily Maroon on the nature of criticism. Later he conducted sessions of the student chapel council on the nature of religion, and tutored fraternity brothers in a course of so-called "Trivium." Currently he has submitted to the student literary magazine a paper on "Diagnosis, prognosis and therapy with respect to skepticism." He attended classes rarely.

Ran Up $50 Library Fine.

He ran up library fines of over $50 by keeping books too long, his mates say, which he worked to pay this summer. Arrangements have been made for him to secure books in California and keep in communication with Midway faculty members.

Ellinwood, who lives in River Forest, Ill., graduated from Western Military academy and spent a semester at Purdue before enrolling at the Midway.

Catholic Prep Leaders Fight to Stay at Top

St. Philip's undefeated eleven, tied with Fenwick of Oak Park for the west division lead in the Chicago Catholic High School league, will meet St. Patrick at St. Philip field, Van Buren and Albany streets, Sunday afternoon. Fenwick will oppose St. Michael at Mills stadium, Lake street and Kilpatrick avenue.

West Aurora, co-holder of first place in the Big Seven conference, will play La Salle-Peru on the latter's field tomorrow night. Other conference games send Joliet against Elgin at Elgin and Rockford will play at Freeport.

Andy Nesbit, rated as the leading half back in the Chicago Public High School league, will lead Englewood against Tilden Tech at the 124th Field Artillery armory Saturday night. Englewood now leads the central division with three victories and one tie. Tilden is tied with Lindblom for second place.

Fenger will seek to clinch the south section championship when it meets Parker at White City Saturday afternoon. Fenger has scored four straight victories, while Parker has two triumphs and two defeats.

Two South Suburban league games will be played tomorrow night. Calumet City will meet Bloom at Chicago Heights, while Blue Island will play at Kankakee.

One Catholic league game, St. Ignatius against St. Mel, has been moved up from Sunday to Saturday and will be played at St. Philip field.

Proviso of Maywood returns to action in the Suburban league Saturday and will attempt to score its fifth consecutive victory against Highland Park on the latter's gridiron. Oak Park, tied with Proviso for the league lead, drew a bye this week.

A new captain probably will be elected to succeed Bruce Newman at York High school in Elmhurst. Newman suffered a broken leg last week against Downers Grove. York faces Glenbard at Elmhurst in a West Suburban conference game Saturday.

Buresch Throws Roxey in Arcadia Windup

Stanley Buresch threw Walter Roxey, former claimant of the light heavyweight wrestling championship, in a heavyweight bout at Arcadia Gardens last night. The time was 23 minutes 14 seconds. The crowd of approximately 1,500 created a mild disturbance when the decision was announced. Gentleman Jack Smith pinned Art Van Saxon in 16:42 in the semi-final. Other results:

Josse Manuel threw Red Vagnonne, 21:30.
Ernie Peterson threw Frenchy Leavitt, 22:13.
Lefty Pacer threw Bull Curley, 18:20.

Mrs. Stowell to Defend Pocket Billiards Title

Mrs. Hilda Stowell, of Chicago, amateur mid-west pocket billiard champion, will defend her title in a tournament Nov. 17, 18, and 19. C. A. Storer, president of the National Billiard association of America, announced yesterday. The tournament will be held in Chicago in one of several locations now under consideration and to be definitly selected next week.

Alabama Arrives Today for Kentucky Game

The Alabama State Teachers' colored eleven of Montgomery, Ala., will arrive today and the Kentucky State squad of Frankfort, Ky., is due tomorrow for their football game at Soldiers' field on Saturday. Nine of the members of the Kentucky colored team played on Chicago high school teams and on teams of schools in East Chicago.

Sweetser Flays Democrats for Using His Name

New York, Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Jess W. Sweetser, former American and British golf champion, now president of the Metropolitan Golf association and an ardent booster for the Landon-Knox and the William F. Bleakley tickets, today repudiated the use of his name on a sports committee circular of the Democratic and American labor parties with the statement that he thinks it was "a dirty trick."

At his office today Sweetser said he had worked with the Republican campaign committee. He attended a recent Fordham football game, he said, and noticed that several miniature footballs were being distributed bearing the slogan, "Carry the ball for Lehman." Several persons prominent in sports circles signed the football. But he did not. His presumption is that some one may have signed his name for him.

"Anyway, they used my name without my approval," he said.

BABY RUTHS BOWL 3,116 SERIES IN CLASSIC LEAGUE

Shooting 3,116 the Baby Ruth Candies were high for the evening in the Classic league last night at the Congress Recreation and moved up into fourth position in a tie with the Pabst Blue Ribbons who were able to take only one game from the Oak Leaf Motors. The Charles H. Webers defeated the Winkler Motor Service three times and are now resting in second place, only one game behind the Monarch Beers who swept their series with the Kraft O-ke Dokers. The Pragers lost the first two games to the Ruths but won the last, 1,034 to 975. The Monarch Beer's 1,088 game was high.

O'CONNELL AND DEARBORN FIVES IN K. OF C. RACE

Two of the most popular teams in the Knights of Columbus Basketball league will compete again this season, it was announced yesterday as plans for the organization's 22d year neared completion. They are Daniel O'Connell council, which will play in the west division and Fort Dearborn, which has been assigned to the south section. It is also possible that Madonna, another popular team, will return to the fold next season.

According to President Ed Whelan, the south section will probably play its games at the 124th Field Artillery armory in Washington park. Several sites are under consideration for the west side.

Du Sable Cross Country Team Beats Tilden, 24-31

Du Sable High school defeated Tilden, 24 to 31, in a two mile cross country run at Ogden Park yesterday. Garfield Lindsay of Du Sable crossed the finish line first in 11 minutes 29 seconds. Samuel Demons of Tilden was second and Edward Brown of Du Sable third.

FIVE MAN POWER PLAY STRESSED BY BLACKHAWKS

Loughlin Plans Attack on Weakened Defense.

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—The power play occupied the attention of the Chicago Blackhawks today. Manager Clem Loughlin kept the players working on this maneuver for more than an hour. The power play is the five-man attack employed when the opposing team is short handed because of penalties.

Seibert Moves Up.

Earl Seibert, husky defense man, moves up with the forwards, and the five men pass the puck back and forth until one gets an unguarded shot.

Loughlin plans to use Seibert, Johnny Gottselig, and his ace line of Doc Romnes, Paul Thompson, and Mush March on this play. The five worked effectively this morning.

Injuries Become Fewer.

Loughlin also gave the men the customary half hour of shooting practice. He is well pleased with the improvement of various members of the squad.

Various minor injuries are disappearing, and the team should be in tip top shape for the opening at the Stadium the night of Nov. 5.

Southern Auto Champion to Race at Roby

Frank Beeder will compete in the annual Roby sweepstakes at Roby Speedway Sunday as the southern driving champion for the first time. Beeder won the southern title last week at Atlanta, Ga.

Promoter Stockholm has closed the track to practice for the rest of the week and will have the oval in lightning fast condition. Superintendent Mickey Rodak has been directing a crew of men all week to eliminate the few remaining soft spots in the track and declared there will be no excuse for the absence of a new track record Sunday.

Officials of the contest board of the A. A. A. are still considering the application of Red Campbell, leading pilot of the so-called outlaws, who has posted a $300 bond with his application for registration with the A. A. A.

STADIUM BOXING CARD FOR NOV. 6 IS COMPLETED

The boxing card scheduled at Chicago Stadium one week from tomorrow has been completed, Matchmaker James C. Mullen announced yesterday. In addition to three matches at ten rounds there will be two at four rounds and one at six.

Phil Kenneally, Golden Gloves and Catholic Youth organization graduate, will make his second professional appearance against Barney Peterson in a four round bout. The other fight at this distance matches Andy Scrivani, member of the United States Olympic Golden Gloves team, with Pete Poulis. Peterson, Scrivani and Poulis will all be making their first professional appearances.

The six round engagement involves Patrick Michael Barry, recent importation from Ireland, and Irving Ashkenazy, New York heavyweight. Max Marek boxes Maurice Strickland, Harry Dublinsky clashes with Milt Aron, and Al Nettlow opposes Joe Connolly in the three headliners at ten rounds.

TOP ROW WINS FUTURITY CHASE FOR FOX HOUNDS

Paducah, Ky., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Top Row, sleek son of a former champion and owned by O. De Gray Vanderbilt, Cincinnati, staged a whirlwind finish today to win the futurity chase for young hounds at the 43d annual field trials of the National Fox Hunters' association.

Lula Belle Shanklin, owned by D. C. Stockham of Friendship, O., finished second after running loose all last night. The dog was found at 7 a. m. by its owner and rushed to the scene of the final cast, an hour late.

Tennessee owners saw their dogs account for third and fourth prizes. Polly Crowe, owned by R. L. Taylor of Memphis, took third and Baby Ruth, hound of W. L. Brown, Lexington, Tenn., was fourth.

All the futurity winners were Kentucky bred.

Starting tomorrow and lasting through Saturday, the Grand National chase for hounds of all ages will be held.

Florence King Named Catholic Women's Director

The Illinois Club for Catholic Women, 820 North Michigan avenue, yesterday announced the appointment of Miss Florence King as athletic director of the club to succeed Gordon Heughens, who is retiring because of ill health. Miss King served for eight years as head of women's and children's physical activities for the city of Seattle. She went to Notre Dame, Ind., this fall to act as physical director of St. Mary's college.

St. Louis Soccer Team Beats Maccabees, 3 to 2

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 28.—(AP)—The St. Louis All-Stars defeated the Maccabees of Palestine, 3 to 2, in a soccer game played before 5,000 fans here tonight. It was the first defeat for the Maccabees during their tour of the United States. St. Louis led, 2 to 1, at the half.

Cord Offering Model of 170 Horsepower

BY HAL FOUST.

Despite the objections of safety theorists on the speed of modern trafic, the automobile industry for 1937 is presenting faster motor cars than any preceding models. A superlative in fleetness was announced yesterday by Roy H. Faulkner, president of the Auburn Automobile company. It's a supercharged Cord with an engine rated at 170 horse power.

The manufacturers are not advertising the top speed, but they are building more power into the engines and there's no mechanical governor to limit the use of this power. This general statement applies with few exceptions to models of all price ranges.

Speed Trend Defended.

The factory executives, in defense of this trend, point out that the vast majority of accidents happen at speeds below 50 miles an hour. A safety advantage of the more powerful engines is their more rapid acceleration and an economic advantage lies in the ease with which they perform at reasonable cruising speeds. The rakish, round nosed Cord of 1936, with an engine rated at 125 horse power, could hold a speedometer needle at 85 miles an hour without straining and with a favorable wind and a long straightaway could reach 100 miles an hour. With a supercharger boosting the engine output to 170 horse power, 120 miles an hour is not too much to expect.

Will Introduce Two Lines.

A line of Cords without the supercharger and a line with the supercharger will be displayed at the national automobile shows opening in New York on Nov. 11 and in Chicago on Nov. 14. The Auburn car will be absent.

Faulkner said the 1937 line of Auburns will be introduced next spring and it will offer as much individuality in the medium price field as the Cord is offering in a higher bracket.

CHICAGO STOCKS IRREGULAR BUT TREND IS HIGHER

Chicago stocks pushed irregularly higher yesterday in moderate trading. Activity was featured by Marshall Field, which rose to a new high for the year, Middle West, which improved fractionally on a turnover of 12,000 shares, the largest individual total, and Butler Brothers, which moved higher in heavy dealings.

Of the 114 issues traded in 50 advanced, 34 declined, and 30 finished unchanged.

General Finance corporation of Evanston and Detroit was added to Chicago Stock Exchange corporations yesterday when the governing committee approved listing of 854,050 shares of $1 par stock. Also approved were listings of 3,268 additional shares of Bastian-Blessing company common stock.

Transfer of a membership on the exchange to Fletcher Garlock, Chicago resident partner of F. S. Mosely & Co. from Harry C. Robbins, Boston partner of the firm, was approved. A membership also was transferred to Charles H. Eldredge of Chicago.

IRON OUT DETAILS OF KELVINATOR AND NASH MERGER

Officials of the Nash Motors company and the Kelvinator corporation whose directors on Tuesday approved plans to consolidate the two companies yesterday met in Chicago to work out final details of the deal.

Among the executives who attended the conference at the Drake hotel were Charles W. Nash, chairman of the motor company; J. T. Wilson, a director of Nash; George W. Mason, president of Kelvinator, and Horace J. Mellum, secretary of Nash.

Officials yesterday declined to elaborate on the announcements issued Tuesday outlining general terms of the consolidation plan. The proposed merger will be submitted to stockholders of Nash and Kelvinator as soon as legal arrangements are completed, it was stated.

It is expected that main offices of the company will be in Kenosha, Wis., the present headquarters of the Nash company.

BUTTER AND EGGS ADVANCE; POTATOES IRREGULARLY UP

Butter futures advanced ⅝ to ¾ cent on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday. Buying, induced by reports of higher asking prices for Latvian and Lithuanian butter, a better consumptive demand, and firmness in the local and New York spot markets, was responsible for the upturn. November contracts closed at 31¾ cents a pound. Sales of futures were 183 cars.

The Chicago Mercantile exchange announced yesterday that trading in egg future contracts calling for delivery in January, 1937, will begin Nov. 2.

Butter production in September, as estimated by the bureau of agricultural economics, aggregated 131,862,000 pounds. In August it was 139,363,000 pounds, and in September, 1935, it was 141,785,000 pounds.

Continued heavy withdrawals of eggs from cold storage, and light receipts, brought in buying of egg futures, with the close ¼ cent higher. October contracts finished at 26⅛ cents a dozen. Sales were 158 cars.

Trade in potato futures was less active, with prices unchanged to 4 cents higher. January closed at $2.88 per 100 pounds. Sales were 9 cars. Prices follow:

SUGAR

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was unchanged today at 3.39c per lb for spots with no sales reported. There were sugars available at this level, but no interest from local refiners above 3.35c. Futures were easier under liquidation and hedge selling prompted by inactivity in the spot market. The volume of business was of limited proportions. Final prices were 2 to 4 points net lower.

Range of raw sugar futures [cents per pound] follows:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. close.
November	2.43	2.43	2.42	2.43	2.44

CORD TO RETAIN BIG INTEREST IN CHECKER CAB

Will Sell Part of Stock After 5 for 1 Split.

BY HERBERT VEDDER.

Cord corporation has every intention of retaining its extensive interests in the taxicab business, R. S. Pruitt, vice president and counsel, asserted yesterday in a telephone conversation from New York.

Announcement yesterday that Cord and Morris Markin, president of the Checker Cab Manufacturing company, plan to sell a substantial block of their holdings in Checker has created an erroneous impression that Cord is "walking out of the taxicab business," Pruitt said.

"Such is not the case," he asserted. "Cord and Markin will retain working control of Checker Cab. We have every confidence in the future of Checker and its subsidiary companies. They are doing a better business than in some time.

Seeks Wider Distribution.

"Our purpose in selling part of our stock is to obtain a wider distribution of the shares and create an orderly market."

Stockholders of Checker will vote today on a proposal to increase authorized capitalization from 250,000 to 1,250,000 shares and split the present outstanding 108,361 shares five for one.

As a result of picking up a block of Checker stock on an option in 1933, said Pruitt, Cord and Markin now hold 66,913 shares and there is little free stock in the hands of the public. Cord corporation owns 8,600 shares, Cord and Markin hold 47,663 in joint account, and Markin is beneficial owner of 10,650 shares.

"This concentration of stockholding," said Pruitt, "has resulted in there not being an orderly market for the stock. The stock has fluctuated widely and there has been a broad spread between the bid and asked prices of the stock.

Investigated by SEC.

"As a result, the Securities and Exchange commission and the New York Stock exchange have conducted an investigation of the company and all trades in the stock. The SEC investigators have been through our books, and told me that they found a clean picture. So far as I know, the investigation is over.

"It is impossible for us to buy and sell stock and conduct an orderly market under present security laws, so we thought it would be a good idea to split the stock 5 for 1, and offer part of our stock publicly."

After the split, Cord and Markin will have 334,565 of the 541,605 shares outstanding. Plans to sell 175,000 shares, with Haskell, Scott & Jennings, Inc., as underwriters, will leave these interests with 159,565 shares, and practical working control of approximately 30 per cent of outstanding stock.

The market in Checker stock has been erratic since the company emerged from the "red" last year, and its stock has fluctuated widely as it climber from $7 a share a year ago to a high of $69 during recent months.

RAW SILK.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(AP)—SILK—Raw futures closed easy, 1½ to 3 points lower; sales, 1,260 bales. December, $1.78½ per lb; January, $1.75; March, $1.74. [Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 28.—The main body of pivotal bonds listed on the New York Stock exchange was unable today to carry through the recovery which featured dealings Tuesday.

Although a few of the convertible industrial loans responded briskly to fresh buying demand, the general run of secondary railroad and utility issues continued to drift aimlessly to lower levels.

The trading pace slackened considerably, as sales amounted to $11,537,000, as compared with $16,278,000 on the preceding day.

Federal List Mixed.

The market for United States government obligations quieted down and prices fluctuated irregularly within comparatively narrow limits. Closing quotations in the treasury list showed gains of as much 2-32 point to declines of 3-32 point.

The turnover in the government loans dwindled from $5,921,000 on Tuesday to $1,029,900 yesterday. Other higher grade investments merely marked time in dull trading.

Several Industrials Rise.

Conspicuous features in the industrial group included Allis-Chalmers convertible 4s, American Type Founders 5s, and American Writing Paper issues, all of which responded to a brisk demand with gains of 1 to 5 points.

Other pivotal issues, however, did not participate in the recovery and pointed toward lower levels.

Considerable interest developed in the market for Buenos Aires bonds today as those issues rose 1 to 2 points in fairly active trading. Other foreign dollar bonds were firm to moderately higher.

American Encaustic Tiling.

Investors' Guide: Please send me full information on American Encaustic Tiling.—P. H.

Answer: Being a manufacturer of wall and floor tile in a wide variety of colors and patterns, American Encaustic Tiling company is heavily dependent on residential building. With construction of new homes almost nil until the pickup in recent months, the company was particularly hard hit. It has not shown a profit since 1929, and the unbroken string of six consecutive years of losses resulted in reorganization in February, 1936.

Under terms of the reorganization plan, a loan of $350,000 was obtained from the Reconstruction Finance corporation to provide working capital and repay previous advances of $131,000 by the RFC. Sole capitalization consists of 310,000 authorized shares of $1 par common stock, of which 283,133 are outstanding.

Creditors were paid 10 per cent of their claims in cash and received one share of stock for each $10 of the remaining 90 per cent of claims. One share of new common was issued for each ten old shares.

Creditors and stockholders were given rights to subscribe for 200,000 shares of the new common stock at $1.50 a share.

The predecessor company's losses were $259,000, or 90 cents a share, in 1935; $469,000, or $1.63, in 1934; $576,000, or $2.54, in 1933; $806,000, or $3.59, in 1932; $550,000, or $2.27, in 1931, and $99,000, or 43 cents, in 1930. Net income was $696,000, or $3.06 a share, in 1929.

No income statements are available on operations of the company since reorganization. The new stock, therefore, must be rated as highly speculative until earning power of the new company is demonstrated.

Buying Stock.

Investors' Guide: Will you kindly send me some information about how to go about buying some stock? I have a small sum of money I would like to invest. I have no knowledge concerning methods used in business of this kind.—H. K.

Answer: You may buy stocks either through your bank or a brokerage house. In either case you will be charged a commission for either buying or selling. We attach a mimeograph on these charges.

We suggest that you consider carefully before making stock purchases, learning as much as possible about the record of the company and its financial stability. If you wish we shall be glad to furnish you with a report on any company in whose stock you are interested.

INSURED BANKS' ASSETS CLIMB TO 53½ BILLION

Increase Largely Due to Federal Borrowing.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28.—Assets of the 14,059 federally insured banks amounted to $53,578,392,000 as of June 30, the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation announced today. Total deposits were $46,625,749,000.

The bulk of the increase in assets of the banks from Dec. 31, 1935, to June 30 was accounted for by a jump of $1,497,188,000 in government bonds, notes, and bills, reflecting the New Deal's deficit borrowing program. On June 30 the government loans swelling the bank's assets were $15,107,185,000. Other securities amounted to only $7,411,609,000, an increase of $570,510,000 during the six months.

Loans and Discounts Rise.

Loans, discounts, and overdrafts, including rediscounts amounted to $15,107,185,000 on June 30, an increase of $409,204,000. Other assets reported by the FDIC included: Reserve with federal reserve banks, $5,607,119,000; balances with other banks, $5,321,897,000; cash items in process of collection, $2,194,114,000; coin and currency, $915,988,000; banking house, furniture, and fixtures, $1,194,621,000; other real estate, $574,024,000; customers' liability on account of acceptances, $159,267,000; borrowed securities, $1,000,000; and other assets, $319,091,000.

On the liability side of the ledger the banks increased their total deposits by $2,500,128,000 during the six months. Demand deposits totaled $21,463,913,000 on June 30, representing an increase of $1,389,850,000 during the six months, while time deposits were $13,005,697,000, an increase of $510,138,000.

Capital Above 6 Billions.

The capital account of the banks aggregated $6,298,588,000. Of this $3,212,615,000 represented capital stock, notes and debentures, and $2,042,072,000 was surplus.

For the first time the FDIC reported that the capital investment of the Reconstruction Finance corporation in the insured banks was $782,434,000. Of these advances 1,872 national banks were chalked up with $411,107,000. There were 336 state banks, members of the federal reserve system, owing $170,682,000 to the RFC and 3,299 banks not members of the federal reserve system debtors to the RFC in the amount of $200,645,000.

Figures on Illinois Banks.

The total assets of 862 federally insured banks in Illinois amounted to $4,359,481,000. The Illinois banks had $1,227,988,000 in direct government obligations, which was an increase of $331,810,000 during the six months. In addition the Illinois banks held $159,624,000 of obligations fully guaranteed by the government. Other securities amounted to $537,922,000.

The total of cash, balances with other banks, and cash items in the process of collection was $1,503,004,000. The aggregate of loans, discounts, and overdrafts was $803,525,000, and of miscellaneous assets, $127,418,000.

Demand deposits in the Illinois banks amounted to $2,399,856,000, an increase of $624,397,000 in the six months, while time deposits increased $326,475,000 to a total of $866,117,000.

BIG POWER USERS SUE EDISON FOR EIGHT MILLIONS

Seek Return of Alleged Overcharges.

Fifty-eight large users of power yesterday brought suit against the Commonwealth Edison company for $8,000,000. Filed in Superior court, the bill seeks the return of $6,000,000 in alleged overcharges and $2,000,000 in damages "for the sake of example and punishment."

The complainants, headed by the American Generator and Armature company, 2510 South Pulaski road, include industrial firms, hotels, and laundries. They assert that Edison "buried" a charge of 1½ mills [15-100ths of a cent] per kilowatt hour as a lamp service charge on power bills, when the fact is they use no lamps on their power circuits. It was alleged that light bulbs are used on a separate circuit, and that no lamp service charge is made because the companies furnish their own bulbs.

Asserts Negotiations Fail.

Attorney Shepard Andalman, who filed the bill, said negotiations have been in progress for four years but that the complainants have "gotten nowhere." He said the companies were forced to pay the bills presented or have their electric service cut off.

The alleged overcharge of $6,000,000, which the complainants are seeking to recover, covers only the period since Oct. 30, 1931. Although the overcharges are said to extend back to 1924, the earlier years are outlawed by the five year statute of limitations.

The bill alleges that Edison is [1] unjustly enriching itself by making a charge with no corresponding service furnished, [2] attempting to disguise excessive, unjust, and unwaranted charges for power, and [3] seeking to create a lamp monopoly through the lamp service charge.

Seek to Increase Capacity.

Edison filed an application with the commerce commission yesterday asking for permission to subscribe to as much as 100,000 additional shares of the Chicago District Electric Generating corporation stock at $10 a share to increase generating capacity. This will be the first increase in potential power output since 1932.

The increase is to provide for increased use of electricity expected as a result of the recent reduction in Edison rates ordered by the commerce commission.

The generating company is owned jointly by Edison, Public Service of Northern Illinois, and Public Service of Northern Indiana, to which it supplies current through the huge plant at the Illinois-Indiana state line on the shores of Lake Michigan.

NEW DEAL HURT RECOVERY, SAYS TRACTOR MAKER

Praises High Court for Upsets.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

In one of the frankest statements concerning the effect of politics upon business yet made by any important industrialist, B. C. Heacock, president of the Caterpillar Tractor company of Peoria, Ill., yesterday said that recovery in the United States would "unquestionably" have been further advanced had the New Deal not thrown sand into the gears.

Only the Supreme court's decisions throwing out such New Deal experiments as the NRA and AAA, he said, has encouraged business to improve as it has improved during the last two years.

He Scorns Pussyfooting.

As for the future, Heacock said the election would be a vitally determining event. Tossing to the winds the caution that has caused most corporation heads to pussyfoot in discussing politics, he said:

"If this country at the coming election elects an administration committed to economy, to a balanced budget and to a minimum of interference with industry, there will be a renewed confidence throughout the country which will result in heavy buying and therefore more jobs.

"If, on the contrary, the people of the country at the coming election indicate, by their approval, that they want an unbalanced budget, that they want to pay higher taxes and have more drastic government interference with industry, to say nothing of a possible change in our form of government, in such case I cannot see how either business or employment can long continue to increase.

"For that reason I am supporting Landon for President and the Republican candidates for congress and state offices."

Questioned on New Deal Aid.

Heacock's statement was contained in a letter to Harry R. Scranton, chairman of the Peoria county Republican central committee, and was written in reply to a letter addressed to him by Scranton, who had inquired "as an interested Peorian" whether the increased employment and increased volume of production and sales at the Caterpillar Tractor company plant had been due to the program of the New Deal in Washington.

"In your letter," said Heacock, "you ask me: 'To what extent, if any, has the administration at Washington been responsible for your high rate of employment?' If I may rephrase your question and possibly simplify it, what you really want to know is: 'Has the New Deal created more jobs at Caterpillar Tractor company?' The answer is, 'No.'

"Our employment went up because our sales went up. More buyers wanted Caterpillar products. Therefore, we had to hire more men to make them. 'But,' you may then ask, 'didn't the New Deal create more buyers?' Again the answer is, 'No.'

Cites Cause of Sales Gain.

"Increased sales resulted from two causes:

"First, during the depression from 1930 to 1933 many people wanted our products, but couldn't afford to buy. They had to wait until times were better, until the world-wide recovery reached the United States. During the last two years buying has been heavy, in large part due to the dammed up business during the depression.

"Second, the greater part of our increased sales is due to the development of our Diesel engine. During the depression we spent more than a million dollars of our stockholders' money in research, experimental, and development work. Our engineers worked untiringly so that we were able to offer buyers a brand new product never before manufactured anywhere. In this way we did our part to encourage buying, to create new jobs, and so to bring the country out of the depression.

"We Made the Jobs."

"No government official planned our Diesel design or our Diesel engine production. The Caterpillar Tractor did it. Therefore, we made our jobs.

"But again you may ask: 'Didn't the New Deal get us out of the depression?' My answer is emphatically, 'No.'

"Sweden, Norway, England, Holland, Denmark, Australia, New Zealand, and many other countries recovered from the depression before we did. Sweden is today enjoying the greatest era of prosperity in her entire history. It is significant that our export sales, since the depths of the depression, have made a much greater degree of recovery than our domestic sales.

"Why is the United States following instead of leading the world out of the depression? Because recovery here has been delayed by our unbalanced budget, heavy taxation and by obstacles placed in the way of indus-

RESOLUTE CONGRESS NATION'S GREATEST NEED, SAYS M'CARL

The most important task facing American voters, even more important than the selection of a President, is the election of a congress which can be depended upon to keep its campaign pledges and put an end to the present era of wasteful federal spending, John R. McCarl, former controler general of the United States, told members of the Chicago Association of Commerce yesterday at the Palmer house.

McCarl pointed out that the national debt, now approaching 35 billion dollars, already requires $900,000,000 a year in interest payments, even at the present abnormally low money rates. Any substantial improvement of business, and consequent private demand for capital, will increase the interest burden more than a billion dollars a year, he said.

If the structure of American government is to be protected against fatal strains, the present debt must not only be serviced as to interest, but its principal must be reduced substantially, he added.

No President, acting alone, can restore the federal government to sound financial condition, he said. He must have the aid of a congress—"a wise and resolute congress, resolved to resume control of our affairs, to solve our problems and to save us from bankruptcy."

ITALY EXPECTS 657 MILLIONS FROM NEW TAX

ROME, Oct. 28.—(AP)—The Italian government, revised estimates indicated today, will realize about 12,500,000,000 lire from the forced loan, virtually a capital levy, decreed by the cabinet when it devalued the lira.

The government will be enriched, on the devalued basis of the lira, about $657,500,000. The money, financial circles said, would be used largely to finance colonization in East Africa, particularly of extensive public works there.

Property owners, upon whom the forced loan falls to the extent of 5 per cent of the value of their property, are aroused. The common people are delighted.

Ecuador Money Rules Bar Spending of U. S. Dollars

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

BALBOA, C. Z., Oct. 28.—The absurd lengths to which exchange control can go is shown by reports of the passengers and crew of the Grace liner Santa Barbara, which called at Guayaquil, Ecuador, on her voyage northward. No one was permitted to take American money ashore, as the ship's pursers were prohibited from exchanging sucres for dollars, the passengers either returned to the ship or made brief trips ashore without money.

Dollar Holds About Steady Against Foreign Moneys

Foreign currencies showed little change against the dollar in the exchange market yesterday. The British pound eased 1-16 of a cent to close at $4.89 1-16 while the French franc rose .00 3-16 of a cent to 4.55 7-16 cents. Engagement of $979,000 gold abroad for shipment to the United States, $878,000 in England and $101,000 in India, was reported. An import of $1,459,000 gold from Canada was received, the New York Reserve bank reported.

Illinois Bell Reports Big Gain in Profit

The Illinois Bell Telephone company, the General American Transportation corporation, and the Wheeling Steel corporation were among the large corporations that yesterday reported substantial increases in profits for the September quarter and the first nine months of 1936.

Illinois Bell reported net income of $8,705,000 for the nine months ended Sept. 30, as compared with $7,384,000 in the corresponding 1935 period. The company passed along $9,000,000 of dividends to American Telephone and Telegraph, the parent concern, during the period, or $295,000 more than was earned. Only $6,750,000 in dividends was paid in the corresponding months last year. The gross revenues for the nine months were $60,244,000 against $56,037,000 a year earlier.

Doubles 1935 Profit.

General American Transportation corporation, leading manufacturer and lessor of certain types of railroad cars, reported a September quarter profit of $1,029,000, or more than double the $505,000 earned in the third quarter of 1935. The third quarter net was equal to $1.01 a share. Directors of the company will meet next month for dividend action. The stock is now on a $1.75 dividend basis

Wheeling Steel corporation announced profits of $1,187,000 for the September quarter, as compared with $649,000 in the corresponding 1935 quarter. Operations were at the average rate of 83 per cent of capacity, an increase of 11 per cent over the 1935 third quarter.

A loss of $92,000 in September was reported to the Illinois commerce commission by the Peoples Gas, Light, and Coke company. In the corresponding period last year the company incurred a deficit of $48,000. The figures include the operations of the parent company only. Indicated loss of third quarter was $313,000 against $361,000 last year. For the first nine months of 1936 net income totaled $916,000 against $710,000 in 1935.

Radiator Nets $5,476,389.

American Radiator and Standard Sanitary corporation reported net income of $5,476,389 for the 12 months ended Sept. 30, equal to 51 cents a common share. This compared with $4,375,118, or 40 cents a share, for the 12 months ended June 30. No comparison with a year ago was given.

A September quarter profit of $562,000, equal to $1 a common share, was reported by the General Cigar company. The company earned $508,000,

BURLINGTON TO BUY $8,000,000 OF NEW FREIGHT EQUIPMENT

New York, Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Ralph Budd, president of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad, today announced following a meeting of the road's board of directors that the carrier plans to purchase about $8,000,000 worth of new freight equipment.

Budd said the buying would be definitly authorized soon. It will consist largely of coal, live stock, and refrigerator cars. About 75 per cent of the cost will be financed with an equipment trust issue, Budd explained, with the balance to be paid in cash.

Unofficial estimates said the program will involve about three thousand cars, which would make it one of the biggest railroad equipment replacement orders in several years.

ANACONDA UNIT, STANDARD BRANDS DECLARE EXTRAS

The dividend picture was brightened yesterday with more declarations of extra and initial payments to stockholders.

Directors of Anaconda Wire and Cable company, subsidiary of Anaconda Copper Mining company, voted an extra dividend of $1 and the regular disbursement of 50 cents a share on common stock. An announcement accompanying the declarations said that the extra was declared out of undistributed earnings.

Standard Brands, Inc., declared an extra dividend of 25 cents a common share and reported increased net income for the September quarter.

Directors of United States Sugar corporation, operating plantations and properties in the Florida Everglades, declared an initial dividend on common stock and full year's dividends for the current fiscal years on the $5 no par preferred stock.

The dividends on the common stock consist of 10 cents a share in cash and one-fourth of a share of Clewiston Realty and Development corporation, an affiliate.

Record Fuel Oil Use Causes Gasoline Surplus

New York, Oct. 28.—(AP)—The Lamp, official publication of Standard Oil company of New Jersey, today sounded a warning over surplus gasoline resulting as a by-product of record fuel oil consumption. The problem is a permanent one, it said, with annual heating oil demand approaching the level of motor fuel consumption. The company proposed less cracking in winter months and diversion of gas oil to heating oil purposes.

WALLACE PLEA TO LIMIT PRICES DEPRESSES CORN

Fractional Declines Registered Here.

Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace's Bloomington, Ill., speech Tuesday in which he said he favored limiting the price of corn to a dollar a bushel by opening the doors to imports of foreign corn whenever the price rises above that level was a factor yesterday in causing a decline in domestic corn prices on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Grain men construed Wallace's sentiments as indicating the administration does not desire high prices for corn.

Corn futures yesterday closed ⅛ to ½ cent a bushel lower, with December contracts at 95¼ cents. As if in answer to the Wallace idea on corn prices, Argentine corn was offered yesterday at $1.01 a bushel, delivered at Chicago, duty paid.

Lift Argentine Price.

The asking price of $1.01 for Argentine corn yesterday testing around 14.5 per cent moisture compared with actual sales of carlots of new 1936 crop domestic No. 4 yellow corn at 98½ cents to $1.00 a bushel. The latter grade has contained as much as 20 per cent moisture.

A car of No. 2 yellow corn from the 1935 crop sold at $1.11 a bushel, or 10 cents above what was asked for the Argentine grain.

The wheat market developed a reactionary tendency, and closed ⅛ to ⅝ cent lower. Little change was shown in prices of oats. Rye and soy bean markets were irregular, with little interest shown by speculators.

Compare Closing Prices.

Closing prices of the December delivery of leading grain at Chicago, with comparisons, follow:

	Yesterday.	Tuesday.	Wk. ago.	Mo. ago.
Wheat	$1.15⅝	$1.16	$1.14⅛	$1.13⅜
Corn	.95¼	.95⅝	.93½	.95¼
Oats	.41⅛	.41⅛	.40¼	.41¾
Rye	.83⅝	.83⅝	.82	.80¼

Speculative interest in wheat was light, with commission houses selling December contracts around $1.16 a bushel in sufficient volume to cause a setback. The decline was helped along by a late reaction in the Winnipeg wheat market. Prices in Liverpool advanced as much as 1½ cents a bushel in response to reports of hot winds damaging the new Australian wheat crop.

A small lot of American Pacific coast wheat was reported sold on Tuesday for shipment to Japan.

The offering price for Pacific coast wheat at Baltimore and New Orleans yesterday was $1.15 a bushel, compared with $1.12½ last week.

Only a routine export business was put through in Canadian cash wheat.

Imports of Seeds Flooding United States as Prices Rise

Large impending imports of clover seed from Europe, South America, and Canada were reported yesterday in the wake of a further advance of from 50 cents to $1 per 100 pounds in the price of such seed in Chicago transactions.

Red clover seed was quoted yesterday as high as $33 for the fancy recleaned variety, the highest quotation since 1929. Because of the small amount and poor quality of this year's crop in the United States seed prices have risen sharply in the last few weeks.

At the close of September top quality red clover seed was quoted at around $21 a hundredweight.

In addition to the large purchases of clover seed abroad yesterday other heavy purchases have recently been made. Alfalfa seed is coming from Argentina, red clover seed from Chile, Hungary, Latvia, Poland, and Lithuania, and millet seed is coming from Hungary in 100 ton lots to be used in New England next spring.

Leading seed dealers yesterday quoted fancy recleaned clover seed in large amounts at the following prices per 100 pounds: Kansas alfalfa, $26.50 to $27; red clover, $33; Minnesota alfalfa, $27.50; alsike clover, $24 to $25, and sweet clover, $12.

Prices of tame hay and alfalfa advanced $1 to $2 a ton here, while marsh hay and wheat and oat straw went up 50 cents to $1. Receipts of hay have been light for several weeks and advices from the country indicate that the marketward movement is expected to continue moderate for some time.

RFC SEPTEMBER DISBURSEMENTS TOTAL $16,650,265

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—The Reconstruction Finance corporation reported today that September disbursements on loans totaled $16,650,265, while repayments on previous loans were $17,920,603.

New authorizations during September, some of which have not yet been disbursed, along with other commitments of various types, totaled $26,717,331. The largest item was $11,750,000 for the Commodity Credit corporation to aid orderly marketing of agricultural products.

That activities to aid the banking structure of the country have virtually ceased was shown by the fact that new authorizations in September totaled only $3,186,429, all for loans to closed banks to accelerate the repayment of deposits.

NET OPERATING INCOME OF RAILS FAR ABOVE 1935

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28.—(AP)—The interstate commerce commission reported today that incomplete net railway operating income for the first nine months of 1936 totaled $353,538,147 as compared with $265,004,157 for the corresponding period of 1935.

The September net operating income was $54,321,302 as compared with $44,332,931 for September, 1935.

Railways in the southern and western districts showed the best gains 48.5 per cent and 49.8 per cent respectively.

Bank of Canada Refuses 3½ Million Loan to Alberta

EDMONTON, Alta., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Provincial Treasurer Cockroft said tonight the Bank of Canada refused Alberta a loan of $3,500,000 for bond redeeming purposes, but said he was continuing negotiations with the bank. Turned down by the federal government in its efforts to raise enough money to meet a bond issue of $1,250,000 due Nov. 1 the provincial government then directed an appeal to the bank.

REPORT TIRE PRICES MAY BE INCREASED FROM 5 TO 10 PER CENT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 28.—Tire prices will be raised from 5 to 10 per cent over the week-end according to reports circulating today. The average advance will be about 5 per cent, but some adjustments may range as high as 10.

Dealer discounts, however, will be realigned so the net return to the manufacturer will not be much larger than the average. The last advance in tires was made in May, when the rise ranged from 5½ to 13 per cent.

An increase at this time will come at a period when companies are entering their spring dating season, from Nov. 1 to May 15. During that time tires are shipped to dealers for spring payment and prices are guaranteed against decline during the period.

In July it was estimated tire sales in the last half of the year would range from 51,000,000 to 52,000,000. Now they are likely to top that mark by a million.

CAPACITY AUTO PRODUCTION IS EXPECTED SOON

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Automotive Daily News in a mid-week survey of plant activity in the motorcar industry said today that within the "next week or so" practically all plants will be working at capacity.

It estimated the current week's output at "about 87,470 units" compared with 62,725 for the week ended Oct. 24. The October total is placed at 240,000 to 250,000 units.

"In addition to resumption of output by Ford," the survey said, "the other plants also have stepped up their schedules. Chevrolet has boosted its output from an estimated 20,000 to 21,000 and is expected to hit its peak just above 30,000 units per week in the very near future."

ARGENTINE CORN DUE TO UNLOAD HERE TODAY

First Raid on Heart of Corn Belt.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The first shipment of foreign corn to reach Chicago this season is expected to be unloaded today at the Norris Grain company elevator, 98th street and the Calumet river. The steamer Pillsbury which cleared from Montreal ten days ago with 83,000 bushels of Argentine corn was scheduled to dock at the Norris elevator late last night.

More than two years ago—in the spring of 1934—Chicago received the first cargo of foreign corn in its history. Since that time the American market has provided a profitable outlet for foreign corn producers.

First Chicago Invasion.

This season more than 20 million bushels of Argentine corn have been received in the United States, but the Pillsbury's arrival is the first time this year that the foreign grain has penetrated as far as Chicago, the heart of the middle western corn producing belt.

Chicago grain men believe that the arrival of the Pillsbury marks the beginning of a heavy movement of Argentine corn into this market. At least one additional cargo has been purchased for shipment here and additional shipments are expected to be made before the close of lake navigation.

At yesterday's market price Argentine corn could be laid down in Chicago, duty paid, at $1.01 a bushel. Comparable grades of domestic corn sold yesterday at $1.11 a bushel, giving the importer a comfortable margin on which to operate.

Quality Is Inferior.

While Argentine cord is regarded as generally inferior in quality to American corn it is regarded by some commercial users as at least as good for certain purposes as the domestic product. It is especially adaptable for mixing with other grains for chicken feed. It is probable that much of the Argentine corn which reaches Chicago will be mixed with feed wheat which has been imported from Canada and marketed as feed. Since the opening of lake navigation more than a million bushels of Canadian feed wheat have reached Chicago.

It is estimated that foreign grown grain makes up 65 per cent of the chicken feed mixtures now being marketed commercially in the eastern states. Middle western chickens have been getting along on home

STOCKS MIXED AT CLOSE AFTER EARLY UPTURN

Late Profit Taking Shaves Initial Gains.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 28.—Trading on the stock exchange started at a fast clip today, with most issues continuing yesterday's advance, but late profit taking reduced many gains, and the list was irregular at the close. Mail order houses, on bullish earnings reports, led the advance and generally held firm in heavy trading. Rails, steels and motors were mixed.

The appearance of sizeable orders at the opening served to bring trading above recent subnormal activity, but volume tapered off later and the total for the day was only 1,632,130 shares. Large speculators were inactive, awaiting the Nov. 3 election.

Leaders Lose Upturn.

United States Steel jumped a full point at the opening, and General Motors, Chrysler and other market leaders were up as much. Profit taking erased the gains later, Steel losing ¾ for the day, Chrysler ⅛, and General Motors gaining a bare ⅛. The action of these three indicated the general market tendency, with operators remaining cautious in the extreme and taking profits where available.

At least a third of today's transactions were made in the opening hour. After that the thinness of the market became evident and without support most issues sank. Industrial and rail averages managed to withstand weakness to hold fractional gains at the close, but utilities were off a slight fraction.

In addition to mail order houses, petroleums and farm implements were the strong features of the day. Sears, Roebuck gained ¾, continuing yesterday's spurt, and Montgomery Ward advanced ⅜.

Standard Oil Group Higher.

In the oils practically all of the Standard issues gained fractionally. Texas corporation rose 1⅛.

International Harvester gained ⅝ and Case jumped 2¼. Deere sold off a fraction.

Gains and losses in rails were largely limited to fractions in indifferent trading, the net result being a fractional gain in the averages.

In the utilities Commonwealth and Southern, a market favorite, held firm in heavy trading. Small losses were recorded in enough issues, however, to send the averages down a small fraction. The American and Foreign power group was fractionally lower.

Weakness continued to prevail in aviation issues, despite reports of military buying in the American market by Australia, Brazil, and other countries. Douglas and Wright-Aero lost a point each, while the two issues of Curtiss-Wright remained unchanged in limited trading.

STEEL OPERATING RATE HOLDS FIRM AT 74 PER CENT

Pittsburgh Loss Offset at Other Points.

Although there has occurred a lull in new steel business, particularly in heavy products at Pittsburgh where the operating rate has dropped two points to 70 per cent, the national average remains unchanged this week at 74 per cent of the nation's capacity due to increases at Chicago, Detroit, southern Ohio, and in the Cleveland-Lorain district, the magazine Iron Age reported yesterday.

The Pittsburgh district, where capacity in heavy products predominates, is chiefly affected by an inclination in building construction projects to mark time until after the election next Tuesday. Seasonal curtailment also looms with the approach of winter, the journal pointed out. Other districts have been aided by the release of deferred specifications by some automobile companies that have been slower than expected in getting into production on 1937 models.

Conditions Favorable.

"While for the first time in many weeks the indications do not all point in the direction of a continued upward movement in steel production," the journal said, "the present easier situation has not changed the opinion of the industry that conditions are highly favorable for an operating rate varying from 70 to 75 per cent during the remainder of the year, with the possibility that December, normally a poor month, will this year reverse its usual trend."

Tinplate production has risen to 93 per cent of capacity, based on advance rollings for can manufacturers.

A further decline of 25 cents a ton in heavy melting steel scrap at Pittsburgh has brought the Iron Age scrap composite down to $16.50 from the year's peak of $16.75 in the third week of September.

POWER OUTPUT DIPS

A sharp decline in industrial activity throughout the nation last week was reflected today in electric power production, which fell below the preceding week, the first time in more than seven years that a recession has been shown at this season of the year.

Actual output of electricity last week, according to the Edison Electric institute, was 2,166,656,000 kilowatt hours, a drop of 3,471,000 kilowatt hours from the preceding week, which included the Columbus day holiday, but 14.3 per cent above the 1,895,817,000 total a year ago.

The decline is believed to reflect reduced operations in the steel industry, as well as the fact that the automobile industry has been slow in getting started on new models.

Electricity output of the four companies serving the Chicago area for last week was 124,645,000 kilowatt hours, a near peak, compared with 109,671,000 kilowatt hours in the corresponding period last year, an increase of 13.7 per cent, and 122,644,000 kilowatt hours in the week ended Oct. 17.

Symington Reorganization to Be Completed Today

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Counsel for stockholders of the Symington company, manufacturers of railroad equipment, said today reorganization of the company would be completed in New York tomorrow when final papers consummating the reorganization under the national bankruptcy act would be signed.

BUSINESS BITS

A. S. Anderson, vice president of the Adams-Westlake company of Chicago, yesterday was named president of the Railway Electrical Supply Manufacturers in 25th annual convention in the Hotel Sherman. Edward Ray, editor of Railway Purchases and Stores, became senior vice president, and H. A. Matthews, vice president of the Peerless Equipment company, was named junior vice president. New members of the executive committee, all of Chicago, included: R. L. Hasbrook, National Carbon company; J. C. Ingram, Bussman Manufacturing company, and Frost Rutherford, Vapor Car Heating company.

The 1937 national advertising plans of the Advertising Federation of America will be announced today at a Hotel Sherman meeting. E. H. McReynolds, president of the federation, will talk on "Organized Advertising."

W. J. Weir has joined Fletcher and Ellis, Inc., New York advertising agency, it was announced yesterday by the firm. Weir has been with Brown and Tarcher for the last year and prior to that was for several years connected with N. W. Ayer and Sons, Inc.

W. B. Truitt of Carolina Steel and Iron company has been elected a director of American Institute of Steel Construction. Retiring officers of the institute were reëlected.

Willard F. Place of New York was named a director of the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago, and St. Louis Railway company at the annual stockholders' meeting yesterday. He succeeds Patrick E. Crowley. Other directors were reëlected.

H. E. Newcomet, vice president of the Pennsylvania railroad, yesterday announced three promotions in the operating department of the railroad, to become effective Nov. 1. W. W. Patchell, superintendent of the St. Louis division, will become Baltimore division superintendent. F. R. Rex, superintendent of the Chicago terminal division, will succeed Patchell as superintendent of the St. Louis division with headquarters in Terre Haute, and C. P. Fisher, train master at Chicago, will take Rex's place.

MANUFACTURERS URGE INCREASE IN PANAMA CANAL TOLL CHARGES

Charging that present operation of the Panama canal is imposing "an unwaranted hardship upon American taxpayers and transportation agencies who are competing" with the canal, the Illinois Manufacturers' association yesterday urged an increase in Panama canal toll rates in a resolution unanimously adopted by the directors of the association.

Pointing out that the canal has operated at a deficit of over 16 million dollars during the 22 year period in which it has been open to trafic the resolution stated that "it is our conviction that if standard accounting and engineering practices were followed in calculating the financial experience of the Panama canal, the amount of said deficit would be substantially greater than the figure just indicated. Our inquiries indicate that 57.2 per cent of the tonnage transported through the canal is of foreign origin while the deficit is met by taxes imposed upon American citizens."

The resolution concluded that "We hereby go on record as favoring such adjustments in Panama canal toll rates as are necessary to insure an adequate return on the money invested, thereby affording relief to taxpayers, industry, and the public generally."

ARGENTINE CORN DUE TO UNLOAD IN CHICAGO TODAY

Cargo First Invasion of Corn Belt.

grown feed, but will now have the opportunity to change their diet.

The arrival in Chicago, the country's corn market, of Argentine corn marks the climax of the invasion of the domestic market by this foreign grain. Earlier this season, despite the crop failure in this country, Argentine corn had been unable to compete with the domestic grain in the center of the corn belt, although it easily captured the markets on the Atlantic and Pacific seaboards and the gulf. The Argentine corn producer can now undersell the Illinois farmer in the latter's own community, despite an existing tarif of 25 cents a bushel and the high cost of shipping the foreign grain here.

Heretofore this season the market for Argentine corn extended only as far west as Buffalo, as far north as Memphis and in the states along the Pacific seaboard. How completely it has captured the west coast market is indicated by the fact that not one cargo of American corn has been shipped to the Pacific coast in two years.

CATTLE PRICES CONTINUE RISE TO NEW PEAKS

Cattle prices continued to rise yesterday, best grades soaring to new highs for the season under brisk competition between local and eastern interests. Prime 1,037 pound yearling steers elevated the top to $11.25, the highest sale here since March.

A large share of the good grades of steers and yearlings sold at $10.50 or higher. The bulk of yesterday's arrivals sold from $8.25 to $11, some strictly grass fed stock bringing $7.50 to $8.50. Poorer classes showed the least improvement and some butcher stock was barely steady.

Although the general lamb trade was steady yesterday, one lot reached $9.50, within 10 cents of the highest sale since Oct. 1.

Despite a break in wholesale markets for fresh pork, packers paid strong to 10 cents higher prices for hogs, the average price for the session at $9.30, indicating a 10 cent gain.

Chicago Curb Lists Stock of Majestic Radio Concern

The Chicago Curb exchange yesterday announced the listing of 550,000 shares of common stock, $1 par value, of Majestic Radio & Television corporation, of which 200,000 will be admitted to trading on effective registration under the securities exchange act of 1934, and the balance on notice of issuance and effective registration.

COTTON MARKETS OPEN FIRM, BUT CLOSE LOWER

American cotton markets yesterday made a firm start and a tame finish, closing sales of futures being at the low point of the day. Hedging pressure was light in the early trading, but increased later. Final sales in Chicago were unchanged to 5 points lower, and other American markets were 3 to 7 points lower. [A point equals 1-100th cent a pound or 5 cents a bale.]

Trade was fairly active, with considerable trade buying in evidence on the way down. Spot cotton closed 5 points lower, with New Orleans and New York at 12.10 cents; Houston, 11.90 cents, and Galveston at 11.85 cents a pound. Prices follow:

NEW DEAL HELD BACK RECOVERY, SAYS HEACOCK

Lauds Supreme Court for Upsetting Laws.

try by unwise laws of our Fascist minded administration.

"Governments cannot create prosperity. The best that they can do is to instill confidence in the people and to create favorable conditions by means of a balanced budget and lower taxes. The American people, given an equal opportunity, will create their own prosperity. Governments, however, can retard prosperity or can create a depression by putting artificial obstacles in the way of industry by means of unbalanced budgets, high taxes, and unwise restrictive laws.

Concludes by Praising Court.

"But, finally, you may ask, 'Would the United States be further on the road to recovery if the New Deal had not existed?' My answer is: 'Unquestionably, 'Yes.'

"The New Deal created doubts. It made buyers cautious. It put obstacles in the way of employment. Those who wanted to build houses were afraid of increased taxes. Business men were forced to waste time wrestling with the NRA and other laws instead of laying plans for new business so that they could create new jobs.

"Only the Supreme Court decisions knocking out the NRA, the AAA and other New Deal laws, encouraged business to go ahead as it has in the last two years."

TWO MORE ASK MIDDLE WEST FEE REHEARING

Two more petitioners for fees and expenses in connection with reorganization of Middle West Utilities company yesterday filed petitions for a rehearing on the slashing of fee requests by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson. The two were among those whose requests were most coldly received by the court.

James H. Benjamin, whose activities in connection with bankruptcy reorganization litigation have been under court surveillance, was one of the petitioners. He asked $65,000 in fees and $6,797 in expenses. Nothing was allowed. Attorney Herbert Friedlich, who represented the banking creditors, was granted permission to reply to Benjamin's petition.

The other petitioner was Attorney Thomas V. Sullivan, who together with the law firm of Gannon, McGinn & Whitson asked for $150,000 and was awarded $7,500. The allowance was termed "so inadequate as to shock the conscience."

The two petitions said the court had failed to take into account their services as representatives of dissenting stockholders in contributing to the placing of a value on the company's properties many millions higher than the arbitrary figure adopted by banking creditors and noteholders.

LARD PRICES ARE ERRATIC IN FAIRLY MODERATE TRADE

A moderate trade occurred in lard futures yesterday, with price fluctuations erratic. Short covering in October contracts caused a small rally after an easy opening, but the demand was satisfied by trade interests and the finish was at a loss of 2½ cents. Deferred futures closed unchanged to 2½ cents higher.

Some brokers yesterday thought stocks of lard in Chicago will show an increase for October, which would be regarded as unusual.

Clear bellies [salt pork] closed nominally unchanged. Cash lard closed at $11.40 per 100 pounds; loose, $10.80; leaf, $10.25; clear bellies, $14.87½. Range of futures [per 100 pounds] follows:

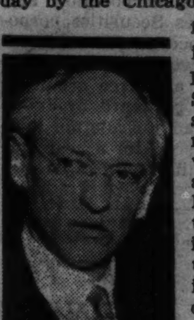
NEW QUARTERS ARE LEASED BY CHICAGO BAR

Plan to Remodel 2½ Floors at 29 South La Salle.

BY AL CHASE.

Negotiations were completed yesterday by the Chicago Bar association for new quarters in the National Life building, 29 South La Salle street. Approximately $75,000 will be spent, according to C. P. Denning, secretary, in remodeling the new quarters and installing a modern air conditioning plant.



CHARLES M. THOMSON.

All of the twelfth and thirteenth floors and one half of the eleventh have been leased for twenty years. This will give the association 32,500 square feet of floor space, or 50 per cent more than the present 20,500 feet in the Burnham building.

Plan Large Library.

Plans by Ernest A. Grunsfeld Jr. and Wallace F. Yerkes provide for a large library across the front of the building, overlooking La Salle street. A lobby will connect it with a dining room at the east end of the building. On the same floor will be lounge and kitchen accommodations.

The 13th floor will have eight private dining rooms and additional space for library activities. The executive offices and board rooms will be on the eleventh floor. All of the three floors will be connected by private stairways as well as by elevators.

Members Number 4,000.

Founded in 1873, the Chicago Bar association now has a membership of 4,000. Former Judge Charles M. Thomson is president.

According to Denning the new location is closer to the loop offices of more members than at present. Within a radius of two and a half blocks of 29 South La Salle there are 2,500 members, he said. There are only 1,400 within a similar radius of the present headquarters.

Advantage will be taken of a cancelation clause in the present lease and it is expected to have the new quarters ready for occupancy not later than May 1, 1937, with the possibility that the move will be made by Feb. 1.

NORTHWESTERN MUTUAL REPORTS NEW ASSET PEAK

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 28.—(AP)—The Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company showed a new all-time high in total assets and a substantial gain of insurance in force, in third quarter reports issued today.

President M. J. Cleary reported to trustees that as of Sept. 30, total insurance in force was $3,756,884,566 on 1,022,322 policies, compared with $3,697,685,685 on 984,613 policies a year ago. New paid for insurance this year was $199,696,049, an increase of $12,160,329, or 6.5 per cent, over last year. The number of new policies was 54,258, a gain of 2,979, or 5.8 per cent. In addition there were 1,347 life annuities for $6,331,346.

Total income for the year was $152,356,967 and disbursements totaled $107,675,611, a decrease of $4,612,212 or 4.1 per cent. Total assets were $1,116,799,854, an increase of $52,808,718 or 5 per cent over a year ago. Policy loans continued to show a further decline to a total of $188,346,877, a reduction of $17,564,835 or 8.5 per cent for a year ago.

Court Adjourns Action on Natl. Public Service

New York, Oct. 28.—[Special.]—All motions affecting the proposed reorganization of the National Public Service corporation, a former Insull holding unit, as well as the scheduled sale on Friday of bonds of the Jersey Central Light and Power company, held as collateral for a debenture issue of the Debtor company, were adjourned today by Federal Judge Samuel Mandelbaum. The argument on the motions was adjourned until Nov. 10, while the sale was adjourned until Nov. 13.

The entire issue of this stock having been sold, this advertisement appears as a matter of record only, and this advertisement is under no circumstances to be construed as an offering of these shares for sale, or as an offer to buy, or as a solicitation of an offer to buy any of such shares.

UTILITIES POWER CHANGE OF VENUE ACTION DELAYED

A battle over court jurisdiction of administration of affairs of Utilities Power and Light corporation appeared certain yesterday when Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward continued until Nov. 9 a motion to transfer proceedings for reorganization under federal bankruptcy laws to Federal Judge William H. Holly in Chicago.

Attorney Don K. Jones, who filed the petition before Judge Woodward in Freeport yesterday, said the petitioning creditors will raise serious objections to the transfer.

The motion for transfer was made by Attorney Burke Williamson, counsel for Irwin T. Gilruth, a trustee for Webster Securities corporation and the Public Utilities Securities corporation. Both concerns are affiliated with Utilities Power and Light, and it is argued that all three organization cases should be heard by Judge Holly, who has had jurisdiction over Webster and "Pusco" for a year and a half and is familiar with all three companies.

FEDERAL BOARD DENIES AIM TO ANNOY BUSINESS

New York, Oct. 28.—[Special.]—The federal trade commission "does not conceive it to be its duty to harass, to annoy, or to persecute business," Garland S. Ferguson, member of the commission, told the Cotton-Textile Institute at a meeting at Hotel Biltmore today.

"The federal trade commission should be helpful to honest business," he said. "It is our duty to conscientiously and fairly administer the laws over which we have jurisdiction. In so far as we can we are glad at all times to confer with any business man or his representative about any problem which may come within our line of duty."

Toledo's Largest Office Building, 17 Stories, Sold

Toledo, O., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—The Nicholas building, Toledo's largest office structure, today was sold to the Reuben Realty company, acting for an undisclosed client. The building is a 17 story structure and is located in the heart of Toledo's downtown business district. It was built in 1907. The amount of the purchase was not disclosed.

How You Can BORROW at HOUSEHOLD

No Endorsers.
No Salary Assignments.
REDUCED RATES
ON ALL LOANS ABOVE $100.

1. Whether or not you have furniture or a car, you can borrow here if you can make regular monthly payments.
2. Payments on all loans are small. For example, payments on a $200 loan are $10 per month plus interest charges on a 20 month schedule.
3. You do not need co-makers or endorsers.
4. You can secure the money quickly—the same day if you apply before 9 o'clock
5. Household's rate of 3% per month on the first $100 and 2% per month on that part of the balance over $100 is substantially lower than the lawful maximum on all loans above $100.
6. Repay at any time and reduce the cost.
7. Private offices. Your problem will have our sympathetic attention.

Candidates Cross Paths in New York—Hold Woman Hit-Run Driver—Trace Gang Clews in Murder

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

LANDON IS GIVEN A NOISY WELCOME UPON ARRIVING IN NEW YORK CITY ON CAMPAIGN TOUR—The Republican candidate for President doffs his hat as crowds surround his automobile en route to his hotel. At the right of the Kansas governor, head down, is William F. Bleakley, G. O. P. candidate opposing Herbert Lehman for the governorship of New York. Gov. Landon will speak tonight at 9:30 o'clock, Chicago time, at Madison Square Garden. He will deliver another address in St. Louis Saturday night. (Story on page 9.)

HUNT ASSASSINS OF TAVERN MANAGER—Adolph Anzona, shot to death early yesterday in Charlotte's cocktail lounge, Niles, and his widow, Gladys, as she appeared at inquest yesterday at 5826 Elston avenue. (Story on page 3.)

LANDON WELCOMED TO NEW YORK CITY; SPEAKS THERE TONIGHT—The Republican presidential candidate (at left indicated by arrow) amid throng as he arrived at his hotel in New York yesterday after speaking in Newark, N. J. Several of his supporters were carrying banners to emphasize the welcome. (Story on page 9.)

LANDON AND SMITH GET TOGETHER—The Republican candidate and his Democratic supporter, Al Smith, were all smiles as they met yesterday in Landon's hotel in New York. Smith will take part in Landon rally tonight.
[Associated Press Wirephoto.] (Story on page 9.)

NEAR DEATH—Alfred C. Meyer, president of board of Michael Reese hospital, struck by auto. (Story on page 22.)

KANE COUNTY CORN HUSKING CHAMP—George Heminover of Elgin township after victory in corn husking contest held yesterday on farm of Robert Murihead at Plato Center. Heminover won with a score of 31.59 bushels.

PRESIDENT AT STATUE OF LIBERTY—President Roosevelt (foreground) as he spoke yesterday on Bedloes Island rededicating the Statue of Liberty on the 50th anniversary of its first dedication. The statue looms in front of the President, who is campaigning for re-election.
